National Friendship Day: In celebration of friends

“Make new friends, but keep the old. One is silver and the other gold.” National Friendship Day is Aug. 6, but in my opinion every day should be a day to celebrate friends and the different types of friendships we have in our lives. From best friends all the way to acquaintances, I know I value mine.

Let’s start with old friends because they’re the ones we found first. They’ve been around the block with us and our relationship has stood the test of time. Old friends love you despite that awkward stage you went through in high school when they, most likely, were going through an awkward stage of their own. Old friends are comfort, familiarity and enduring. They are meatloaf with mashed potatoes, green beans and white bread. Old friends are the best.

Some friends are more recent finds: new friends. They bring the potential for new possibilities and possess characteristics that draw you to them, and vice versa. New friends don’t know your baggage and they don’t need to know about past errors or that awkward stage you went through in high school.

This brings with it an energy and excitement for fresh starts. New friends are quinoa topped with free-range chicken and GMO-free vegetables (organic, of course). New friends are the best.

Another group of friends lives in our future. They are the people we’ve yet to meet, who will one day touch our lives and earn the status of friend.

Future friends are intriguing and alluring. You don’t know when the future will become the right now and a future friend will join the category of new friends. Future friends are a square watermelon or purple orange – not yet invented but they’ll be interesting once they get here. Future friends are the future and that makes them the best.

Friendship isn’t always forever. Friends come and go. They (or you) leave a job or school or the neighborhood. Lives change and your relationship fades. Sometimes they (or you) return. This leads us to the category of re-discovered friends: folks we used to know, but lost track of and then managed to reconnect with again.

Social media has increased the popularity and prevalence of renewed friendships. In the olden days, you’d have to go to a class reunion to reconnect with high school buddies. Now all it takes is a click of a mouse.

Old friends who become new again may have less hair and more waistline from what you remember but their essence and heart are mostly and thankfully unchanged. You find you can pick up with them right where you left off years or decades earlier.

Re-found friends are like a secret stash of good chocolate you forgot you hid until you found it behind a bag of flour in the pantry. In that regard, re-discovered friends are the best.

Not all friends are human. Often, a person’s best friend comes complete with four paws and a tail. Pet friends are just as real as human friends. When we’re happy, they’re happy. When we’re sad, they’re pretty sure it’s their fault.

Besides treats, us coming home to see them is one of their favorite times of the day. They lick us because they love us. Pet friends are chicken and steak and bacon. Lots and lots of bacon. Pet friends are the best.

Speaking of best, I’ve saved them for last. Best friends. They can be old or new, live next door or across the globe and I don’t think you have to have just one. Maybe a better phrase would be best of friends.

Bonus life points if you are married to one of yours. Besties know your favorite song and flavor of ice cream. They may be just like you, or a total opposite. You may talk to them five times a day or five times a year. Best friends are all your favorite foods, at one sitting, including dessert (which comes without calories). Best friends are the best.

Friends. They know our secrets and sometimes our lies. We laugh with them, celebrate with them, grow with them, mourn with them and count on them. They’re at the top of our contact list and at the center of our heart. And whether they are old or new, borrowed or blue, it’s my belief you can never have too many and you are never too old to stop collecting.

Cheers to friendship!

In my opinion

Columnist raves

about her favorite actress

I’ve got a new girl crush. My Prince and I discovered the show SMASH about a year ago. It aired for two seasons (2012 and 2013) on NBC and became my fave go-to show whenever we plunked down to watch something on our Amazon Firestick TV.

Two words. Ivy Lynn. Ivy, played by Megan Hilty, a bombshell herself (the show’s premise is the behind the scenes look at how a Broadway musical comes to life; in SMASH, the musical in the works is based on the life of Marilyn Monroe and is titled Bombshell) became my new girl crush.

Ivy was the character that had me saying “Let’s watch just one more episode.” Megan is the triple threat, sing, dance, act, as was the entire cast. Since I can do none of the above, I am the quintessential audience member that goes weak in the knees for a big production number or a strong solo performance. Ah, be still my heart.

The character of Ivy was the perfect mix of good girl/bad girl yet you (me) always rooted for her. Katherine McPhee of American Idol fame also shared the marquee as her character vied to play the role of Marilyn as well. Kat held her own, for sure, but she didn’t capture my heart or have me crushing like Megan did.

I never watched Idol and also was pretty ignorant to the lineup of Broadway talent that this show landed. Now it is with giddy delight that I tell you I will see Leslie Odom Jr. this summer (at Ravinia) and I know him as Sam from SMASH. The world knows him as Tony award winner for the role of Aaron Burr in Hamilton.

Seeing Sam, I mean Leslie, should be enough for one summer. But some like it hot and my prince knows how to woo a girl. (Even though I am long since needing wooing.) He has arranged for us to see Megan Hilty in concert AND we get to meet her. (I will report on that next time. My prediction is that I will be sweaty and tongue tied.)

SMASH sucked me in and I cried when Ivy Lynn won the Tony for her role as Marilyn in Bombshell, and I am thrilled that the real life Megan Hilty was nominated for the Tony and has racked up all kinds of awards and accolades. If you don’t know her, she was Glinda in Wicked, Doralee in 9 to 5 The Musical (Dolly Parton loves Megan too), and Brooke Ashton in Noises Off. She’s also had several television acting roles, recently including The Good Wife, and if you have toddlers (which Megan does), she is doing some Sofia, The First.

When I crush on someone, it’s their talent in a role that captures me at first (Ewan McGregor in Moulin Rouge) or just their stage presence (Robbie Williams, Pink, Prince, the Barry). They have to be a decent person to keep me hanging around. The only one in that list I have not seen in the flesh is Robbie. Side note on him, he is beloved the world over, but little known in the states. Go figure.

Anyway, when I need a boost of inspiration, I YouTube Ivy Lynn singing the song “Don’t Forget Me” and it makes me cry. The power in Megan’s voice (and the coming together of the girl and the musical is done so beautifully in SMASH. Kudos to the writers) simply has me in awe and I love to bask in the belting out.

Live theater, live concerts, live singing - there is magic there. That is what I crush on. I have warned my husband that I might cry. That is my gauge for vocal performance - does it move me to tears. Kristin Chenoweth with the symphony did. Donny Osmond in Joseph did. Ewan in Guys & Dolls (in London!) did. The list goes on as does my love. For those who can sing (and act and dance), and for my Prince Charming.

My sweet husband knows music moves me. He moves me. He is taking me to Boston and then Provincetown to see Megan Hilty front row with a meet and greet. Ah, yes, be still my heart.

Scratch that. Let it beat wildly, for music, for performance, and for him, my real and true and lasting forever sweet crush.

WHEN VOWS ARE SHARED...

...we are unstoppable. When her brain tumor canceled Mori Jo's wedding plans, her team at OSF HealthCare vowed to help. Just days after a successful surgery, Mori Jo Meling and Patrick Conkrite stood in the hospital chapel and wed – on the very day they had always planned to. “You hear about having a dedicated doctor or nurse, but this was above and beyond. They saved my life, and then they saved my wedding.”
