Stockton celebrates big on July 4th

Stockton, Ill. has a population of 2,000, but on July 4th thousands more people roam the Stockton Memorial Park to take part in festivities and witness an amazing fireworks display. This celebration is easily the largest and longest-running in the region, having grown into a "must-do" event throughout it's more than 50 years in existence.

The day starts off with a 3-on-3 basketball tournament in the Stockton school gyms. This tournament began in 2005 with only 32 teams, and since has grown into a 4th of July staple with at least 80 teams (limited to 100) coming back year after year to compete. Divisions range from boys and girls entering 5th grade all the way through high school seniors. It also features very competitive men's and women's divisions. The tournament has become a "who's who" of current, former, and future northwest Illinois basketball stars. The 3-on-3 has donated over $35,000 to Stockton youth sports and other various school organizations that have volunteered over the years.

When not watching basketball, guests have more than enough to keep them busy. Roam the more than 70 vendor booths set up in the park. Vendors feature everything from crafts to baked goods to home products. And while there are multiple food stands where you can grab a snack, possibly one of the most famous past times of the celebration is the Lions Club chicken dinner. Thousands of people line up throughout the day for a taste of this chicken dinner. Lions Club members cook the chicken right there at the park, starting at 5 am, and end up serving over 3,000 chicken halves. This tradition is in its 54th year.

Back by popular demand this year is a remote control car demo from 4:00 pm to 6:00 pm on the baseball field at the park and a photo booth. All of that not enough? Throughout the day visitors also enjoy Bingo, bounce houses for the kids, a kiddie tractor pull, music, and live entertainment in the afternoon. Check out the band Medicinal Purposes from 5:00 pm to 9 p.m. There is even a classic car show that takes place nearby on W. Maple Ave. And perhaps the most anticipated part of the day happens at dusk when the fireworks begin. Guests are in awe over the non-stop aerial show and ground displays.

For those that want to kick off their 4th of July celebration early, the Annual Stockton 5K/10K will be held July 1. Beginning in 2007, the event had 53 participants and has grown to around 400 participants. The course is fun, yet challenging. Be prepared for entertainment throughout the course by the Stockton High School band and snacks after the race. The Stockton Pool will also be open after to race, free for all participants. The 5K/10K event has donated in total, more than $25,000 to local organizations.

More information about all of the events included in the Stockton 4th of July Celebration can be found online at www.facebook.com/stocktons4th or www.stocktonjuly4.com. Follow the Facebook page for event updates, times and contests. You can also contact Steve Jordan, Chair of the event committee at SJordan@wipfli.com or 815-541-8286. Illinois State Police receive rollover simulator from AAA's Auto Club

The Illinois State Police (ISP) has received a generous donation from AAA through its Auto Club Group Traffic Safety Foundation (ACGTSF). The ACGTSF donated a rollover simulator to be used as an educational tool that demonstrates the dangers of not wearing a properly adjusted seatbelt.

The Rollover Simulator recreates what happens to vehicle occupants during a rollover crash. The simulator works by rotating the trailer-mounted, half-truck up to 30 miles per hour with crash test dummies positioned in the vehicle in place of occupants. The test dummies are initially restrained, and the simulator is rotated. While the dummies are properly restrained, they remain in their seats as the device simulates a rollover crash, highlighting the importance of using seatbelts. The seatbelts are then taken off the dummies and the simulator is again rotated. The dummies are tossed around the inside of the simulator and fly out of the open windows, showing the possibilities of ejection from a vehicle, serious injury, or even death when occupants are not properly restrained.

"The simulator will undoubtedly impact the lives of countless motorists and emphasize the importance of proper seatbelt usage," said ISP Director Leo P. Schmitz. "We are extremely grateful for the Auto Club Group Traffic Safety Foundation's generous, lifesaving donation to help educate motorists of all ages,"

Schmitz added.

The ISP has other rollover simulators in its existing fleet. In 2016, ISP Safety Education Officers conducted 103 demonstrations using a rollover simulator previously donated by AAA. Nearly 85,000 people observed the rollover seatbelt simulator and were impacted by the powerful demonstration of what can happen in a rollover crash if the occupants are not properly restrained.

"We are proud to partner with the Illinois State Police in our mission to change driver behavior and save lives," said Auto Club Group Traffic Safety Foundation Executive Director Amy Stracke. "The addition of this new rollover simulator will allow the ISP to reach even more drivers and passengers and help keep Illinois roadways safe," Stracke said.

Senate lawmakers unveil Capitol Compromise package

Senate Republicans remain adamant that the Senate Democrats' partisan budget and watered-down reforms are a stark departure from the Senate budget and reform package being discussed in bipartisan working groups.

In response, several Senate Republicans, joined by a number of their House colleagues, filed a refreshed compromise plan that places budget negotiations back on the bipartisan track they were on before the Senate majority walked away from negotiations late last month.

The renewed package is based on a balanced budget bill with a four-year hard spending cap of $36 billion and approximately $5 billion in spending reductions and adjustments. Incorporated into the comprehensive plan is a four-year property tax freeze, government consolidation allowing for more local control, workers' compensation reform providing relief to business owners while still protecting workers, education funding reform for more equitable school funding, pension reform that is expected to save taxpayers approximately $1 billion per year, and term limits for legislative leaders and constitutional officers.

Each component included in the budget proposal incorporates critical compromises from both parties, demonstrating Republican lawmakers' willingness to reach across the aisle and work with the majority to put an end to an unprecedented budget crisis that has beset Illinois for two years.

Gov. Rauner has indicated that the compromise budget introduced by Republican lawmakers is a true path forward for Illinois, stating: "Republicans in the General Assembly have laid out a compromise budget plan that I can sign."

Amazon delivers new jobs to Illinois

Despite Illinois' ongoing uphill battle to keep businesses from leaving, one of the world's largest retailers is expanding facilities and bringing jobs to the state.

Amazon Incorporated, an enterprising e-commerce company, continues to expand throughout the state. The global retailer opened another fulfillment facility in northern Illinois back in September, creating approximately 1,000 jobs and continuing Amazon operation expansion in Illinois.

The e-commerce giant's Romeoville facility is just one of five current fulfillment centers operating in Illinois with another four facilities expected to be up and operating by 2018, bringing with them more than 8,000 jobs from all nine facilities throughout the state.

The successful expansion of Amazon's facilities throughout the state and the job growth being generated underscores the importance of fostering business development in Illinois. According to Senate Republicans, this means putting an end to the policies that drive businesses out and implementing critical reforms, like workers' compensation reform and significant property tax relief, which make Illinois more business-friendly and competitive with surrounding states.

Galena businesswoman announces candidacy for Illinois Legislature

Democratic businesswoman Ann Cameron Williams of Galena will roll out her campaign for State Representative in Illinois' 89th Legislative District at 10 a.m., Thursday, June 22, in Freeport's Debate Square, the site of an historic 1858 Lincoln-Douglas debate. The public is encouraged to attend.

A native of northern Illinois, Williams has never run for elected office, but decided to do so during the divisive 2016 presidential campaign. "I want to be part of positive solutions in government, and I'm willing to work with anyone to solve problems and improve issues for working families in the 89th District." She pledges to run a positive, collaborative, and relationship-grounded campaign.

Williams owns ao Strategies, a national consulting firm that helps disability organizations renew and sustain themselves. "My expertise in designing large scale programs, identifying problems and generating solutions for organizations that serve people in need has provided me with skills that I will put to work for the people of the 89th District." Williams says she is committed to helping make the lives of hard-working families better. She understands the pressures that they face - not enough time, not enough money, not enough hands to help when help is needed, and the sense of helplessness that sinks in when there are inadequate resources to help care for children and aging parents. "I'll work tirelessly for affordable healthcare, outstanding schools, well-paid jobs, pro-labor initiatives and for a balanced budget for Illinois."

Prior to starting her own company, Williams held executive positions with Easterseals and with The Arc of the United States, both of which assist people with disabilities. She is mother to a young man with Down Syndrome, has three rescue dogs, and is the proud owner of a Harley Davidson.

Legislation expands Presidential Records Act Preservation to include social media

Today, U.S. Representative Mike Quigley (IL-05), co-founder and co-chair of the Congressional Transparency Caucus, introduced the Communications Over Various Feeds Electronically for Engagement or "COVFEFE" Act. This bill codifies vital guidance from the National Archives by amending the Presidential Records Act to include the term "social media" as a documentary material, ensuring additional preservation of presidential communication and statements while promoting government accountability and transparency.

"In order to maintain public trust in government, elected officials must answer for what they do and say; this includes 140-character tweets," said Rep. Quigley. "President Trump's frequent, unfiltered use of his personal Twitter account as a means of official communication is unprecedented. If the President is going to take to social media to make sudden public policy proclamations, we must ensure that these statements are documented and preserved for future reference. Tweets are powerful, and the President must be held accountable for every post."

In 2014, the National Archives released guidance stating its belief that social media merits historical recording. President Trump's unprecedented use of Twitter calls particular attention to this concern. When referencing the use of social media, White House Press Secretary Sean Spicer has said, "The president is president of the United States so they are considered official statements by the president of the United States."

President Trump's tweets frequently make national news and are a topic of everyday conversation, including deciphering the meaning behind his tweet using the previously unheard of term, "covfefe." While his personal account has become the de facto account for government business, it is unclear as to whether or not it would be archived in the same manner as the official @POTUS account under the Presidential Records Act. Another concern relates to President Trump's frequent deletion of tweets. Including social media in the Presidential Records Act ensures that deleted tweets are documented for archival purposes, and makes deleting tweets a violation of the Presidential Records Act, subject to disciplinary action.

In Congress, Rep. Quigley is working to combat the Trump Administration's recent efforts to roll back transparency. In March, he introduced the Making Access Records Available to Lead American Government Openness (MAR-A-LAGO) Act, a bill that requires the publication of visitor logs to the White House or any other location where President Trump regularly conducts official business, including various Trump Organization properties frequented by the president. Last month, he questioned the Acting Administrator for the General Services Administration (GSA) about the Trump International Hotel lease and possible conflicts of interest.

How does your garden grow?

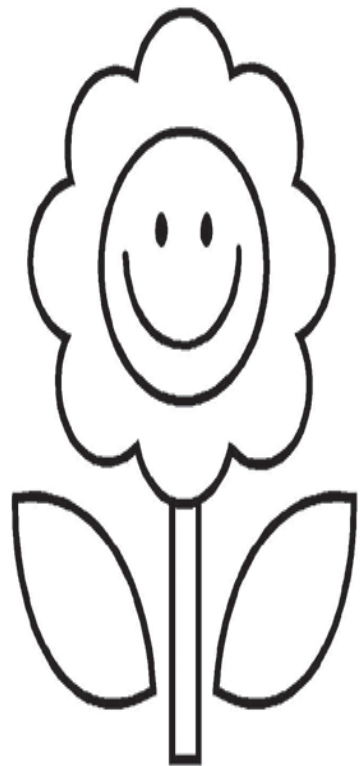

Children are natural gardeners. They're curious, like to learn by doing, and love to play in the dirt. Working in a garden, a child can experience the satisfaction that comes from caring for something over time, while observing the cycle of life firsthand. Gardening gives children a chance to learn an important life skill, one that is overlooked in standard school curriculums. Gardening is also a great way to teach environmental awareness by exploring the workings of nature.

What to plant

Our children were involved with gardening from an early age, and it was gratifying to watch their interest and self-esteem grow as their gardening efforts yielded good results. Although there are many crops suitable for the young gardener, here are our "top five", which are relatively easy to grow, have short growing seasons and are fun to harvest.

Sunflower

A must for a youngster's garden. Plant just one or two, since they take a lot of room. Sunflowers will sprout in 1 week, become a small seedling in 2 weeks, and should be 2' tall in a month. In 8 weeks, the buds will flower revealing hundreds of seed kernels. Be sure to grow 'confectionery' sunflowers, the type grown for food. They will dry naturally in the late summer sun; the seeds, rich in protein and iron, can be roasted for snacks. Save a few for next summer's planting.

Lettuce

A quick and reliable crop to give the child fast results, and also a good way to interest kids in salads. Lettuce likes part shade; keep soil moist especially during the first two weeks. The seeds will germinate in 7-10 days; growing season is 40-50 days. You can grow 'head' (space 8" apart) or 'leaf' (space 4" apart) varieties; the leaf varieties will mature sooner, about 30-35 days.

Bush beans

Fast, easy, high yield and, because they do not grow tall, they are easy for kids to harvest. Bush beans germinate in 4-8 days, and mature in 40-65 days. It's best to plant a small patch, then another in a few weeks. This will extend the harvest. When choosing seeds, select the "low bush" varieties because these will be easier for children to harvest. Plant closely spaced, about 4" apart. Grow in direct sun; water the soil but try to keep the leaves dry. Bush beans don't need poles or trellises to grow.

A quick-growing early crop, and fun for kids to eat right off the vine. They take about 10 days to germinate and mature in about 60 days. Peas prefer cooler, partially shaded locations in the garden; they should be sown closely, about 1" apart at most. Snow peas are popular because the pod is edible and since they are a dwarf plant they can be grown without a trellis.

Cherry tomatoes

Gotta have 'em! These may be the most fun crop for a child, aside from strawberries. Plant in full sun and use seedlings rather than planting from seed. Put in a 2' stake alongside each seedling; they need to be tied loosely to stakes as they get taller. Add lots of compost. Water at ground level, trying to keep leaves dry. Growing season is 50-75 days. Cherry tomatoes can also be grown in containers.

Five fun facts

Got allergies?

Sneezing with your eyes open is impossible.

Don't stand on the dinner table.

Butterflies taste food by standing on top of it! Their taste receptors are in their feet unlike humans who have most on their tongue.

Clean your room.

Most of the dust in your home is actually dead skin! Yuck!

What time is it?

Even if an analog clock is broken, at least it shows the correct time twice a day.

What?

The trickiest tongue twister in the English language is apparently "Sixth sick sheik's sixth sheep's sick". Give it a try and see for yourself.

Build a spaceship

Hello to all you future engineers and astronauts. This week on The Scoop Today kids page you will have the chance to work on designing and building equipment in outer space. Let's get started.

Design and build your own spaceship, space station or satellite. What features will you add to make your creation safe as it travels in space?

Introduction:

Manmade objects that are designed for use in space are complex engineering feats that take a lot of design and planning. Examples include such things as the International Space Station, spaceships and satellites.

Put your design and building skills to the test by creating one of these objects using an available resource such as K'Nex, Lego or various recycled household objects (including cardboard, tin foil, soft drink bottles, milk cartons, newspaper and more).

Instructions:

Choose which space object you would like to build.

Decide on what equipment you will use to make your space station, spaceship or satellite.

Plan the design on paper before you start building.

Start building! Try to follow your original design as much as possible but it's ok to make changes as you go.

When you've finished, show off your finished creation to your family and friends and answer any questions they might have regarding your project.

Stuff to think about:

Why did you choose to build this?

Do astronauts live in your creation? If yes, where?

What was the hardest part of building your space object?

How well do you think you followed your original design?

What would you do differently next time?

Prevent tick bites with these five tips

Compiled by Tony Carton
EDITOR

If you plan on spending time enjoying the great outdoors this summer, don't forget to protect yourself from deer ticks. They may be tiny, but ticks are capable of transmitting serious illnesses like Lyme disease. To learn about how to protect yourself from ticks please peruse the following tips.

Choose proper clothing

If you're going to be spending time in wooded areas or tall grasses, wear long pants, long-sleeved shirts and closed-toe shoes. Wearing light colored clothing will make it easier to spot ticks.

Maintain your yard

To keep your own yard tick-free, keep grass cut low and remove weeds, woodpiles and debris, which can attract ticks and other pests. Keep shrubs, bushes, and other vegetation well pruned, particularly around patios and play areas.

Wear insect repellent

Wear a bug spray containing at least 20% DEET when outdoors, and reapply as directed on the label.

Hike smart

When hiking, do your best to stay in the center of trails, away from vegetation where ticks may be hiding and waiting to hitch a ride.

Don't forget about pets

Avoid walking dogs in tall grass, where fleas and ticks often hide, and inspect pets for ticks on a routine basis. Just like humans, pets can contract Lyme disease from blacklegged ticks.

By following these tips, you and your family can take advantage of beautiful summer days without the dangerous health consequences that a tick bite can cause. If you consistently notice ticks on your property, contact a pest professional to determine the best course of tick control and treatment.

FHN Orthopedic Services Open House is June 28

According to arthritis.org, the rate of knee replacements jumped 120 percent over a recent 10-year period – and the number of surgeries done on 45- to 64-year-olds rose 188 percent. It's never too early to learn about the latest advances in this procedure.

The FHN Orthopedic Services team will hold an open house for the public from 5:30 – 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 28, at the FHN Family Healthcare Center – Burchard Hills, 1010 W. Fairway Drive in Freeport.

A brief presentation on TRUMATCH® will introduce this personalized knee replacement now offered by FHN, in which a three-dimensional scan of a patient's leg allows the creation of customized surgical guides. These guides, specific to each patient's own anatomy, enhance the positioning and alignment of the implant, which is crucial to its overall performance. (Researchers have found that a misalignment as slight as three degrees can lead to uneven wear, instability, and increased risk of revision surgery.)

The event will also give attendees the chance to meet FHN's orthopedic specialists and surgery team and tour our physical rehab facility, the staff of which plays a critical role in the recovery from knee replacement surgery.

The open house is free to attend; refreshments and giveaways will be provided. No registration is necessary.

Powerball, Mega Millions could become casualty of Illinois budget failure

With no state budget in hand, two popular lottery games, Powerball and Mega Millions, are on track to be dropped in Illinois, because no budget means the state is not authorized to make payments to the Multi-State Lottery Association or the Mega Millions group.

Discussions to drop Illinois from participating have been underway since 2015, but this is the first time action would be taken if there is no budget in place by June 30.

passion, love and support for men, women and children who have ALL colors of cancer. Sadly, cancer does not discriminate. It does not care whether you are young, old, male or female. The vehicles have thousands of permanent signatures and/or messages to our survivors or those who have lost the battle to cancer.

Over the past four years, a dedicated group of volunteers have raised over $15,000 that has been donated to The Leonard G Ferguson Cancer Center, FHN Hospice nurses, wellness program at the Stephenson County Health Department and gift cards for groceries and/or gas to many families in our community that have been devastated by cancer.

As with any community, the more the community works together, the stronger the community is. Remember, all monies raised stay in our community. Any amount of a donation would be greatly appreciated. If you are looking to be part of this

Pet Talk: Protect your pet from Canine Influenza

At the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences (CVM) veterinarians are working to educate pet parents about the recent outbreak of canine influenza in Georgia and Florida that could affect dogs in Texas.

Just like humans, pets can be affected by strains of influenza and experience flu-like symptoms. The strains of influenza that affect dogs are highly contagious and spread through particles in the air. However, the disease is typically not life-threatening when treated and is not transmissible to humans.

"The most common symptoms of canine flu include coughing and lethargy, as well as decreased appetite and fever," said Dr. Stacy Eckman, clinical assistant professor at the CVM. "In some cases, the infection can progress to pneumonia, especially when the flu is complicated by other respiratory bacteria or viruses."

The canine flu should be treated as soon as possible. If you are worried your pet is experiencing symptoms of the canine flu, contact your veterinarian before going in to their office. This allows the veterinarian to prepare for the visit and potentially decrease exposure to other pets.

If you live in an area where the canine flu has been reported, consider keeping your dog away from other dogs by staying clear of the dog park or kenneling your dog.

Canine influenza is a relatively new virus in dogs, but there are vaccines available to help protect your pet. The vaccine does not prevent your pet from getting infected or spreading the virus, but it may reduce your pet's symptoms

"The vaccine is recommended for pets that go to dog shows, including hunting and agility; are kenneled or boarded; visit grooming salons or doggie day cares regularly; or are around a high number of dogs that visit these areas," Eckman said.

If your pet becomes infected with the canine flu, a veterinarian can provide supportive care and medications to make the pet feel better. In the meantime, consider your options for preventing your pet from facing this illness again in the future, such as with a vaccine.

As a pet parent, it is important to provide your dog with excellent healthcare. Talk with your veterinarian about reducing the chances of your dog being impacted by canine influenza.

Free vein screenings available June 27 at FHN Vein Center

Painful legs can be a sign of venous disease, which can lead to varicose veins, leg sores and even serious circulation problems like blood clots. The experts at the FHN Vein Center can help.

"The veins in your legs have a big job - getting blood back up to your heart for re-oxygenation," said FHN Director of Surgical Services George Lester, BSN, CNOR, RNFA. "When those veins don't work correctly, the swelling and pain that result can keep you from enjoying many of the daily activities of life, and may cause serious health problems."

The FHN Vein Center offers free screenings for leg vein issues each month at FHN Memorial Hospital. The next screening date is Tuesday, June 27; appointments are available from 3 - 6 p.m. by calling 815-599-VEIN (8346).

The FHN Vein Center offers two approaches to venous disease treatment. The first line of treatment, for mild or early cases, involves fitting the patient with compression hose to help the leg veins do their work.

For more advanced cases, outpatient surgical treatment can relieve pain and provide a long-term solution to venous disease. The FHN Vein Center offers a number of outpatient procedures featuring rapid recovery. Non-cosmetic treatment options are covered by most commercial health insurance carriers, including Medicare.

More upcoming free screenings are scheduled for 3 - 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 22 and Tuesday, Sept. 26. For more information on venous disease and the FHN Vein Center, visit www.fhn.org or call 815-599-VEIN (8346).

Unitarian Universalists celebrated Flower Communion June 11

In the Spring of every year, Unitarian Universalists the world over celebrate the Flower Communion, which was created June 4, 1923, by Norbert Capek for the church in Prague, Czechoslovakia. His congregation was the most liberal in the country, and people from many diverse religious backgrounds attended. Capek wanted to devise a centering, unifying ritual that would celebrate the beauty of the natural world and the unique contributions of each member. The result was the Flower Communion. Each parishioner brings a flower to church and places it in a large vase, which is brought forward at the beginning of the service. At the close of the service, each person (members, guests and visitors) takes a different flower from the vase - so each gives and each receives the blessings of the faith.

This is the prayer written by Dr. Capek for this now historic service:

In the name of Providence, which implants in the seed the future of the flower and in our hearts the longing for people to live in harmony;

In the name of the Highest, in whom we move and who makes the mother and father, brother and sister, lover and loner what they are; In the name of sages and great religious leaders, who sacrificed their lives to hasten the coming of peace and mutual respect

—Let us renew our resolution—sincerely to be real brothers and sisters regardless of any kind of barrier which estranges us from each other.

In this holy resolution may we be strengthened, knowing that we are God's family, that one spirit, the spirit of love, unites us; and may we work for a more peaceful world and a more joyful life for all. Amen.

Dr. Capek was arrested by the Nazi's in 1941 and charged with "high treason" for his outspoken opposition to the Nazi occupation. He died in Dachau in 1942, but the ideals of God's all-inclusive love and freedom of religious belief and expression have lived on and are celebrated in his name every year.

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

We are very close to the first day of summer, and the days have been warm but nice. We have had a little rain—it helps when God waters and I don't have to! This week we are featuring a great dip, an appetizer you will love, a great pasta salad, a beef entrée, and a beautiful strawberry cake.

This dip has a nice little kick to it and serves as a great condiment for cocktail shrimp. It is also good on carrots and celery. One of my friends likes to use it on roast beef sandwiches too. Enjoy this unique flavored condiment.

Honey Horseradish Dip

- 1/2 C. plain Greek yogurt
- 1/4 C. stone-ground mustard

- 1/4 C. honey
- 2 T. prepared horseradish
- Cooked shrimp and other vegetables

Combine the yogurt, mustard, honey and horseradish; refrigerate at least 1 hour. Serve with cooked shrimp and vegetables.

I really like basil pesto. If you have a ton of basil, you can make your own. I buy mine in the grocery store in the refrigerated section. Adding this pesto to spiral pasta and the vegetables will give them a great flavor. I think you could substitute summer squash for the zucchini and green pepper for the red pepper. Serve this with crusty bread as a luncheon course or use as a side salad.

Garden Pesto Pasta Salad

- 3 C. uncooked spiral pasta
- 1/2 C. prepared basil pesto
- 3 T. white wine vinegar
- 1 T. lemon juice
- 1/2 T. salt
- 1/4 t. pepper
- 1/4 C. olive oil
- 1 medium zucchini, halved and sliced
- 1 medium red pepper, chopped
- 1 medium tomato, seeded and chopped
- 1 small onion, halved and thinly

sliced
1/2 C. grated Parmesan
Cook pasta according to package directions; drain and rinse with cold water and drain well.

In a small bowl, whisk together the pesto, vinegar, lemon juice, salt, and pepper. Gradually whisk in the oil until blended. In a large bowl, combine the vegetables and pasta. Drizzle with pesto dressing and toss to coat. Refrigerate, covered, at least an hour. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

Need a good appetizer that uses lots of things you have in your cupboard? This buffalo chicken appetizer has the zingy taste of blue cheese. You can really make this quickly because you use prepared blue cheese salad dressing and rotisserie chicken. You could use the combo of cheddar and Monterey jack cheese if you can't find the Mexican blend. I have mentioned before that A.J.'s Lena Maid Meat bacon is great because you get all bacon and not a lot of fat. It suggests the white corn tortilla chips, but I think you could use the blue tortilla chips as well.

Buffalo Chicken Nachos

- 1/4 C. blue cheese salad dressing
 - 1/2 C. hot sauce
 - 2 T. butter, melted
 - 2 C. shredded cooked rotisserie chicken
 - 1 bag (13 oz.) white corn tortilla chips
 - 1 large tomato, seeded and chopped, about 1 1/2 cups
 - 1/2 C. sliced black olives
 - 1/4 C. jalapeno pepper slices
 - 12 slices cooked bacon, crumbled
 - 1 1/2 C. shredded Mexican cheese blend
 - 1 C. shredded Monterey Jack cheese
 - 2 T. chopped cilantro
- Preheat the oven to 400. Line a large rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper and spray with cooking spray.
- Stir together 1/4 cup blue cheese dressing, hot sauce, and butter in a bowl until well blended. Add chicken and toss to coat.
- Spread tortilla chips evenly on prepared baking sheet. Sprinkle chicken mixture over chips and top with tomato, olives, onion, jalapenos, and bacon.

Are colored sport drinks good or bad?

Compiled by Dr. Mike Wampfler
HEALTH CORRESPONDENT

Sports drinks are an often helpful way to prevent dehydration and depletion of your body's carbohydrate reserves during prolonged physical activity, though not all sports drinks are created equal. Many commercial sports drinks contain questionable ingredients that may unfavorably affect your health. It is important to understand the circumstances in which sports drinks can best support your exercise performance and the ingredients that make up these beverages.

ELECTROLYTES EXPAINED

Electrolytes are ions (and, in some cases, essential minerals) that affect metabolic processes in your body, including the movement of nutrients into your cells and the removal of cellular waste products.

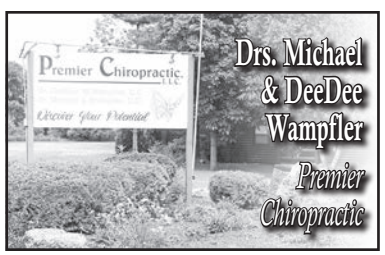

Electrolytes help regulate the acid-base balance in your body necessary for normal cellular function. Sweat that you lose during exercise contains numerous electrolytes, including calcium, magnesium, sodium, chloride, and potassium, among others. Significant sweat loss without electrolyte replenishment may lead to severe dehydration.

EFFECTS OF DEHYDRATION

Your body sweats during exercise to help keep your core temperature constant. The cost of keeping your core temperature at 98.6 degrees, however, is fluid and electrolyte loss. Dehydration can occur quickly with physical activity in extreme environments. The physiological effects of dehydration depend on the percentage of body weight you lose as sweat during prolonged exercise. According to a study published in the International Journal of Sports Medicine, you will experience impaired exercise performance after losing as little as 2 percent of your body weight as sweat (which if you think about it 100lb person losing 2 lbs of sweat is a lot of sweat). A 4 percent body weight loss as sweat significantly reduces your ability to perform muscular work, and sweat-related body weight losses of 5 and 7 percent cause heat exhaustion and hallucinations, respectively. If you lose 10 percent of your body weight as sweat, you will experience circulatory collapse and heat stroke.

CARBOHYDRATE DEPLETION

Carbohydrate depletion – the depletion of your muscle and liver glycogen reserves- is another factor to consider with prolonged, endurance-based activities, such as marathon running. Glycogen is the principle form in which glucose is stored in your liver and muscle tissue. Your body reacts to prolonged periods of physical exertion by releasing hormones that convert glycogen to glucose to maintain your blood glucose levels. When you perform exercise that relies more on carbohydrates as a fuel (as opposed to fats) you can maintain a relatively high intensity for about 2 hours. After 2 hours, your muscle and liver glycogen stores are in danger of being depleted. Further exercise will require the consumption of carbohydrate to starve off low blood sugar levels, fatigue and other detrimental effects to your exercise performance. Ingesting carbohydrate during exercise can help you maintain your body's glycogen levels and provide you with the energy you need to perform your endurance event or activity.

SPORTS DRINK CONSIDERATIONS

Sports drinks, though consumed by many athletes, both recreational and competitive alike, may be most appropriate for individuals participating in vigorous physical activity; that is, amount of exercise lasting at least 45-60 minutes, during which time you are sweating profusely.

Sports drinks may provide little benefit beyond water for individuals participating in low-intensity activity for short durations.

Consider both the duration and intensity of your activity as well as the climate in which you will be exercising before selecting your sports drink.

Common inclusions in many commercial sports drinks, or energy drinks, include caffeine, high-fructose corn syrup, and other added sweeteners.

Caffeine, often found in high quantities in these beverages, stimulates your nervous system and actually may improve your endurance performance.

One study published in the journal Physician and Sports medicine notes that caffeine can increase exercise ventilation and lung function at all workloads in competitive endurance athletes but caffeine may also raise your heart rate and blood pressure. Some people who consume large amounts of caffeine may experience insomnia, irritability, restlessness, headaches, and heart palpitations. High fructose corn syrup and other types of added sweeteners are common ingredients in sports drinks, and they present significant health risks. The Mayo Clinic states that consumption of large amounts of any type of added sugar in beverages, including high-fructose corn syrup, is linked to weight gain, dental cavities, poor nutrition, and elevated triglyceride levels, which may boost your likelihood of a heart attack.

Consider making your own sports drink to promote both health and performance or using other products readily available in many grocery stores. Coconut water contains more potassium than sports drinks, and more natural sources of sodium. A lot of athletes swear by it these days.

The only downside to coconut water is the price. If you want an inexpensive (yet still healthy and tasty) alternative, try this.

Make your own sports drink that doesn't have artificial colors.

One way we can help each other get through these challenging times is to keep our dollars local. Here are three good reasons.

Reason #1: Shopping locally saves you gas and wear and tear on your vehicle.

Reason #2: When you spend your money locally, you support the businesses whose property taxes pay for our municipal services.

Reason #3: Many of our youth programs are supported and sponsored by local businesses and if we don't support them, they can't support our kids.

Combine the cheeses in a bowl and sprinkle evenly over the nachos. Bake until cheese is melted and lightly browned, 12 to 15 minutes. Drizzle with remaining ½ cup of blue cheese dressing and sprinkle with cilantro.

This easy casserole is a good one-dish dinner. Serve a salad and have some bread, and you have a meal fit for company.

Mostaccioli Beef Casserole

- 8 oz. uncooked mostaccioli
- ½ lbs. ground beef
- 1 C. chopped green pepper
- ¾ C. chopped onion
- 2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce
- 1 jar (4½ oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 3 t. chili powder
- 2 t. sugar
- 1 t. salt
- ¼ t. pepper
- 2 T. butter
- 2 C. shredded cheddar cheese

Cook the mostaccioli according to package directions. In a large skillet, cook the beef, pepper and onion over medium heat until meat is no longer pink; drain. Stir in the tomato sauce, mushrooms, chili powder, sugar, salt, garlic powder, and pepper. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer, uncovered for 5 minutes.

Drain mostaccioli; toss with butter. Spread ½ cup meat sauce into a greased 2½ quart baking dish. Top with half of the mostaccioli, meat sauce and cheese. Repeat layers. Bake uncovered, at 350 for 20-25 minutes or until heated through.

This cake is very beautiful and tastes great too. Fresh strawberries are in season now, and this cake is a beautiful way to serve them. It does take a little preparation time, but it is a great cake for any occasion.

Strawberries and Cream Cake

- 2¼ C. cake flour
- 2½ t. baking powder
- 2 C. sugar
- 1 pkg. (3 oz.) strawberry-flavored gelatin
- 2 sticks unsalted butter, softened
- 4 eggs
- 1 C. milk
- ½ C. whole strawberries, pureed
- 1 t. vanilla

Filling and frosting

- 1 ½ C. heavy cream (whipping cream), well chilled
- 2 T. sugar
- 2½ t. vanilla
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1 stick unsalted butter, softened
- 4 C. sifted powdered sugar
- 1½ C. thinly sliced strawberries
- 1½ C. halved strawberries

Preheat oven to 350. Grease and flour three 9-inch round cake pans; place parchment paper in the bottom and spray with cooking spray. Whisk together flour and baking powder in a small bowl. Beat together sugar, gelatin, and butter with an electric mixer in a large bowl until fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat in flour mixture and milk in a few alternating batches until well combined. Fold in pureed berries and vanilla. Divide equally into prepared pans.

Bake with 2 pans on the upper rack and 1 pan on the lower rack until toothpick inserted into center of cakes comes out clean, 20 to 25 minutes. Cool 10 minutes in pans. Turn out cakes and cool completely about 45 minutes on a wire rack.

Filling:

Beat cream in a bowl with an electric mixer on high until frothy. Add sugar and beat until firm peaks form. Fold in ½ teaspoon of vanilla. In another bowl, beat the cream cheese, butter, powdered sugar and remaining 2 teaspoons of vanilla with an electric mixer until creamy.

Assembling the cake:

Set 1 cake layer on a serving plate or cake stand. Spread with a third of the filling and scatter ¼ cup sliced berries. Top with second cake layer, spread with another third of filling, and scatter with remaining ¼ cup sliced berries. Top with third cake layer and spread with remaining third of filling. Frost sides and top of the cake with the frosting and mound quartered berries on the top of the cake

Last week I had a bar recipe for strawberry-lime bars. It used a crust and crumble dough, and it allows you to make several kinds of bars with the dough as the base. This week the combo is raspberry and pineapple bars. This combination has a great taste together even though you may have never paired raspberries and pineapple before. Enjoy these great summer bars.

Crust and Crumble Dough

- 1 C. plus 3 T. unsalted butter, softened
- 1 large egg yolk
- 2 C. flour
- 2/3 C. old-fashioned oats

- 1 C. sugar
 - 1½ t. baking powder
 - ½ t. salt
- Spray a 9 x 13 pan with baking spray and flour. Line the pan with parchment paper, letting excess extend over the sides of the pan.

In a large bowl, beat the butter and egg yolk with a mixer at medium speed until smooth and creamy. In a medium bowl, whisk together flour, oats, sugar, baking powder, and salt. Gradually add the flour mixture to the butter mixture, beating just until combined.

Turn out mixture onto a work surface, and gently knead until a crumbly dough forms. Press three-fourths of the dough into the prepared pan. Reserve the remaining dough in a small bowl.

Raspberry Pineapple Bar Filling

- 2 T. unsalted butter
- 6 C. diced fresh pineapple
- 1 T. firmly packed light brown sugar
- 4 C. fresh raspberries
- ½ C. sugar
- 2 T. cornstarch

Preheat the oven to 375. In a medium saucepan, melt butter over medium heat. Add pineapple and brown sugar; cook, stirring occasionally, until pineapple is tender and mixture is reduced by half. Drain pineapple, discarding liquid. In a large bowl, gently stir together pineapple, raspberries, granulated sugar, and cornstarch. Pour mixture onto prepared Crust and Crumble Dough in pan; crumble reserved dough onto mixture.

Bake until top is lightly browned and filling is hot and bubbly, 45-50 minutes. Let cool completely in part on a wire rack. Using excess parchment as handles, remove from pan before cutting into bars. Store in an airtight container for up to 2 days.

This past Wednesday brought even more people to the Wednesday Gathering in downtown Lena. There was great food, more at the farmer's market—I got some great onions, radishes, and cauliflower for a relish tray I was taking this weekend. There were strawberry pies, turnovers, braided breads, ice cream and drinks. You could even buy just one slice of pizza. The food pantry collected some needed items. This week will feature Rafters Catering, cheese curds, ice cream, and the farmer's market goodies. It will also feature some motorcycles on display. Come and take part in a family friendly evening. We continue to look for summer recipes that feature rhubarb, strawberries, radishes, onions, and asparagus. You can contact us in person, by mail, or email us at From Lena's Kitchens. Shopper's Guide at 213 S. Center St. or email scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com.
