Did you know?

It's the most wonderful time of year! There is excitement in the air. Special events fill the calendar, as we try to spend a little extra time with those who are dear to us. We put more effort into trying to make others feel special. Traditions are remembered, memories are shared, and we reconnect with what is truly important to us. With all this cheer, somehow we tend to get caught up in the hustle and bustle, as we add just one more event upon another; and the stress builds.

Fighting the crowds, travel, uneasy conversation, and remembering those who are no longer with us, can turn bliss into holiday stress. Our immune system is also stressed. Not only is it cold and flu season, but the days are shorter, we sleep less, eat heavier foods, and drink more. As we try to please everyone, we feel overwhelmed and out of control.

We cannot avoid everything that causes stress in our lives, but we can help our body to function at its best level. Ronald Pero, Ph.D., Chief of Cancer Prevention Research at New York's Preventative Medicine Institute, and Professor in Environmental Health at New York University, has conducted a tremendous amount of research, and has published over 160 reports in peer-reviewed journals. Pero found that chiropractic patients were shown to have a 200% greater immune competence, than those who have not received chiropractic care. Could you use that extra boost this holiday season, and in the coming New Year?
