Changes to EPA RVP regulations heralded by ethanol industry

By Tony Carton
EDITOR

While stumping last week in Council Bluffs, IA, President Trump called again for easing the REID Vapor Pressure or RVP regulations restricting year-round sales of gasoline formulated with 15 percent ethanol (E15). The President's remarks are welcomed by grain and biofuel producers nationwide.

E15 is a low-cost, high-octane fuel that is EPA-approved as safe to use in 90 percent of all vehicles on the road today.

"It is a plus for the ethanol industry, farmers and consumers," said Adkins Energy General Manager Ray Baker. "For the ethanol industry it means the potential increase of 1.3 billion gallons of ethanol demand in the next few years. For farmers it means the potential increase of a half billion bushels of U.S. corn demand to supply the ethanol industry over the same time frame. And for consumers, they will have increased access to a lower priced fuel choice at the pump. Consumer choice has been limited because retailers were hesitant to make changes to their products with the summertime RVP restriction."

Over the past couple years, the number of gas stations selling E15 has grown from 400 sites to over 1,400 sites.

"There are many new retailers who have indicated they are ready to start selling E15 but were waiting for this RVP rule to come into effect prior to starting the conversion," Baker said. "After the RVP announcement Casey's pledged to add E15 to another 500 locations across the U.S. We expect even more growth like this in the next couple years."

He said many retailers will now confidently make the change and consumers will have a choice at the pump.

"Right now, ethanol is about 75 cents cheaper than gasoline prices," Baker said. "If another five percent ethanol is blended in gasoline it could mean even more savings for the consumer compared to traditional 10 percent ethanol blends. E15 can typically save consumers another five cents per gallon or more over E10."

According to researchers from the University of Illinois Department of Agricultural and Consumer Economics increasing the use of ethanol to 10 percent in gasoline saved U.S. consumers $7 billion between 2008 and 2016. Using a similar model—accounting for both the price difference between ethanol and gasoline blendstock and the price difference between ethanol and other octane additives, the switch from E10 to E15 could save U.S. drivers approximately $9.5 billion per year.

The increased use of E15 should also have a positive effect on the price of corn.

"U.S. farmers are in the midst of harvesting another record crop which is creating a surplus of corn in the U.S.," said Baker. "As a result, corn prices have been moving lower. The new rule will help the U.S. use more of the corn crop domestically which should increase the price of corn and strengthen our economy over time."

Adkins Energy has been increasing production for several years in anticipation of the now imminent regulatory change and expect to continue incrementally increasing production in the future as ethanol demand increases.

"Many ethanol plants will increase production in response, but also reinvest into new emerging technologies in their plant," Baker said. "Both of these will mean improved economics and increased jobs in the future."

An upswing in the use of E15 is an environmental plus as well.

"Ethanol blended gasoline is proven to reduce emissions and is much cleaner than gasoline," Baker said. "Studies show ethanol reduces greenhouse gas emissions by 43 percent compared to gasoline. Ethanol is also one of the best octane sources available and when blended in gasoline it replaces aromatics which are typically used by refiners to increase octane and are known to contain carcinogens such as benzene and toluene."

The President's comments may also open the door to new Renewable Fuel Standard (RFS) talks.

The RFS is a federal program that requires transportation fuel sold in the United States to contain a minimum volume of renewable fuels.

"Our industry has always been willing to have meaningful dialogue that would benefit all parties in the discussion," said Baker. "However, most discussions have been centered around oil companies attempting to decrease ethanol demand as a result of their suggested changes to the RFS. I think the President's actions show the importance of cleaner burning fuels and a strong agricultural industry. Ethanol production uses the starch in corn to produce alcohol, but also creates a high-quality feed from the remaining components of the corn kernel. Our farmers feed and fuel our nation. We will only engage in talks that promote more benefits to our country from ethanol, not less."

U.S. Representative Cheri Bustos (D-IL 17th District) has long been a strong supporter of changes to RVP rules and heralded the President's announcement with cautious optimism.

"While I'm pleased that the President announced he's going to allow year-round E15 sales, this is the third time he's done so," said Congresswoman Bustos. "I hope he does follow through because making this common-sense change would be a great thing for our corn growers and ethanol producers. Just the same, one of the biggest challenges facing our agricultural economy is the ongoing trade war that our President tweeted us into. We need to take a much more strategic approach—both through trade and ethanol—toward expanding export markets, strengthening family farmers and growing our heartland economy."

AG Madigan calls on FCC to stop illegal robocalls and spoofing

Attorney General Lisa Madigan along with a bipartisan coalition of 33 attorneys general called on the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to create new rules to allow telephone service providers to block more illegal robocalls flooding phones in Illinois and across the country.

In July 2017 Madigan and 29 attorneys general urged the FCC to give telephone service providers authority to block illegal robocalls, including calls from spoofed numbers. As a result, the FCC issued the 2017 Call Blocking Order last November. In comments submitted this week to the FCC, Madigan and the attorneys general express concern that scammers continue to circumvent the carriers' efforts to block unwanted robocalls. The attorneys general are urging the FCC to give providers additional authority to work together to detect and block more illegal spoofed robocalls, including "neighbor spoofing."

"As I continue to try and protect consumers from the nuisance of unwanted robocalls, scammers continue to develop ways to circumvent the technology and the law," Madigan said. "I urge the FCC to act quickly and encourage providers to develop and implement new detection and blocking technology as soon as possible."

"Spoofing" is when a call appears to come from one phone number but is actually coming from a different number, making it difficult to identify the caller or trace the call. Increasingly, scammers are using a technique called "neighbor spoofing," so that calls - no matter where they originate - appear on a caller ID as a phone number with same local area code as the consumer.

In their comments, Madigan and the attorneys general wrote:

"Virtually anyone can send millions of illegal robocalls and frustrate law enforcement with just a computer, inexpensive software and an internet connection."

Despite the FCC's order, robocalls continue to be a consistent complaint by consumers nationwide. In 2017, the Federal Trade Commission received 4.5 million complaints regarding illegal robocalls, two and a half times more than it received in 2014. Illinois consumers filed nearly 300,000 complaints about robocalls in 2017.

In the formal comments, Madigan and the coalition expressed support for the 2017 Call Blocking Order, which gives phone service providers the ability to authenticate legitimate calls and identify and block illegally spoofed calls. The service providers are developing new technology to detect and block illegal spoofed calls, even those coming from what are otherwise legitimate phone numbers. The comments also urge the providers to develop and implement this new technology as soon as possible

Independent colleges key to improving Illinois higher education

David W. Tretter
PRESIDENT FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT ILLINOIS COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Everywhere we turn these days, we are inundated with political ads with the right talking points: creating good jobs, reducing the out-migration of our population, improving the economic vitality of our communities throughout the state. We should challenge our elected leaders to also deliver concrete, realistic recommendations to make that a reality.

In the last 15 years, Illinois disinvested in higher education by $1 billion. The results were devastating: higher tuition, students flocking away from campuses instead of to them, and some institutions left on fiscal life support.

Illinois hasn't conducted a comprehensive review and developed a road map for our state's higher education future for 50 years, since the last 1960s. A group of lawmakers

– the bi-partisan, bi-cameral, Higher Education Working Group – deserves credit for starting down this path and lead key initial steps this year, such as a renewed commitment to need-based MAP funding and the AIM High Scholarship program at public universities for students from middle-income families.

But there is more work to be done, by everyone in Springfield. And our independent colleges and universities should be a key part of the conversation. Our economic impact on our private campuses tops $20 billion. Far more Illinois students stay to attend four-year private schools in state than they do in Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa. We should build on that advantage by offering similar incentives, through targeted state funding, for students who attend independent colleges and universities. Rather than pit publics versus privates, we should level the playing field so all of our colleges can successfully turn around the out-migration and grow and thrive again.

When Illinois students know their best opportunity to succeed is simple – attend here, graduate here, stay here – we all win.

Farm bill expiration fails young people nationwide

By Cody Smith
CENTER FOR RURAL AFFAIRS

The farm bill is the primary method in which our government invests in rural communities across the nation – without it, our farmers would be uncertain and our communities without access to food and other crucial resources. Congress' failure to pass a new bill, or an extension of the existing legislation, has left young people in rural areas with anxiety for the future.

Expiration leaves our nation's beginning farmers and ranchers without access to resources they need to be successful in an aging profession. In 2017, the average age of a farmer was 58 years old. As these farmers hang up their boots, young people must be equipped to handle this transition.

Serious challenges like diminished access to land and capital, an absence of trusted networks, and limited knowledge of available resources can, and are, blocking their entry into the industry.

Before the farm bill expired – taking away funding and the USDA's authority to administer it – the Beginning Farmer and Rancher Development Program helped budding agriculturalists overcome these barriers. The Senate draft farm bill offered a new approach, the Farming Opportunities Training and Outreach Program, that would make a mandatory investment in the next generation. But, lawmakers failed to negotiate and pass a final 2018 farm bill in time.

A farm bill expiration is disheartening to young people across the U.S. because it sends a message that Congress failed to support them. Letting these programs expire shows young people that Congress has other priorities – none of which include the next generation of farmers.

Voices for Illinois Children

By Tasha Green Cruzat
VOICES PRESIDENT

The 2018 election season has seen its share of negative advertising and bitter words. There are many needs when it comes to the well-being of Illinois children. It is important that those issues stay front and center not only in the final month of the campaign season but following the election. These are issues we hope both Republicans and Democrats will work on in the next General Assembly.

As you listen to the comments of candidates for the Illinois House, Illinois Senate, and statewide offices, consider asking them the following:

Last year, Illinois approved a revision to the school funding formula to get additional dollars to those school districts most in need. While not in statute, proponents pledged to inject an additional $3.5 billion during the next ten years into the educational system to reduce inequities in school funding. Yet, the General Assembly did not approve additional funding. Is the candidate committed to the increased funding and how does he or she plan to provide it?

Ninety-eight percent of Illinois children have health insurance. Yet, having health insurance does not equate to access to medical care. In addition, the state's All-Kids Program, which includes Medicaid, covers 42% of infants, toddlers and preschoolers and 100% of children in foster care. Is the candidate committed to providing the necessary reimbursement rates, whether or not under managed care, to ensure children covered by Medicaid have access to health care?

During the last several years, the state of Illinois has increased funding for early childhood programs. Yet, there are still Illinois children who do not have access to a publicly-funded program. Is the candidate committed to expanding opportunities for such programs to all Illinois children?

Voices is a non-partisan organization. We can't tell you how to cast your vote. However, we at Voices for Illinois Children encourage you let your voice be heard and vote in the upcoming election for candidates working to improve the lives of Illinois children.

Silent Fall now available

Copies of "Silent Fall", Mr. Ingram's latest book are now available to purchase. This book explains how Mr. Ingram believes that the cause of Colony Collapse Disorder (CCD) in honeybees is caused by Roundup and other agricultural sprays that have been sprayed around his community. In fact the book is dedicated to all of the beekeepers who have lost their bees and colonies to our agricultural sprays and have received no compensation from the farmers or the chemical companies or the government. The cost of the book from ENF is $10 plus $4 shipping and handling.

The book also documents how these sprays have for the past 35 years killed most of the birds that were living in this area of the country. It explains how many birds used to be living in this area as documented by Mr. Ingram's banding birds as a Master Bird Bander for over 50 years, and how now there are either none or very few left, with almost no birds seen migrating south this fall.

Over 55 years ago Rachael Carson in her book Silent Spring wrote about a hypothetical spring with no birds. Mr. Ingram is writing about a real silent fall with no birds present to sing or migrate that has been and is being caused by these agricultural sprays.

As a kickoff for this book Mr. Ingram will host a book signing on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 20, at the Burpee Museum in Rockford, IL when ENF sponsors two programs of Live Raptors at 1 and 3 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Lena-Winslow braces for major test

By Chris Johnson
REPORTER

The significance of this Friday night's meeting with the Dakota Indians really can't be overstated for the Lena-Winslow Panthers. There is a lot riding on how a win or loss will affect both the NUIC-Northwest race and the second season, in which the Panthers are the defending champion. With only one loss registered this fall, Lena-Winslow looks to have an excellent chance to secure a high seed and a home game in the first round of next week's Class 1A State Football Playoffs. Even with a loss, they might still stay home. Dakota, subsequently, has a lot more riding on the outcome.

The Indians are coming off a weekend loss to the Northwest's best, Pearl City-Eastland Wildcats. As a result of that win, the Wildcats improved to 8-0 on the season and guaranteed their position as no worse than co-Champion of the best small-school conference in the State of Illinois. They beat Forreston in week four 34-8. The Cardinals have won the State Title twice in the past three years. Pearl-City Eastland also knocked off Lena-Winslow, in one of its closest battles of the season., 20-14. This past week they took down Dakota. They won the title with the game eight victory.

Currently, the Panthers are 7-1 and alone in second place in the Northwest. Dakota sits one game behind them with a 6-2 mark. Both NUIC members are already in the post-season. At this point, Lena-Winslow gets the edge to open at home, unless Dakota pulls off its biggest win of the season. At this point, the Indians are looking to head out on the road to start things off. A win over Lena-Winslow, for them, could keep them in eastern Stephenson County and send the defending champ away for the weekend. There's quite a bit riding on the regular season closer in Dakota.

Lena-Winslow ran the ball well in its week eight winner. They pushed through and over the Durand-Pecatonica Rivermen to claim win seven of the season, 41-22. The Rivermen would score, but it would not be until late in the night, with the game already well in hand for the Panthers. They are going to have to find that same type of success against Dakota on the road in the week nine match.

Help us bring LIGHT TO THE FIGHT!

Early detection is the most effective weapon we have in the fight against breast cancer, so OSF HealthCare wants to make sure every woman 40 or older, or who is at high-risk for breast cancer, is getting a regular mammogram.

Our goal is to perform more than 1,000 mammograms by the end of October - Breast Cancer Awareness Month. When we hit our goal, we'll bathe the hospital in pink spotlights to shine a light on the community's commitment to fighting breast cancer.

As a bonus, every woman who gets a mammogram at OSF HealthCare now through October receives a free packable tote (while supplies last). Women getting their first mammogram also receive a voucher for a free chair massage at the Rejuvenation Center at OSF HealthCare Saint Anthony Medical Center.

The Indians defense has been staunch and the only team that has been stingier this season has been the Pearl City-Eastland Wildcats. Through eight games, they've allowed just over eight points a night. Dakota has allowed about double that, at 15 points nightly. It's well below what the conference-leading Panthers have scored, on average. With one game to play in the regular season, Lena-Winslow has put up nearly 300 points this year. It's a touchdown more a night than even the 2018 champion has accomplished.

Kick-off for this Friday night's match is slated for around 7:30 p.m. It is expected that the NUIC Northwest battle will achieve "Game of the Week" status, as a guarantee now. When the season started, the week nine battle with Dakota was already circled on the Lena-Winslow calendar.

Other key week nine match-ups from the NUIC Northwest include the Forreston Cardinals looking to secure a possible home game in the first round of the upcoming playoffs. They are expected to get a seasoned-response from Amboy/LaMoille/Ohio.

The Clippers, even with their win over Galena this past Friday night, did not have a chance to become play-off-eligible. That option was eliminated through back-to-back losses to this Friday night's, Dakota opponents. The Clippers were sunk courtesy of a week six loss to the Panthers 72-37 and a week seven loss to Dakota 22-14.

Pearl City-Eastland is involved in another NUIC key match. They face the Polo Marcos who dispatched Ashton-Franklin Center 42-14 to become eligible with win number five. The chance to make the post-season with a 5-4 mark is extremely high for Polo, which looks to be heading out on the road anyway, when the State Tournament begins next Friday night.

Orangeville Lions serve their community

By John Day
CORRESPONDENT

Melvin Jones was born on a U.S. Army outpost on the Arizona Territory in 1879. As a young adult Jones moved to Chicago where he founded a successful insurance business and became involved in community affairs. In 1916 Jones convinced other businessmen and public officials to join an effort to develop an organization that would provide services of many different kinds to the community. The organization would become the Lions Club.

Google hints, tips, and tricks for everyone

A special event for Family History Month sponsored by Green County Genealogical Society and the Monroe Public Library will be held Friday, Oct. 19; at 6:30 p.m. David Bradford will present "Google Hints, Tips, and Tricks for Everyone." Have you had trouble finding the results you wanted from Google searches — or gotten too many results? Learn how to efficiently search using Google.

For this event, the library doors open at 6 p.m. with the program starting at 6:30 p.m. in the second floor meeting room. Suggested donation for the program is $10. Please pre-register by calling 608-328-7436 and leaving your name and phone number or visit our website <https://www.greencogenealogywi.org/upcoming-events.html>. Pre-registration will help us estimate of handouts needed. Walk-ins are also welcome.

Today, there are 46,000 local clubs worldwide with a membership of nearly 2 million. Here in Northwest Illinois there are 54 local clubs. One of those local clubs is in Orangeville. A founding member of the Orangeville club is Barb Stewart, who is now a Lions Club District Governor. Stewart said, "The Lions Club is a service organization that uses volunteering and fundraising to give back to the community regardless of need. Our District is very large geographically. The District stretches east from the Mississippi River to Genoa and from the Wisconsin border south to Sterling. The Lions Club is an organization that is growing. When the Orangeville Lions Club was founded in 2012 there were 20 members. Today the number is closer to 50.

"Many people make a connection between the Lions Clubs and our efforts to obtain prescription eye glasses for those in need. We do much more, however. In addition to helping the visually impaired we support scholarship efforts for young people and assisting those involved with the Special Olympics. We try and make vision screenings available for those in need and we're ready to help our communities with any needs whatsoever. My Governors Project is raising awareness about diabetes in people of all ages."

Glen Hagemann had also been a charter member of the Orangeville club. Hagemann is currently President of that local club. Hagemann said, "This is a very busy, hard working group. In addition to the annual Lions Club candy sales we also work the Cub Foods brat stand in Freeport which is a major fundraiser for us. We also work with the school district in our scholarship program. Any time there is a need in the community we try and find a way to provide some assistance.

"Barb Stewart has asked the local clubs in our district to sponsor events that highlight diabetes. Diabetes is on the increase and can lead to a host of health issues. Here in Orangeville our club is planning on sponsoring a health fair and fund raiser which will offer people the opportunity to learn about the warning signs of this disease. There will be a nurse in attendance and we're hoping to be able to provide information to a lot of people. There is no charge for admission to the health fair or a screening.

"We'll also be combining this health screening with a fundraising effort. The fundraiser will be called the Loaded Potato Luncheon. We'll be serving baked potatoes covered with your favorite toppings for $3. There will also be healthy, delicious salads for $2."

On Oct. 12 and 13, Lions Clubs across America participated in their annual Candy Day Sale. Volunteers were out on the streets and in neighborhoods offering the trademark candies as a thanks for donations. Nancy Albertson and Teresa Kreider were at the BOCO gas station near Route 26, doing what they've done several times; volunteering. Albertson said, I've been a Lioness for more than 10 years. This is a great way to give back, say hello to neighbors and meet a few new people all at once."

The Health Fair will be held at the Orangeville United Methodist Church located at 111 S. East Street on Nov. 3. Hours and further details will be announced soon. To contact the Orangeville Lions Club, look at their Facebook page.

LOVE NEVER DIES GRIEF WORKSHOP

FHN and Highland Community College Present: What if I don't feel very merry?

The emotions and grief that come after the death of a loved one can be overwhelming. You are not alone. Join us for an all-day workshop designed to provide support to help you through the healing process including presentations and group breakout sessions.

Presentation Topics and Group Sessions include:

- Grief vs. Depression—Gabriel Gonzalez, MSW, FHN Family Counseling Center Executive Director
- Re-identifying Yourself After a Loss—Sean Huguenin, MATH, MACM, FHN Spiritual Coordinator, FHN Memorial Hospital
- Healthy Living While Grieving—Rebecca Pedersen, MD, FHN
- Art Therapy
- Pet Therapy

Each family will take home a keepsake teddy bear in remembrance of their loved one along with a book titled, "How Will I Get Through the Holidays?" by James E. Miller.

To register or to learn more about the FHN Love Never Dies Grief Workshop, visit www.FHN.org/grief. Registration deadline is October 8.

Contact Sean Huguenin at 815-599-6160 with questions.
