Form #5SPDA.10.1.2014

Author Walter W. Reed to visit Woodstock

By Anne Eickstadt,
Correspondent

With Tag Days and the Christmas Clearinghouse behind them, the Interact Club [the Rotary's service club for teenagers] of the Woodstock Rotary Club is jumping headfirst into 2016. They are hosting a visit by author Walter W. Reed to the Woodstock Opera House on Saturday, January 30.

Reed grew up in a Bavarian village near Wurzburg. He personally experienced the Nazi persecution of Jews, including, at the age of 14, being arrested on Kristallnacht. Kristallnacht or The Night of Broken Glass was a massive, coordinated attack on Jews throughout the German Reich on the night of November 9, 1938. The violence continued into the next day.

On November 9, mob violence broke out as the German police stood by and crowds of spectators watched. Nazi storm troopers, members of the SS, and Hitler Youth beat and murdered Jews, broke into and wrecked Jewish homes, and brutalized Jewish women and children. All over Germany, Austria, and other Nazi controlled areas, Jewish businesses had their windows smashed and contents destroyed. Synagogues were especially targeted for vandalism, including desecration of sacred Torah scrolls. Hundreds of synagogues were systematically burned while local fire departments stood by or simply prevented the fire from spreading to surrounding buildings.

About 25,000 Jewish men were rounded up and later sent to concentration camps where they were often brutalized by SS guards and in some cases randomly chosen to be beaten to death. On November 12, at a meeting of top Nazi officials. SS leader Reinhard Heydrich reported 7500 businesses destroyed, 267 synagogues burned (with 177 totally destroyed) and 91 Jews killed.

The reaction to Kristallnacht from other countries was shock and outrage. It created a storm of negative publicity in newspapers and among radio commentators which served to isolate Hitler's Germany from the civilized nations and weaken any pro-Nazi sentiments in those countries.

Reed's book, "Children of La Hille", describes his experiences following that horrifying night. Frightened parents were forced to find refuge for their children, far from the escalating anti-Jewish violence. To that end, a courageous group of Belgian women organized a desperate and highly dangerous rescue mission to usher nearly 1000 children out of Germany and Austria.

Of these children, 93 were placed on a freight train, traveling through the night away from their families and into the relative safety of Vichy France. Ranging in age from 5 to 16 years, the children and their protectors spent a harsh winter in an abandoned barn with little food. Eventually, they found shelter in the isolated Chateau de La Hille in southern France. Sending the youngest to the United States, the remaining children were still relentlessly hunted by Nazi soldiers. Finally smuggled into the Swiss Alps to safe houses, all but 11 of these 93 children survived.

Reed's book, 'Children of La Hille', relates a stunning first-hand account of this amazing rescue and the heroic efforts of those who helped them along the way. It describes heart-stopping near misses as the roundups intensify, forcing the children to hide in the woods to escape capture. It tells of scrambling to keep one step ahead of the Nazis, afternoon swims in a nearby pond and lively plays performed for local farmers.

Walter E. Reed, originally named Werner Rindsberg, will present his book at the Woodstock Opera House on Saturday, January 30. His presentation will begin at 1:00 pm. Admission is free. The Interact Club does ask that attendees bring a non-perishable food item for the Woodstock Food Pantry and/or cash donations for Rotary's 'End Polio Now' campaign.

Information on Kristallnacht can be found online at www.historyplace.com/worldwar2/timeline/knacht.htm

More about the Woodstock Rotary Club and Interact can be seen at www.rotarywoodstock.org.
