Elizabeth student, Koester, awarded scholarship

College junior Devin Koester, of Elizabeth, has been awarded a $1,500 scholarship from America's Farmers Grow Ag Leaders, sponsored by the Bayer Fund.

In the fall, Koester will continue her studies in plant science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

"Bayer Fund is committed to improving educational opportunities in STEM fields for students in rural communities," Bayer Fund program officer Michelle Insko said in a news release. "The Grow Ag Leaders program provides an opportunity to help youth across the country with college expenses and encourage their pursuit of an ag education."

The future of agriculture will rely on talented young people such as Koester to fill thousands of jobs in a variety of fields, such as plant science, engineering, communications and finance.

Grow Ag Leaders raises awareness of diverse career opportunities in the agriculture industry and provides 352 scholarships nationwide to support students' post-high school ag education.

Grow Ag Leaders scholarships, administered by the National FFA Organization, are available to high school seniors and college students pursuing degrees in ag-related fields.

To be considered, each applicant is required to receive endorsements from two local farmers. FFA members and nonmembers are eligible to apply.

More than $3.2 million in scholarships has been awarded to students since Grow Ag Leaders began in 2014.

America's Farmers Grow Ag Leaders is part of the America's Farmers community outreach initiative. Since 2010, the programs have partnered with farmers to award more than $57 million to nonprofits, aspiring ag students and public schools across rural America.

Other programs include America's Farmers Grow Communities and America's Farmers Grow Rural Education.

Organizers seeking donations for annual Relay for Life event

Organizers of the Carroll/Jo Daviess County Cancer Relay for Life luminaria event are accepting donations.

Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, a virtual luminaria ceremony will be held sometime this fall in conjunction with WCCI radio (100.3 FM) out of Savanna.

Those who have had luminarias purchased in their name will be read, interspersed with music, during this special program that celebrates the lives of those who have battled cancer, remembers loved ones lost and fights back against a disease that has taken too much.

Anyone interested in purchasing a luminaria ($10) in honor/memory of someone should contact Bev Lundquist at 815-244-9684 to get you a form.

Their time to shine

Stockton High School recently held its graduation ceremony for the Class of 2020. While abiding by social distancing guidelines, graduates were instructed to stay in their vehicles — listening to the ceremony through speakers or on WCCI radio — until hearing their names called, when they one by one crossed the stage and picked up their diplomas. The Stockton fire and police departments then led a parade of graduates through downtown.

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

recipes were from her husband's family church cookbook. She says they always have the best! I don't usually make anything she has on the show, but I love to watch her blend Norwegian cooking with her Jewish/Chinese cooking.

This recipe I have below is an appetizer for a picnic or even save it for a holiday party this winter. It is from one of those church cookbooks. Remember that the best dried beef around here is from A.J.'s Lena Maid Meats!

Olive and Beef Spread

1 t. dried minced onion
1 T. milk
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
2 T. mayonnaise
½ C. dried beef, chopped
¼ C. chopped green olives
1 t. dried parsley
Softened onion in milk. Mix cream cheese and mayo. Add onion mixture to cream cheese mixture until well blended. Add chopped beef and olives. Sprinkle with parsley. Chill for one hour. This spread is great on crackers and vegetables.

I love chicken salad in the summer (actually I like it in the winter too!). For this salad, you can use rotisserie chicken; you wouldn't have to heat up the oven to bake it. I like baked chicken better than poached chicken when making chicken salad or casseroles but will poach it if it is 90 degrees out!

When it isn't so hot out, I tend to bake chicken breasts in the oven, cube them up and then put them in plastic bags for the freezer. I have instant chicken then. I also do the same thing with the rotisserie chicken because that is a whole lot of chicken for one person.

Almond Grape Chicken Salad

4 C. shredded, cooked chicken
¾ C. mayonnaise
1/3 C. seedless red grapes, halved
½ C. sliced almonds
2 T. minced green onions
2 T. chopped fresh parsley

1 t. lemon zest
1½ t. fresh lemon juice
¾ t. salt
½ t. pepper
¼ t. garlic powder
In a large bowl, stir together all ingredients until well combined. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour. Keep in refrigerator for four days.

In one of my garage sale cookbooks, I found this casserole. I love chicken casseroles. I apologize to the beef lovers because I had two chicken recipes this week. When it gets cool enough, make this great chicken casserole.

Chicken Asparagus Casserole

1 pkg. frozen asparagus, cooked
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
½ C. chicken broth
1 C. Velveeta cheese, cubed
4 chicken breasts, cooked and cubed
1 sleeve Ritz crackers, crushed finely

1 stick of butter, melted
2 T. poppy seeds
Preheat oven to 350. Add ½ cup chicken broth to cheese and melt on low heat. Take off the burner and stir in undiluted soups. In a 9-by-13-inch pan sprayed with cooking spray, layer soup mixture for the bottom layer, then the cubed chicken and finally the asparagus. Combine the melted butter and crushed crackers. Spread on the asparagus and sprinkle with poppy seeds. Bake for 45 minutes.

I love key lime pie. I know I have had recipes in before, but this one was from a Southern cookbook, so I knew it had to be good. It is a great summer dessert. You could cheat and use a Keebler crust!

Key Lime Pie Classic Style

1¼ C. graham cracker crumbs
¼ C. firmly packed brown sugar
2 cans (14 oz. each) sweetened condensed milk
1 C. key lime juice
2 eggs
1 2/3 C. cold heavy whipping cream
¼ C. powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 350. In a medium bowl, stir together graham cracker crumbs, brown sugar and melted butter until well combined. Press mixture into bottom and up sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake until lightly browned, about 10 minutes. Let cool completely. Leave oven on.

In a large bowl, whisk together condensed milk, lime juice and eggs until well combined. Pour into prepared crust. Bake until set, about 12 minutes. Let cool completely on a wire rack. Cover and refrigerate until cold, at least two hours. Just before serving, in a large bowl beat cream and powdered sugar with a mixer at high speed until stiff peaks form, 2 to 3 minutes. Spread onto pie. Garnish with lime. Chill in the refrigerator for at least an hour.

I had never heard of "brookie" until I started reading cooking magazines. A brookie is any brownie batter that has marbled cookie dough in it. This one is a combo of chocolate brownies and peanut butter. Enjoy these rich and decadent bars.

Chocolate-Peanut Butter Brookies

1 pkg. (4 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, broken into small pieces
¼ C. butter
3 C. sugar, divided
4 eggs, divided
2 t. vanilla, divided
1 C. flour
1 C. creamy peanut butter
½ C. dry roasted peanuts, chopped

Preheat the oven to 350. Spray a 9-by-13-inch pan with cooking spray. Line with parchment with ends of parchment extending over sides. Microwave chocolate and butter in large microwaveable bowl on high 2 minutes or until butter is melted. Stir until chocolate is completely melted and mixture is well blended. Add 2 C. sugar, 3 eggs and 1 t. vanilla; mix well. Stir in flour. Pour into prepared pan.

Beat remaining egg in medium bowl with mixer until foamy. Add all remaining ingredients, including remaining sugar and vanilla; mix well. Drop in large spoonfuls evenly over brownie batter in pan. Bake 20 minutes and cover. Bake an additional 20 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out with fudgy crumbs. Do not overbake. Cool completely. Use parchment handles to remove brownie from pan before cutting to serve.

Closing thoughts

I hope you all had a great Fourth of July. I know it probably was much quieter than usual. I did think that the heat probably would have really impacted the people who would have gone to the fair. When the fair was in August, it was terribly hot and usually stormy. If it would have been this year, the weather probably would have had been the same — hot and humid.

One good thing about the nice rains in June and the warm weather is that my lilies are blooming; they are breathtaking. The ones in my back garden are as big as a dinner plate. The ones by my deck are a beautiful, deep purplish red.

I got a slow start on my herbs this year and put them in pots on my deck steps. I have used some parsley and basil. I planted some lavender for the smell, and it makes the back deck smell great. I can't wait for some garden produce to start being harvested.

I guess the Fourth signals that summer is half over, and so is this year. One wonders what is in store for the second half of 2020. Keep safe and healthy.

If you have any summer recipes you think readers would like, contact me in person, by mail at From Lena's Kitchens, Shopper's Guide, 213 S. Center St. in Lena, or email me at scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com.

Pavino, of Scales Mound; Linzy Friedlein and Emma Vanderheyden, of Stockton; and Emma Baker, of Winslow.

Numerous area students named to dean's lists

Madelyn Cocagne, of Apple River, a third-year student majoring in athletic training, made the dean's list at Iowa State University this spring.

Nathan Lott, of Pearl City and in his fourth year, also accomplished the feat while majoring in agricultural systems technology.

Other area students to make the list at their respective institutions for the spring semester included:

- Lillian Schierloh, of Lena, at the University of Findlay (Ohio)

- Junior Colton Brinker, of Lena, at the University of Minnesota-Duluth in the College of Education & Human Service Professionals.

Dubuque dean's list features area students

The University of Dubuque has recognized students who made its dean's list for the spring semester.

To be named to the list, a student must earn a grade point average of 3.5 or higher on a 4.0 scale.

A host of area students earned that status: Thomas Gorgosz and Tabria Thomas, of Elizabeth; Ty Chrisman of Lena; and Cessli D'Antonio, Megan Gille, Alexander Staver, Caeden Upmann and Kara Wright of Stockton.

IRENE SCHUBERT

Irene May Schubert, 89, of Stockton, IL, passed away Wednesday, July 1, 2020, at home surrounded by her loving family. She was born Saturday, April 25, 1931, in Jo Daviess County at the farm home of her parents, Chester McKinley Pilson and Gladys May (Willis) Pilson.

She attended the Upper Kent School in Kent, IL, for eight years, and then graduated from Pearl City High School in 1948. Irene married James Eugene Schubert on Friday evening, Feb. 4, 1949, in the Methodist parsonage living room in Stockton by Rev. Glen Ames.

Irene loved her job as a mother, grandmother, great grandmother and homemaker. She loved the Lord, her family, church family and many, many friends. She also loved cooking, canning, gardening, flowers, hobbies and family get-togethers. She taught Sunday school for many years and the MYF young people for 10 years. She and Jim enjoyed ballroom dancing and enjoyed square dancing for 20 years with the Stockton Twirl-A-Ways Club, making a lot of wonderful friends.

She helped on the farm and worked for the USDA-ASCS office for 25 years. She was a member of Kent United Methodist Church, the women's group and the Stockton Women's Club. Time spent with her family, friends and with the Lord was an important part of her life.

Irene is survived by her two sons, James M. (Judy) Schubert, of Stockton, and Tony P.

(Dixie) Schubert, of Kent; her two daughters, Deborah D. (Robert) Gallo, of Parker, CO, and Marilyn M. Zueger, of Wheaton, IL; her son-in-law Erwin A. # Crop acreage reporting deadlines approaching

Agricultural producers who have not completed their crop acreage reports after spring planting should make an appointment with their local Farm Service Agency office before the applicable deadline.

July 15 is a major deadline for most crops, but acreage reporting deadlines vary by county and by crop. Contact your FSA county office for acreage reporting deadlines that are specific to your county.

In Jo Daviess County, the FSA office is located in Elizabeth. Call 815-858-3418. In Stephenson County, call 815-235-2141.

"The first step to become eligible for many USDA programs is to file an accurate crop acreage report," FSA Administrator Richard Fordyce said in a news release. "To file your acreage report, call your local FSA office to make an appointment."

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the FSA has implemented acreage reporting flexibilities. It can work with producers to file timely acreage reports by phone, email, online tools and virtual meetings. Some FSA offices are open for in-person appointments, but you must call first to make an appointment.

Many FSA offices are using Microsoft Teams software to virtually meet with producers to review maps and documents for certification. Producers who want to schedule a virtual appointment can download the Microsoft Teams app on their smartphone or tablet and call the FSA office for an appointment. You may also use Microsoft Teams from your personal computer without downloading software.

County offices can provide producers with maps along with instructions for completing and returning the maps through mail, email or commercially available free and secure online tools such as

Box for file sharing and OneSpan for eSignature solutions. After planting is complete, producers should return completed maps and the acreage reporting sheet by the applicable deadline.

After completed maps and all acreage reporting information is received, the FSA will make software updates and send producers the completed Report of Acreage form (FSA-578) to sign. Producers must return the signed form certifying their acreage report to the FSA office through mail, email or the Box and OneSpan tools by the applicable deadline.

The following exceptions apply to acreage reporting dates:

- If the crop has not been planted by the acreage reporting date, the acreage must be reported no later than 15 calendar days after planting is completed.

- If a producer has not timely filed an acreage report, the producer may file the acreage report within 30 days of the acreage reporting date. Because of the pandemic, late fees will be waived if filed within the 30 days.

- The FSA also is providing additional flexibilities for producers to file on acres with failed crops or crops that were prevented from planting because of extreme weather events.

For insured crops, producers who timely filed a prevented planting claim with the reinsurance company but filed a Notice of Loss (CCC-576) form after the deadline will be considered timely filed for FSA purposes. For uninsured crops, producers may start a Notice of Loss by calling their FSA county office.

- Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program policyholders should note that the acreage reporting date for NAP-covered crops is the earlier of the dates listed above or 15 calendar days before grazing or harvesting of the crop begins.

When producers are working with FSA staff – either in-person or virtually – they also can take care of applications for other FSA programs, including the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program (CFAP).

A CFAP call center is available for producers who would like additional one-on-one support with the CFAP application process. Call 877-508-8364 to speak directly with a USDA employee. The call center can provide service to non-English speaking customers.

Applications also can be submitted for the Wildfire and Hurricane Indemnity Program Plus for 2018 and 2019 as well as other disaster assistance programs that may be able to assist producers at this time.

In my opinion

State budget good first step to improve health care for all in Illinois

By Jordan Powell
 Uplifting news can be hard to find these days. Representing health care providers serving largely minority communities, we see the challenges everywhere. The coronavirus pandemic has presented historic tests for our health care system. Racial unrest confirms that, while we have made progress in this country since Lincoln and King, we have much farther to go.

Yet, this is not a time for despair. At the Illinois Primary Health Care Association, we are encouraged by small progress made during these challenging times and the opportunity for real change that lies ahead.

The solution? Meaningful, sustained investment in marginalized communities. No more lip service.

An important first step came in the new Illinois state budget that went into effect July 1. The legislative session was largely put on hold this year because of shutdowns to prevent the spread of coronavirus. Lawmakers and Gov. JB Pritzker could have taken the easy way out and passed a "maintenance" budget that kept spending flat.

Instead, they heard the pleas of help from 390 community health centers across Illinois – from Waukegan to Cairo and Quincy to Danville – who needed more.

They responded with nearly $200 million in emergency funds for health centers to address challenges related to coronavirus and millions more in base funding to strengthen access to care for years to come.

These new dollars are significant because they will help those who have been left behind for far too long.

Community health centers, or Federally Qualified Health Centers, were created under federal law more than 50 years ago, out of the civil rights movement, when our nation's leaders realized we were not doing enough to provide quality, affordable health care coverage to our low-income and minority communities.

Today, nearly 60 percent of our members' patients receive Medicaid coverage, 20 percent have no health insurance coverage and nearly 70 percent are minorities.

Each year, Illinoisans see a nearly $2 billion return on investment from community health centers in the form of improved health care outcomes for our 1.4 million patients and reduced health care costs by preventing the need for care in more expensive settings.

The coronavirus pandemic underscored the need for our role. The virus spread in greater than expected ways in African-American and Latino communities with devastating consequences.

African-Americans represented

nearly one-third of all COVID-19 related deaths, yet they make up just 15 percent of our state's population. And the infection rates in the Latino community were staggeringly high, far above the rates for other populations.

The investments made in this state budget will help ensure we avoid a repeat.

Our centers also played a key role in fighting the spread of the virus by partnering with the Pritzker administration to test more than 160,000 Illinoisans through more than 125 drive-thru, walkup and mobile stations in just a few weeks.

We say thank you to Gov. Pritzker, our legislative leaders and our health care experts in the Legislature who understand the critical role of community health centers: Senators Heather Steans, Elgie Sims, Andy Manar, Omar Aquino and Dave Syverson and House leaders Greg Harris and Tom Demmer to name a few.

We must also give specific thanks to the members of the Black and Latino caucuses in the Legislature for making our cries for help your priorities in this difficult budget. You will play a strong leadership role in the change that is coming, as we recognize and work to heal the deep scars of racial inequities.

We are ready to work together, to do better and to put our calls for change into action. It is time we restore trust, faith and hope for Illinoisans who have been left behind.

Health care must be treated as a right, not a privilege, because at the heart of vibrant, prosperous communities are safe, healthy and thriving families and individuals.

Jordan Powell is president and CEO of the Illinois Primary Health Care Association in Springfield.

Unemployment claims dip slightly as state reopens

More than 675,000 receiving continued unemployment benefits

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS
The number of Illinois workers receiving state unemployment benefits fell by more than 29,000 during the last week of June as many businesses resumed operations after 14 weeks under a stay-at-home order brought on by the COVID-19 pandemic. The U.S. Department of Labor said

July 2 there were 676,338 people in Illinois receiving continuing unemployment benefits during the week that ended June 27. That was 29,511 fewer than the previous week.

First-time unemployment claims also fell to 45,249, a decrease of 1,027 from the previous week, but still a 463 percent increase over the same week a year ago when only 8,038 initial claims were filed.

In addition to those workers who qualify for traditional unemployment benefits, another 32,587 Illinoisans filed first-time claims for Pandemic Unemployment Assistance, more than triple the number from the week before. PUA is a program funded entirely by the federal government under the CARES Act to extend benefits to independent contractors who aren't normally covered under traditional state-funded unemployment.

The Department of Labor also reported figures for the Pandemic Emergency Unemployment Compensation program for the week that ended June 13, two weeks earlier than the other unemployment numbers. PEUC is another federally funded program that extends benefits for up to 13 weeks for people who have exhausted their state-funded benefits. That was down 15 percent from the week before.

First-time PEUC claims during that week in mid-June totaled 32,604, a decrease of 14 percent from the prior week.

On Friday, June 26, Illinois entered Phase 4 of Gov. JB Pritzker's reopening plan. That allowed many retail establishments to reopen. Bars and restaurants also were allowed to open for indoor dining while schools were allowed to reopen for in-person summer learning programs, all subject to capacity limits and social distancing requirements.

Nationally, just more than 1.4 million Americans filed first-time claims during the final week of June, an 8.2 percent decrease from the week before.

The Department of Labor reported a seasonally-adjusted 19.3 million Americans receiving continuing jobless benefits, an increase of 55,000 from the week before, while the national unemployment rate held steady at 13.2 percent.

River Ridge FFA members earn state, American degrees

Springfield usually is flooded with the blue jackets of FFA members during the second week of June each year.

This year, however, due to the COVID-19 outbreak FFA members stayed home and experienced the annual convention virtually.

One of the highlights is when chapter members walk across the big stage and officially receive their state FFA degrees or are recognized as American degree recipients.

And the River Ridge FFA chapter was well represented this year.

State degree recipients were Andrew Pratt (Ag fabrication and design-placement), Conner Tippet (diversified crop production-placement), Kylie Hiher (wildlife conservation and equine placement) and Riley Wolter (turf grass management-entrepreneur).

Earning a state degree is the culmination of hard work over the course of members' FFA careers. Only the top percentage of all members qualify to earn a degree, which is based on an agricultural project, called a Supervised Agricultural Experience, that they do outside of school time.

SAEs can vary from a student who works at a landscaping firm or an apple orchard to those who own and operate their own livestock programs.

Minimum qualifications include: two years of agricultural courses completed in high school, 25 hours of community service, 750 hours of documented work on their project or $1,500 productively invested in their project, active involvement in their FFA chapter at the section level or beyond and serving as a chapter officer or on a chapter committee.

The virtual state FFA convention will present Section One candidates with their degrees at 7 p.m. on July 13. Check the state FFA Facebook page for details: facebook.com/IllinoisFFA.

The River Ridge FFA chapter also features an American degree candidate.

Wyatt Potter, who has been featured in "Farm Journal" with his SAE project about ag mechanics and repair-entrepreneurship, will receive his American degree this fall. Potter was the Illinois state award winner in this category in 2019.

The American degree officially is awarded to members at the national FFA convention in October.

Earning an American FFA degree is even more elusive than a state one.

In order to qualify candidates must have earned their state degree, graduated from high school, earned at least $10,000 and productively invested $7,500 or earned and productively invested $2,000 and worked 2,250 hours in excess of scheduled class time, and completed 50 hours of community service.

Photo challenge moves to forest near Elizabeth

The Jo Daviess Conservation Foundation's Frame Your Family photo challenge moved to Schurmeier Teaching Forest this week.

For those not familiar with the campaign, a large, wooden frame is placed somewhere on each of the foundation's six public preserves for a period of two weeks. Families are invited to find it, take a group selfie, upload the photo to Facebook and then tag JDCF.

Those "framing" their families at three of the six preserves will be given a one-year membership to JDCF.

The teaching forest is located 147 E. Reusch Road south of Elizabeth.

For more information, visit www.jdcf.org, or call Jess Hepker at 815-858-9100.

STAR initiative starts 2020 enrollment

The Saving Tomorrow's Agriculture Resources (STAR) has announced it has started enrollment for farmers for the 2020 crop year.

As summer settles in and crops are growing throughout the Midwest, it's time for farmers and landowners to reap the results of investing in conservation practices on their fields. Participating is free and as simple as completing a field form at the STAR website: <https://starfreetool.com>.

Paper field forms are also available for download from the site. 2020 field forms will be available through next January.

If STAR participants are interested in getting field forms locally, several county SWCDs or farm bureaus serve as local administrators of the program.

STAR is an innovative conservation program in Illinois and several other states that helps farmers and landowners track how well they are caring for soil and water while producing their crops, via the free, handy STAR field evaluation tool.

The initiative touts several key benefits: decreasing nutrient loss from the soil, improving water quality, helping farmers show their stewardship, increasing farm resilience, and positioning farms for future market opportunities.

The Champaign County Soil and Water Conservation District (CCSWCD) created STAR in 2017 to meet agricultural goals in the state's Nutrient Loss Reduction Strategy plan.

That plan, developed by the state's Department of Agriculture and Environmental Protection Agency, lays out a comprehensive suite of best management practices for reducing nutrient loads from wastewater treatment plants, urban, and agricultural runoff. Similar strategies have been developed by 11 other states in the Mississippi River Basin since 2015.

"We created STAR to show farmers how easy it can be to prevent runoff, protect our water supplies, and promote soil health. And every year, we see more participants eager to invest in a stronger future with the STAR tool," said Bruce Henrikson, STAR program coordinator through CCSWCD. "We will continue to show more farmers and landowners that the time and effort to promote sustainable practices produces great returns on their investment, and necessary protections for the health of our soil and water, and our nation."

STAR has been well received in its short lifetime. In 2019, 214 participants on 1,175 fields and 83,592 acres embraced the power of STAR and organizations in Iowa and Missouri plan to offer the tool as well.

STAR participants complete a field form which assigns points for everything from cover crops used, to the kinds of fertilizer used for nutrient management at different points before and during the growing season, to various possible conservation practices used on that field to prevent runoff into nearby water sources.

STAR uses a science committee of industry experts, university researchers and farmers to ensure the field forms accurately represent nutrient loss reduction and how those affect the natural resources of the state. Fields are then ranked on the 5-star scale, and participants can receive a free sign for their fields to identify their STAR designation.

Judge denies GOP request to allow large political gatherings

Says granting restraining order 'would pose serious risks to public health'

By Jerry Nowicki
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

A federal judge on July 2 denied a request for a temporary restraining order that would have allowed Illinois Republican Party groups to host large fundraising events.

In the lawsuit, the state GOP argued that Gov. JB Pritzker's 50-person cap on gathering sizes — which was a 10-person cap when the lawsuit was filed—does not apply to religious organizations, and the governor "declined to enforce" his order against protesters demanding an end to systemic racism.

The GOP — along with the Will County Republican Central Committee, Schaumburg Township Republican Organization and Northwest Side GOP Club — argued that applying those exemptions to protestors and religious institutions but not to political parties created an "unconstitutional content-based restriction on speech," according to a court document.

That, the Republicans claimed, was a violation of their First and 14th Amendment rights under the U.S. Constitution, which grant freedoms of speech and demonstration, as well as equal protections under the law.

U.S. District Court Judge Sara L. Ellis, of the Northern District of Illinois' Eastern Division, denied the request for a temporary order that would allow the GOP to resume large gatherings, stating that granting the relief "would pose serious risks to public health."

"The number of COVID-19 infections continues to rise across the United States, which has led some states to recently impose greater restrictions on gatherings and activities," Ellis wrote in her ruling. "COVID-19 is highly contagious and continues to spread, requiring public officials to constantly evaluate the best method by which to protect residents' safety against the economy and a myriad of other concerns."

Illinois GOP Chairman Tim Schneider said lawyers were already working on an appeal.

"We are disappointed with today's results and obviously disagree with the ruling," Schneider said in a statement.

"Our fight to secure our First Amendment right is not over, however. Our lawyers have immediately begun the process for appealing the decision."

In its June 15 court filing, the GOP argued political parties "are for political expression what churches are for religious expression: the corporate manifestation of speech and interaction within a community of shared belief."

"Yet, unlike churches, political parties are barred from gathering in groups greater than 10 (now 50) under the governor's executive order," the party continued. "And unlike protestors against police brutality, they have not been given an exemption based on his sympathy, recognition, and participation."

Ellis, however, argued that Pritzker's order "involves reasonable measures intended to protect public health while preserving avenues for First Amendment activities."

"Plaintiffs ask that they be allowed to gather—without limitation—despite the advice of medical experts and the current rise in infections.

The risks in doing so are too great," she wrote. "The Court acknowledges that Plaintiffs' interest in gathering as a political party is important, especially leading up to an election. But this interest does not outweigh the governor's interest in protecting the health of Illinois' residents during this unprecedented public health crisis."

The judge also wrote that many political activities are still allowed, such as "phone banks, virtual strategy meetings, and, as of Friday, June 26, gatherings like fundraisers and meet-and-greet coffees that do not exceed 50 people."

Moreover, allowing the GOP to hold mass gatherings would "open the floodgates to challenges from other groups that find in-person gatherings most effective," she wrote, agreeing with one of the state's arguments.

"An injunction that allows plaintiffs to gather in large groups so that they can engage in more effective speech is simply not in the public interest. Such relief would expand beyond any gatherings and negatively impact non-parties by increasing their risk of exposure. Thus, the harms tilt significantly in the governor's favor as he seeks to prevent the spread of this virulent virus," she concluded.

Ellis said the GOP failed to prove the state selectively chose not to enforce its order against protestors. The governor also did not take action against Reopen Illinois protestors during the stay-at-home order, she pointed out.

"Plaintiffs have failed to point to a single instance in which they, or anyone similarly situated, protested with political messages and state officials enforced the order against them because of this content," she wrote. "Thus, the court has no basis by which to evaluate whether the governor has selectively enforced the order."

The judge did, however, agree that the government engaged in "content-based discrimination" by allowing churches to gather.

"When a gathering is still allowed based on the speech involved, the government has engaged in content-based discrimination. The court finds that by exempting free exercise of religion from the gathering limit, the order creates a content-based restriction," she wrote.

An appeal had not been filed as of July 2, and the full case is still pending in Ellis' court.

Illinois Extension expands programming, continues virtual 4-H shows in August

The University of Illinois Extension will allow staff and volunteers to resume limited in-person gatherings in August, consistent with the public health and safety guidelines outlined in Phase 4 of the Restore Illinois plan.

While long-term solutions to managing the coronavirus are in development, Illinois Extension will continue delivering programming — both virtual and in-person — that supports families, businesses and communities across the state.

Effective Aug. 1, in-person events for groups of up to 10 people may resume, with group limits expanding up to 25 on Aug. 16. All program participants and staff will be required to practice social distancing measures, including wearing a face covering.

While small group activities may resume, larger Illinois Extension events will continue in a virtual format.

All 4-H general project and 4-H livestock shows and exhibitions scheduled through August 31 will move online to a virtual exhibition platform called FairEntry. All overnight camps also are canceled through the end of August.

“We know that many of our 4-H members and their families have felt the loss of the in-person 4-H shows that are such an iconic part of summertime in Illinois,” says Lisa Diaz, assistant dean and director of Illinois 4-H. “But early feedback from our families who have participated in a virtual 4-H show already this summer is that it’s still a great learning opportunity that provides a showcase experience for 4-H members.”

Over the course of the fall, Illinois Extension will continue a phased return to in-person programming to ensure that proper safety protocols, space management plans, and public health requirements are fully adopted by the organization.

Mendoza: New fiscal year will be even more challenging than height of budget impasse

State borrowed heavily to get through year that ended June 30

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

The state of Illinois, like most states, began a new fiscal year on July 1 and the person in charge of managing the state's bank accounts said she fears it could be one of the most difficult years in modern memory.

"This is going to be, I think, by far perhaps the most challenging year that I've had to manage as comptroller," state Comptroller Susana Mendoza said in an interview July 1. "And that's saying something because, you know, I had to navigate the state through what was, when I took office, the worst fiscal crisis that our state had ever experienced, that two-year budget impasse."

The difference between then and now, she said, was that during the budget impasse, the state still had revenues flowing in, just no legal authority to spend it. But in the face of the COVID-19 pandemic, and the near shutdown of the state's economy that it forced, Illinois now isn't seeing anything close to the revenues it will need to fund the new budget.

"You can pass whatever budget you want," she said. "If the revenues don't come in the way you'd like them to, then there's not enough money to go around for all of the priorities that are represented by that budget. So, at the end of the day, we'll have to see month-to-month what our revenues look like. It's so completely up in the air."

The financial impact of the pandemic started to appear in state revenues in April and May. Before then, Mendoza noted, Illinois was in relatively good shape with a nominally balanced budget in place and revenues coming in greater than expected. The state was even making progress on paying down its backlog of past-due bills.

But that all changed in April after Gov. JB Pritzker extended the tax filing deadline to July 15, which took a big bite out of revenues the state normally would have seen that month. Meanwhile, the state's unemployment rate shot up to an unprecedented 17.2 percent in April as employers throughout Illinois were forced to shut down or scale back operations due to the novel coronavirus.

As of July 1, according to the comptroller's website, the bill backlog stood at $5.4 billion. But Mendoza said that figure doesn't tell the whole story because in order to keep the state running, it borrowed roughly $2.7 billion.

That included $1.2 billion from the Federal Reserve, just part of the $5 billion in Fed borrowing that state lawmakers authorized during their special session in May. It also included another $1.5 billion in interfund borrowing and borrowing from idle funds in the state treasurer's office.

"So that did help me to pay down some really important bills that needed to be paid of that bill backlog, but it's important to remember that, okay, the bill backlog says it's $5.4 billion, but in actuality, we're still on the hook for paying back that $2.7 billion, so we're really looking at, you know, 5.4 plus 2.7," or $8.1 billion, she said.

Among the high-priority bills the state paid, she said, were invoices from Medicaid providers, including hospitals, which were already reeling from revenue losses that resulted when they were forced to call off nonemergency surgeries and procedures in order to free up resources for COVID-19 patients.

The $1.2 billion in federal borrowing came through a program called the Municipal Liquidity Facility, which the Federal Reserve Board authorized in March to help states and large municipalities deal with the dramatic falloff in revenue they were seeing. Illinois is paying 3.8 percent interest on the loan, which is due to be paid back by June 30, 2021.

However, the plan for paying back that money, and any more the state may need to borrow this fiscal year, hinges on the idea that Congress will pass another economic relief package that will include significant relief for states—something it has not done yet and is still the subject of partisan wrangling on Capitol Hill.

Mendoza said there is no way for Illinois to make it through this new fiscal year without making draconian budget cuts if Congress doesn't come through with that aid.

"Because Illinois is not the only one who's looking at this type of financial disaster situation, but every single state in the country is going to require federal government sending financial aid," Mendoza said. "And when I say financial aid, I don't mean loans. I mean specifically grants—money that does not have a million strings attached to it that would go specifically to help make up for lost revenues due to COVID-19."

Republicans in Congress, however, have been reluctant to accept what they see as a "bailout" of state governments, many of which, including Illinois, had significant financial challenges before the pandemic.

In April, U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Kentucky, suggested that some states would be better off filing for bankruptcy. Amid significant backlash, McConnell walked that idea back a few days later and suggested a direct aid package—but only if it included civil immunity from COVID-19-related lawsuits for employers, which Democrats have not been willing to accept.

Mendoza called the idea that Illinois and other states were asking for bailouts "laughable," while noting that Illinois receives less in federal benefits from Washington than it pays into it. McConnell's home state of Kentucky, meanwhile, receives more than $2 in benefits for every dollar it sends to Washington.

"Mitch McConnell must forget that it's states like Illinois and Connecticut and California and New York that bail out his state of Kentucky every single year," Mendoza said. "He's used to living off of the state of Illinois and the state of California and the state of New York and the state of Connecticut and every other donor state, which by the way, most of which happened to be blue states."

Mendoza said that when it comes to paying bills on a month-to-month basis, her office will prioritize making scheduled debt payments, paying out retirement benefits and making payments to public schools. Beyond that, she said, everything else in state government will be at risk without federal aid.

"We are far from done with this pandemic, so if anybody believes that we're even remotely out of the woods yet, they're imagining things," she said. "We really have yet to see what the month to month reduction in revenues is going to be. We can try to predict them, but this is uncharted territory."
