Old video sparks memory of the Blackhawk Trail saga

By Larry Nelson

It is sometimes strange how just a few words can jolt a memory. Recently a friend said a tourist had stopped and asked her about the Stephenson Blackhawk Trail. Stephenson Blackhawk Trail—it took a few seconds, but my memory soon kicked in.

In the summer of 1989, Jerilyn Strohecker, a high school student, and I produced a video about the trail. We visited all of the stops and shot some video of each one. Then we ran the old VHS tape through a recorder and dubbed narration over our video. And when we were finished, we had produced one of the earliest videos for the then fledgling LWTW, which first went on the local cable June 5 of that year.

So I did a little checking and found almost all of the red and white arrowhead markers for each site are still intact, a little faded, but still there. In fact, the local park district office provided me with brochures about the trail and the entire script which we used back in 1989. That script was researched and written by Dr. Eugene L. Vickery. If memory serves me, his sons Douglas and Jack helped with the trail project, perhaps crafting and installing the signs at each of the 10 sites on the 13-mile trail.

In a typewritten essay of two pages, Dr. Vickery explained that Chief Blackhawk was the leader of the British band of Sac Fox Indians and had fought for the British during the War of 1812. In 1832, he brought his tribe to the Rock River Valley, including Northwestern Illinois. White settlers felt threatened, and soon skirmishes between Blackhawk's men and the settlers and militia broke out. About 3,000 troops were involved. Three battles or skirmishes were fought in Western Stephenson County, with the whole Blackhawk War lasting 15 months. Approximately 70 settlers and Indians were killed on the east side of the Mississippi. Many of Blackhawk's men died at the battle at Bad Axe. On the western side of the river, the Sioux engaged Blackhawk. Remaining members of the Sac-Fox tribe went to central Iowa and to Oklahoma.

The Stephenson Blackhawk Trail is a string of historic sites in and west of Lena. A vivid imagination may add to the reader's enjoyment for a few of the stops. This week we feature the first of our sites: Dodds Inn.

The inn was built of native stone by Samuel F. Dodds in 1848. The village then was called Alida. It became Terra Haute and then Lena in 1854, when the Illinois Central Railroad was built through the region. The building stands square with the world, in contrast to Lena, Railroad, and Main Streets, which are aligned with the railroad. During its time as a hotel, it sheltered several famous guests: Stephen A. Douglas, Generals John A. Logan and George B. McClellan. Horace Greeley and Abraham Lincoln perhaps also stayed at the inn.

Mr. Dodd, through whose farm the railroad went, platted and established the town and served as its postmaster, justice of the peace and railroad agent.

Next week: stops two and three on the Stephenson Blackhawk Trail.

The first annual Shakedown brought huge crowds to Lena

LENA — The festival grounds surrounding The Rafters/Mill Furnishings and Design/Lena Brewing Company complex were busy early Saturday morning and stayed that way well into the night as the first annual Lena Shakedown surpassed even its organizer's expectations by bringing as many as three thousand visitors to the event.

"We are blessed with beautiful weather, a great turnout and the community is getting behind us a hundred percent," said Shakedown Media/Public Relations contact Susan Schaffer. "We have over 150 beautiful cars in our car show and great entertainers. All our volunteers are working hard and sweating a bit to bring out the cold beer and great food. Everything is going wonderfully."

She said there was no way the event would have gone forward without a veritable army of volunteers.

"We have more than 40 volunteers working the Vintage and Antique car show, the beer tent, the gates and the BBQ contest; the vendors are bringing in their own volunteers and they're all working together to make the Shakedown a success," she said. "Volunteers are what make an event like this happen."

She said there was no mistaking the love and dedication their team has for Lena.

The Illinois State Police remind motorists that school is starting

Be Alert for Children Walking or Riding their Bike and Stopped School Buses.

PECATONICA — Illinois State Police (ISP) District 16 Commander, Captain Mark Karczewski, would like to remind motorists that area schools will soon open their doors and begin the new school year. The start of the school year means an increase in pedestrian and vehicular traffic around schools.

Motorists need to be watchful for children walking and riding their bike to school and children darting out from between parked cars. Motorists also need to be on the lookout for slowing and stopped school buses. As parents drop off their children before school and pick them up after school, there will also be an increase in vehicle traffic during the morning and evening commute. Extra travel time should be planned to allow for the increase in traffic.

Motorists are reminded to watch their speed in school zones and limit their distractions. The speed limit in school zones is 20 m.p.h. and is in effect from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. when children are present. Motorists should refrain from talking on cell phones in a school zone and are reminded that it is illegal to text while driving.

Motorists approaching a stopped school bus with lights activated and sign extended must stop their vehicle before reaching the school bus. Failure to do so can result in a $150 fine and the suspension of your driver's license for three months. Also remember that pedestrians have the right-of-way in a crosswalk.

In addition to increased motorists and pedestrians in school zones Capt. Karczewski stated, "The new school year brings with it new drivers who continue to gain experience and confidence behind the wheel. Please be mindful of these new drivers and patient as you encounter them on the roadways."

own weight and then some, so instead of 50/50 everybody's going 100 percent and it's really paying off for the town," Schafer said.

Another Shakedown organizer, Ross Vehmeyer said the car show was definitely the early attraction, but as the day continued folks started to look for something to eat.

"We've got a lot of great food vendors here, so we're ready," said Vehmeyer. "We run the full gamut from cotton candy to funnel cakes to BBQ and more. It's all here at the Shakedown."

It only took a few minutes to see the attraction in the food village area. The SMOKING HOT BBQ contest began early with a dozen Pit masters competing for the tastiest BBQ with baby back ribs, whole turkey breast, boneless pork loin, whole beef tenderloin and a mystery "meat".

"The beer is flowing and folks can cruise around and enjoy the cars while they enjoy some food," Vehmeyer said. "If you want to sit for a bit and get out of the sun we've got a nice tent with tables and entertainment."

The car show ran all day with entries coming and going. Classes included Pre-1950's, 1950's, 1960's, 1970's, 1980's, 1990's+, Stock Truck, Mod Truck, Hot Rods, Motorcycles, Special Interest and Tractors. Goody bags including dash plaques were handed out for the first 125 registered entrants, and trophies awarded for top three in each class and best of show. The judges were walking through the rows of cars most of the day, so folks had plenty of time to peruse the vehicles and pick their own favorites.

"We had people coming in and leaving then coming back all day," Vehmeyer said. "There's plenty going on and folks could come out in the day time for a bit then come back at night to party with any or all of our four bands. We're rolling."

Girl scouts create big book for girls and parents to plan full year of activities

As families start thinking about their children returning to school, Girl Scouts of Northern Illinois (GSNI) is inviting girls to join the fun and register for Girl Scouts! Providing countless opportunities for making friends, trying new things, and exercising leadership skills through activities like building robots, participating in the Girl Scout Cookie Program, playing sports, and more, Girl Scouts is an exciting way to engage girls all year round.

One way GSNI is making the Girl Scout experience easy and adventurous is with the debut of its first-ever Big Book. This unique publication helps parents and girls plan out an entire year full of Girl Scout activities. The 68-page book features a variety of local Girl Scout programs that offer archery, first-aid, Minecraft Mondays, comic artistry, and Camp CEO, just to name a few. In addition, the book includes Badge of the Month Club, Girl Scout Events To-Go, and the U.S. Girl Scout Pen Pal Network. Each girl who registers as Girl Scouts will receive her very own Big Book. The book will also be available online beginning in September.

Research shows hands-on opportunities like these, offered by the largest girl-led organization in the world, positively impact all aspects of girls' lives. In fact, national studies from the Girl Scout Research Institute (GSRI) show it's not just what girls do, but how they do it that makes Girl Scouts so beneficial. Girl Scouts is unique because girls get to learn by doing, and they do so in a girl-led environment. This means that, in addition to girls learning in a hands-on and active way, they are encouraged to choose their activities, decide which topics they want to explore, and determine how they want to go about exploring them. Girl Scouts is a significant contributor to its members' success in and enjoyment of life.

GSRI reports that at least 75 percent of girls who experience the fun of "learning by doing" and are part of a girl-led program become better at conflict resolution, problem solving, team building and cooperation, and developing self-confidence. In addition, nearly three in four girls who experience learning by doing and who are part of a girl-led program say that, because of Girl Scouts, they've become a leader in more activities with their friends and classmates, as well as in their community.

"When girls lead, the world succeeds. Girl Scouts is the largest organization in the world where girls call the shots and take charge of their own future," said Anna Maria Chávez, CEO of Girl Scouts of the USA. "A troop who loves roller coasters might invite an engineer to join them at their local amusement park to learn about what makes their stomach drop in real time, while another troop might be interested in what happens when you recycle a bottle, and plan a visit to their town's recycling plant. By doing what they're interested in and deciding how to learn more, they are developing leadership skills that aren't offered by any other extracurricular activity."

Hands-on learning opportunities and girl-led experiences within Girl Scouts supplement the academic learning girls receive in school. These fun and empowering experiences have been shown to boost girls' social and emotional skills, which are not generally part of a school curriculum, as well as improve academic performance. Additionally, since learning by doing is best facilitated in small environments, Girl Scouts' 3:1 adult volunteer to girl ratio gives girls the optimal experience to tap into their interests and talents, and the opportunity to explore fun new things like STEM, entrepreneurship, and the outdoors.

Girl Scouts also provides benefits that directly complement all of the great work girls are already doing in school every day. Girls who experience learning by doing and who are a part of a girl-led program learn not to avoid things that are hard for them, but rather to take these challenges head-on, practice creative problem solving, learn from mistakes, and grow—all skills that will help girls succeed throughout school and life.

While Girl Scouts is open to all girls from kindergarten through grade 12, anyone over the age of 18 can become a Girl Scout volunteer. Girls cannot experience the positive impact of Girl Scouts without adult volunteers, and each adult who volunteers has the opportunity to make a real difference in the life of a girl. Girl Scout volunteers come from all walks of life; they are men, women, young professionals, retirees, college students, and more. Both girls and adult volunteers can join at any time of the year. To join Girl Scouts or learn more about volunteering, please visit: www.girlscouts.org/join.

VIEWPOINT

SENATE WEEK IN REVIEW

SPRINGFIELD — My Senate colleagues and I continued to meet with constituents and attend events in our local communities this week, while the House of Representatives met for a brief legislative session — and another round of political games.

But the unresolved budget is hardly a Springfield-only problem. A number of news items during the week proved the point — including the loss of hundreds of jobs specifically tied to Illinois's poor business climate. I continue to fight for much-needed reform, to bring jobs back to Illinois and fix the broken status quo.

House Democrats play politics with $5 billion affecting social services

On Aug. 4, the Senate took unanimous, bipartisan action to pass nearly $5 billion in federal funds for social service programs, ranging from meals for senior citizens to rehabilitation services for children with disabilities. Gov. Rauner indicated that he would quickly sign the bill, allowing federally-funded programs to continue unimpeded by the stalemate in Springfield.

But the Democrat supermajority in the House, led by Speaker Michael Madigan, had other ideas.

Rather than quickly approving the bipartisan bill, the House attached a "poison pill" amendment that would spend an additional $1.5 billion without a state budget in place — far above what Gov. Rauner indicated he would sign. With no Republican support in the House, the measure fell 17 votes short of the required three-fifths vote required to pass. A follow-up amendment, added later with only minor changes, passed on a bipartisan 98-0 vote. The Senate is expected to pass the bill next week.

Turmoil, uncertainty for Illinois jobs

This week, Suburban Chicago-based Hoist Liftruck, a forklift manufacturer, announced that it would be taking 300 jobs out of Illinois and into neighboring Indiana.

According to the head of the company, "the environment [in Illinois] isn't friendly for what I do." The move is expected to save the company $1 million per year in workers' compensation costs — a major jobs issue that Senate Republicans have been fighting to reform for months.

In related economic news this week:

Motorola announced it would cut about 25 percent of its Chicago workforce, a loss of about 2,000 jobs.

Kraft Heinz announced it would be cutting 700 jobs at its Northfield headquarters — more than one-third of its Northfield employees.

Amid the gloom, the Joliet area got a bit of good news: e-retailer Amazon announced it would be bringing 1,000 full-time jobs to the area with a major distribution warehouse

"fulfillment center."

Illinois is still struggling to recover from the recession, and has lost more than 300,000 manufacturing jobs in the last decade. It is unfortunate that Republican efforts to pass major pro-jobs reforms this session have been stymied by the Democrats in control of the Legislature. And the ongoing stalemate over the state budget has further contributed to Illinois' economic uncertainty. State losing residents, revenue

As Illinois continues to work its way through the state budget mess, and as businesses continue to leave or question their future in Illinois, families are too often left in the lurch.

New Census Bureau data released this summer shows that Illinois had 10,000 fewer residents in 2014 than it did the previous year — the largest drop of any state in the nation, and more than three times the loss of the second-place state (West Virginia).

And according to new data from the IRS, the residents are taking their purses and wallets with them. In tax year 2011 (the most recent available year, and the first year after the Democrats' record income tax hike), Illinois lost $2.5 million in income solely because of outbound moves. Illinois lost residents to 42 of 50 states that year, including each of our neighbors.

Gov. Rauner signs legislator pay freeze

Rauner also signed a measure pushed by Senate Republicans to turn down a two percent cost-of-living adjustment for legislators, constitutional officers, agency directors, and others. House Bill 576 also freezes per-diem and mileage reimbursement rates at their

Federal Funds & Law Enforcement Reform

This past week was significant in that everyone agreed on a funding allocation for federal dollars. I mentioned last week that Senate Bill 2042 had been unanimously passed by Senate Democrats and Republicans and based on the fact that this appropriations bill is entirely comprised of federal dollars, Governor Rauner publicly committed to signing the measure.

However, once again, my colleagues and I were put on an unfortunate political roller coaster that culminated in House passage of Senate Bill 2042, which will appropriate approximately $5 billion in federal only dollars currently being held up by the budget impasse.

While the House Democrats initially pushed to derail the measure, they eventually realized it best to provide a bipartisan stopgap relief measure to many state agencies. If the Senate concurs next week, the measure will help critical human services, child services, public health services and student assistance programs.

It is unfortunate that it could not be sent to the Governor the same day the legislation passed, but I am pleased that it now includes previously omitted funding for homeland security that was suggested by House Republicans.

Brian Stewart

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

This is yet another step in the budget process, one that is not ideal given the piecemeal approach; nevertheless, this action makes sense as it allows the appropriation of federal dollars that should not be subject to the ongoing budget battle in Springfield.

Monumental law enforcement reforms were signed into law by the Governor. The legislation, Senate Bill 1304, is a result of negotiations between all four caucuses and stakeholders from the police and legal community, which is a combination of police officer related bills that were held in Judiciary — Criminal committee and various Judiciary — Criminal sub-committees this past spring session, which I sit on.

Specifically, the legislation defines incidents with law enforcement involved deaths, provides for independent investigations and prosecutions, enhances reporting mechanisms, outlines traffic and pedestrian stop procedures, creates chokehold restrictions and allows for body cameras worn by officers.

The bill contains a large variety of reforms that came from both the community and law enforcement themselves. As a former law enforcement officer, I don't agree with everything that was put into this bill, but I do agree with the process, compromise and hard work that went into creating this legislation and that is why I was a co-sponsor.

The bill applies to law enforcement statewide and is effective immediately for provisions concerning funding of the Law Enforcement Camera Grant through fines and the Commission on Police Professionalism. The remainder of the bill has no effective date and is thus effective January 1, 2016.

If you would like more details to the law enforcement reforms in SB 1304, please visit my website where I will have a PDF available within this article.

In light of some recent and unfortunate news, I'll leave you with some words from former President Jimmy Carter, "You can do what you have to do, and sometimes you can do it even better than you think you can."

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

As I write this column, we continue to wait for rain! Who would have thought in June that we would be praying for rain? One of the television people said we have now arrived in the dog days of summer. I did hear that cooler weather was going to be coming toward the end of the week. I know that anyone who has anything to do with school would be happy to hear that. We continue to look for recipes using the bounty of summer harvests. This week will feature some vegetables as well as a condiment. Enjoy the recipes of summer.

This condiment for corn on the cob is easy to make; it really gives the corn a kick. If you are tired of eating sweet corn and want something different, try this way to put a little zip in sweet corn.

Buttery Horseradish Corn on the Cob

- ¾ C. butter, softened
- ¼ C. shredded pepper jack cheese
- ¼ C. prepared horseradish
- 1 T. parsley flakes
- 3 t. salt
- 2 t. balsamic vinegar
- ½ t. pepper
- ¼ t. dried thyme

Sweet corn, husks removed
In a small bowl, mix the butter, cheese, horseradish, parsley flakes, salt, vinegar, pepper and thyme until blended; spread over sweet corn. Wrap each with a piece of heavy duty foil, sealing tightly.

Grill sweet corn, covered, over medium heat 15-20 minutes or until tender; turning occasionally. Open foil carefully to allow the steam to escape.

Want a great salad for a lunch? This crab tomato salad is one you will love to try. You can substitute canned crab if you want, but I like the imitation crab instead. This great recipe is a wonderful lunch for the ladies—just toast some crusty bread and have some fresh fruit, and you will have a great lunch for company or for yourself.

Crab Topped Tomato Slices

- ½ C. cream cheese, softened
- ½ C. sour cream
- 2 T. finely chopped sweet red pepper
- ½ t. grated lemon peel
- 2 T. lemon juice
- 1 t. Old Bay seasoning
- 1 t. hot pepper sauce
- ½ t. salt
- ¼ t. pepper
- 12 oz. imitation crab meat, chopped finely

8 slices tomato, ½ inch thick
Minced fresh parsley or chives
Preheat the oven to 375. In a large bowl, combine the cream cheese, sour cream, pepper, lemon juice, Old Bay, pepper sauce, salt and pepper. Gently stir in the crab meat. Place tomato slices on a foil-lined baking sheet; top with crab mixture. Bake 12-15 minutes or until heated through. Sprinkle with parsley and/or chives.

Are you one of those people who don't like to can or are afraid to try it? These dill pickles are the ones for you. They have a little kick to them with the jalapeno peppers. If you want more kick, use two jalapeno peppers instead of just one. The great bonus for this recipe is that the pickles will keep up to two months in the refrigerator. One of my friends made these, and she said they didn't keep two months because they were all eaten in a much shorter time.

Refrigerator Jalapeno Dill Pickles

- 12 cucumbers about 3 lbs.
- 1 small onion, halved and sliced
- ¼ C. snipped fresh dill
- 1 jalapeno peppers, sliced
- 3 garlic cloves, minced
- 2½ C. water
- 2½ C. cider vinegar
- 1/3 C. canning salt
- 1/3 C. sugar

Cut each cucumber lengthwise into four spears. In a very large bowl, combine the cucumbers, onion, dill, jalapenos and garlic. In a large saucepan, combine the water, vinegar, salt and sugar. Bring to a boil; cook and stir just until salt and sugar are dissolved. Pour over cucumber mixture and cool.

Cover tightly and refrigerate for at least 24 hours. Store in the refrigerator for up to 2 months. Note: wear disposable gloves when cutting hot peppers; the oils can burn the skin. Avoid touching your face. Every summer I usually get a stuffed cabbage recipe sent to me. This one came from a reader who found it in a Farm Bureau magazine. You can use ground turkey or a combo of beef and turkey; using turkey will cut down on calories. Be sure to allow time for these rolls to cook—the prep is easy, but the baking time is lengthy.

Stuffed Cabbage Rolls

- 1 medium head of cabbage
- 1 lb. ground beef or turkey
- ¾ C. long grain rice, uncooked
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- Salt and pepper
- 1 can (16 oz.) crushed tomatoes
- ¼ C. water
- 3 T. lemon juice
- 2 T. brown sugar

Core the cabbage and separate all leaves. Place the leaves in a pan of hot water until wilted, about 5 minutes. Drain and set aside.

Mix the ground meat, rice, onion, garlic, salt and pepper to taste.

Remove hard stems from cabbage leaves. Place about 2 tablespoons of meat and rice mixture in each leaf and roll tightly. Place in pot or baking dish, seam side down.

In a medium bowl, mix together the tomatoes, water, lemon juice, and brown sugar. Pour the sauce over the cabbage rolls. Cook rolls by simmering on top if the stove, covered, for 3-4 hours or bake them in a 350 oven for 3 hours.

Grill your favorite all beef hot dogs and then split them open. The following variations will make a big difference to the plain old hot dog. Toasting the buns on the grill makes the whole experience even better. Here are some of the unique ways to enjoy a summer favorite: Bacon, lettuce, and tomato hot dog:

add diced tomatoes, crumbled bacon, mayo and chopped romaine. Reuben Dog: add sauerkraut, Swiss cheese, and Russian dressing to the hot dog. Cheese Steak Dog: add chopped sautéed peppers, onions, and American cheese—melting the cheese under the broiler. Taco Dog: add chopped tomato, diced onion, diced avocado, shredded pepper jack cheese, and crumbled tortilla chips.

I make a really good sour cream peach pie; however, I tasted this one, and I think it is almost as good as mine (I am not conceited, am I?) The crust is different, but I think it adds to the pie. You could prepare a ready made crust and bake it. The filling does take a while to bake, so plan ahead. It is great with ice cream or whipped topping.

Peach Pie with Sour Cream

Crust:

- 1¼ C. flour
- ½ C. cold butter, cut into bits
- 2 T. sour cream

Filling:

- 3 C. fresh peaches, peeled and sliced
- 1 T. lemon juice
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 C. sugar
- 1/3 C. sour cream
- ¼ C. flour

Crust:

Preheat the oven to 425. Grease a 9-inch pie plate. Pulse the flour, butter, and sour cream in a food processor until the mixture comes together in a large ball. Pat dough into prepared pie plate to form a crust. Bake until golden brown, about 15 minutes. Transfer to a wire rack and cool to room temperature, about 15 minutes.

Filling: Reduce heat to 350. Toss peach slices with lemon juice and arrange in cooled crust. Lightly beat the egg yolks in a large bowl. Stir in the sugar, sour cream, and flour until well combined. Pour over the peaches. Tent the pie with foil. Bake 50 minutes. Remove foil and continue baking until filling is set, about 30 minutes more. Transfer to a wire rack and cool for 1 hour before serving.

I can't believe school starts this week. I would have been working for at least a week if I were still teaching; there is so much to do to great ready for that first day. Football, volleyball, and golf have started practice. It is too bad this last week had so much heat. I hate to think about how hot it was in football gear. It will be soon time to have the first matches and games. Then time will really fly. I had a wonderful day at the Farmer's Market. I am getting so spoiled with fresh green beans; I hate the thought of having to go back to frozen or canned. The Farmer's Market vendors will be giving me an update on what, where, and when the market will be open during Fall Festival. However, they are back as usual this week on Saturday from 8-11 in the parking lot up town in Lena. Remember if you have some summer recipes to share, you can contact us in person, by mail, or email us at From Lena's Kitchens, Shopper's Guide at 213 S. Center St. or email scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com.

Farm bureau sponsors pop tab recycling program for Ronald McDonald House. As more and more people are becoming greener, the Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau is asking families, school groups, churches, and other organizations to collect pop tabs for the Ronald McDonald House of Iowa City. In turn, the farm bureau will deliver the collected tabs to the Iowa City facility for its fundraising campaign. The Ronald McDonald House Charities provide a home-away-from-home for families whose children are hospitalized and seriously ill. Please drop off collected tabs in any kind of container to the Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau office Monday - Friday, 8 - 4:30. This recycling program is beneficial for everyone involved. It does not interfere with other recycling programs and recycles a resource that might otherwise go to waste. More importantly, children and their families are being helped during their time of need.

CHURCH NOTES

PASTOR'S CORNER

Relationships—at what cost?

Sid Kemmis

Lay Minister, St. John's Lutheran Church, Lena

This week I attended a seminar on succession planning for farm families. The presenter is a professor at the University of Nebraska and has received many accolades as an educator. He is a respected speaker and expert on farm family relationships. We attended because my wife and I are caretakers of a 179 year-old family farm. Also, the speaker and I were college roommates.

He told many anecdotes of families with problems, disappointments, unfair treatment, jealousy, resentment, greed. Then he told the story of a young man whose dream was to operate the family farm. His father promised that his son would become a partner in the operation, so the son worked for meager wages for years; all the while being treated like a hired man. He kept wondering when his father would fulfill his promise to include him in the business. Finally, he confronted his father. The outcome was predictable: the father refused, the son left, the father cut him out of the will.

After his death, the two daughters received the whole estate, which included the family farm. One of the daughters approached her sister with a plan. She said, "Our brother worked all those years on the family farm; it was his life's dream to live and work there. Dad made a mistake, and we have the opportunity to make it right. I'm prepared to sell my share of the farm to our brother for a dollar. Would you join me?" She did. A totally unexpected gift caused great joy and a lasting, loving relationship. Imagine the love they shared; imagine the relationship those siblings have now!

God loves us so much, He sent his only Son to live a perfect life among us, then take all our sins on his back to the cross, where He died in our place. All this to save us from our sins and reconcile us to God. And even more, He rose from the grave, conquering sin, death, and the devil so that we, too, will rise to live with him forever as his family.

"In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, in accordance with the riches of God's grace that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and understanding, he made known to us the mystery of his will according to his good pleasure, which he purposed in Christ, to be put into effect when the times reach their fulfillment—to bring unity to all things in heaven and on earth under Christ." (Eph. 1:7-10)

He united us to himself at a great cost. He wants us to be part of his loving family. When we are in that family, shouldn't we value that relationship with Him? Shouldn't we value our relationship with other Christians? Shouldn't we share that love with others?

"...I urge you to live a life worthy of the calling you have received. Be completely humble and gentle; be patient, bearing with one another in love. Make every effort to keep the unity of the Spirit through the bond of peace. There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called to one hope when you were called; one Lord, one faith, one baptism; one God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all." (Eph. 4:1-6)

In our sinfulness, mankind was alienated from God. We shunned God it's like we walked out and slammed the door behind us. But God loved us so much--that relationship was so important to him--He gave his all. No holding back; no skimping. He gave his best. All this so we could be his sons and daughters--so we could be part of his loving family. What an unexpected gift! PRICELESS!

Bustos seeks interns for fall semester in Illinois & Washington, D.C. offices

STATEWIDE — Congresswoman Cheri Bustos (IL-17) reminded constituents that her office is currently accepting applications for fall semester internships in her offices in Rock Island, Peoria, Rockford and Washington, D.C. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis, but interested candidates are highly encouraged to apply by tomorrow, August 14.

"Internships are an invaluable opportunity for young people across our state to learn more about the legislative process and constituent services," said Congresswoman Cheri Bustos. "I encourage all those interested in gaining a firsthand experience in public service to apply for an internship in one of my offices today."

In Washington, D.C. both legislative internships and press internships are available, and interns' responsibilities vary. They may be asked to research legislation, attend hearings and briefings, draft press releases and constituent correspondence. In Illinois, interns will also perform a variety of tasks including assisting with case work and event planning. As a result, interns gain valuable work experience and learn about the legislative process and the many other functions of a Congressional office.

Fall internships will be available in Bustos' district offices in Rock Island, Peoria and Rockford, and in her Washington, D.C. office. More information on how to apply for Bustos' internship program can be found by visiting <http://bustos.house.gov/helping-you/internships>.

Illinois State Fair kicks off

Alligator on a stick, the Butter Cow, Conservation World, the High Dive Show, Ethnic Village — these are just some of the many traditions at the Illinois State Fair kicking off this week in Springfield. The annual festival, which brings nearly one million people though its gates, celebrates agriculture, one of the state's biggest industries.

Agriculture is responsible for more than 430,000 jobs in Illinois.

Preview night on Aug. 13 unofficially kicked off the State Fair with free admission and discounts on carnival rides, with the official opening celebration Aug. 14. The 11-day event features live music from some of music's biggest names, harness racing, carnival rides, dozens of food vendors, various entertainers, animal shows, and displays from groups and organizations from across the state.

The State Fair runs Aug. 13-23. Admission is $7 for adults, $3 for children, $3 for senior citizens, and free for kids. For more schedules, list of vendors, and the Grandstand lineup, check out the Illinois State Fair website. Seventy-five years of Illini Girls State LENA — In 1940, the American Legion Auxiliary started the Girls State Program, which is a leadership program for young ladies who have just finished their Junior year of high school. The delegate from Lena who experienced that life-changing event for the first time in history was Mavis Mitchell (Connors). Since that very first session in 1940, Lena has sent representatives from the high school every year, with the exception of 1945 when the session was cancelled due to the war.

This year with the help of additional sponsors from the community, such as the Lena State Bank, Citizen's State Bank, Community Bank, Lena Lions Club, Lena Volunteer Firemen, Leamon's Funeral Home, Coach's Bar and Grill, and Adkins Energy, we were able to send nine young ladies from Lena-Winslow.

Over the years, the Lena Sprague-Inman Unit #577 has sent 193 delegates to the program, which started at MacMurray College in Jacksonville and is now held at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston.

In celebration of the seventy-fifth year, the Sprague-Inman Unit would like to invite past delegates to be in the Fall Festival Parade on Saturday, September 12. Please contact Julia Moore at 815-369-4684. We would need to know how many can join us to celebrate the seventy-fifth year by September 1, so that we will have transportation for everyone. Let's see how many we can have in the parade.

Pet Talk: Vaccinating your Pets is increasingly important

STATELINE — It is not uncommon for pets to be considered a part of the family, which is why they deserve to live the happiest and healthiest lives possible. While endless treats and belly rubs are some people's idea of the perfect life for Fido, a more important factor plays into the quality of life your pet will have: their health. You may have already heard about the benefits of vaccinating your pet for common diseases, but educating yourself more on the subject is important before visiting the veterinarian's office.

Allowing vaccines to be a part of your pet's health care routine can protect them from some of the most common companion animal diseases. Rabies, distemper, hepatitis, Bordetella, parvovirus and feline leukemia are a few of the illnesses that your pet can be protected against through the use of a vaccine.

Dr. Brad Bennett, lecturer at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, explains how a vaccine can be effective in reducing your pet's chances of developing a disease. "In developing immunity, vaccines work by mimicking the infection. The infection usually does not cause illness (sometimes minor symptoms of the disease), but will allow the immune system to make antibodies and lymphocytes," said Bennett. "After the resolution of the infection, the body will remember how to fight the infection through memory T lymphocytes and B lymphocytes. There are several different types of vaccines including modified-live (attenuated), killed (inactivated), and recombinant."

Even if your pet is considered an "inside dog" or does not come into contact with other animals, Bennett still recommends having your animal vaccinated. "We know that when widespread vaccination is performed, we can reduce the prevalence of serious disease caused by highly pathogenic organisms. With this knowledge, we recommend most owners to vaccinate their pets," he said. Though vaccinations are meant to prevent harm to your animal, they are not always risk-free. Before making the decision to vaccinate your pet, talk with your veterinarian about the potential risks and benefits of vaccination. "While vaccinating can be valuable, it is not always harmless," Bennett said. "A discussion should take place between the veterinarian and the owner as to the probability of exposure, severity of disease being vaccinated for, and risk of adverse events," he said. Owners should also discuss how often their pet should be vaccinated to effectively prevent disease, as this varies with age.

So what kind of negative side effects from vaccines should owners look out for? According to Bennett, swelling of the face, vomiting, diarrhea, lethargy, pruritus and hives are common allergic reactions to vaccines in pets. More serious reactions can even include shock and sudden death (anaphylaxis). Though there are some reported reactions lasting weeks, most reactions occur immediately after injection or up to 48-72 hours later. If an owner observes any of these side effects after their pet receives a vaccination, Bennett encourages them to seek immediate veterinary attention for the safety of their pet.

While veterinarians like Bennett encourage pet owners to vaccinate their pet as needed, some animal care specialists have argued that we are over-vaccinating our pets, causing more harm than good. "My opinion is that I don't believe we are over-vaccinating our pets. Every day, I see diseases in pets that could be avoided by vaccinating," said Bennett. "But just as we discussed before,

Allowing vaccines to be a part of your pet's health care routine can protect them from some of the most common companion animal diseases vaccinating is not always innocent. In some patients, vaccinations can be detrimental, such as those with immune-mediated diseases and in instances of feline injection-site associated sarcomas."

As owners, we want our pets to live a happy life. With the help of regular check-ups and vaccinations against common pet diseases, your animal's quality of life may be improved. Although vaccines are meant to protect your pet's health, owners should be aware of the potential side effects that come with vaccinating your pet. Remember to discuss your concerns with your local veterinarian so they can determine the best vaccine plan for your animal to ensure a long and healthy life.

tant that they accomplish their goals in the most efficient manner possible to free up their volunteers to provide their client(s) and their caretaker(s) the support and education required in a reasonable time-frame. To enhance their outreach, they strive to present information to their clients and the general public in a professional manner which requires them to use updated equipment and software. As a non-profit organization this is an on-going struggle due to the day-to-day priorities of the clients and their caretakers, and the use of an all-volunteer staff for administration and office tasks.

At the present time Volunteer Hospice is in the process of moving into a new office space that will help them provide better service to the community. Having more up-to-date equipment, software and IT support would greatly enhance their new office.

How can you help Volunteer Hospice win this much needed Make-Over? It is very simple! They need your vote. Be sure to mark your calendars now to vote online for Volunteer Hospice. Voting starts on Monday, August 24 and goes through Wednesday, September 2. You will need to log on to www.mmnprb.com daily and follow the voting tab. You can vote once per day (24 hour period) per device that you have. After this voting process 50 organizations will go on to the second round of voting which will take place from September 14-21. If you need a daily reminder to vote, be sure to log onto Facebook and Like the Volunteer Hospice of Northwest Illinois page as they will be updating information about the contest daily.

Movies at Mames looks at Start The Revolution Without Me – 1970 PG

Gene Wilder and Donald Sutherland star in this madcap story, narrated by Orson Welles, of two sets of twins, switched at birth. One pair are noble, one pair are poor peasants. All of them are instrumental to the start of the French Revolution. Gene Wilder plays both Claude Coupe & Phillippe de Sisi. Donald Sutherland plays his brother(s) Charles Coupe & Pierre de Sisi. In roles that call to mind those streetside shell games that dupe tourists, we watch our twins travel to Paris, France; the de Sisis at the request of the Duke d'Escargot, who wishes to assassinate King Louis XVI & marry the King's widow, Marie and rule France side by side with the de Sisis, the Coupe's at the request of the King, who suspects d'Escargot has sinister plans in the works, so that Charles (Sutherland) can marry Princess Christina of Belgium and form an alliance between the countries. On the road with the de Sisis, is Pierre's wife, who is so beaten down by her role as the wife to a tyrant such as Pierre, that she no longer cares about the impending Revolution. Traveling to Paris with the Coupes, is Claude's hot-blooded girlfriend, Mimi, who is willing to die if that's what's needed for the poor people of France to gain their freedom from the oppressive King. What Mimi doesn't know, what no one except for those in court could know; the King is an idiot. He's not the sharp-witted cruel despot he's perceived to be, he's a doddering old man who doesn't want anyone to get hurt because of him. (One of the movie's funniest scenes shows Louis and Marie entering a ball, the King dressed as an enormous chicken. "I thought it was a costume ball!") As both sets of twins are pulled further and further into twisted plots of deceit, regicide, double-crossing & randy Queens, they trade places (unknowingly, of course) with one another with dizzying frequency.

Friends, if you can follow this review, you'll have no trouble with the movie. It sounds complicated with all the switching and the intrigue, but in actuality, it's a silly, slapstick farcical ride. The narration alone is enough to elicit giggles as we're told the same setup, over a slow crawl of text, over and over again until we can practically recite along with Welles. And Sutherland's performance as both the prissy Pierre and the dim-witted Charles is one of my favorites. I was introduced to this movie when I was about 13 and his goofball expressions were what stood out most to me and years later, he remains one of the best parts of the film.

Fun fact: Gene Wilder required no sword work training for the film as he was already an accomplished fencer from his days at school.
