Application period open for COVID-19 mortgage assistance program

Grants worth up to $15,000 each do not need to be repaid

By Rebecca Anzel
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Approximately 10,000 Illinois households whose members have struggled to pay their mortgage during the novel coronavirus pandemic can receive grants worth up to $15,000 each from the state Housing Development Authority.

A U.S. Census Bureau survey found that more than one in 10 residents have "little-to-no confidence" they can afford their loans in September due to economic repercussions caused by COVID-19 economic restrictions.

Helping those homeowners is beneficial to families, financial institutions and local governments,

Kristin Faust, the authority's executive director, said in a news release. According to IHDA, "a single foreclosure costs the homeowner, servicer and local government nearly $80,000."

"Everyone suffers when a friend, family member or neighbor goes into foreclosure, and the pandemic has left too many families at risk of losing their homes," Faust said.

The Emergency Mortgage Assistance Program will distribute funds directly to the financial institution through which a household's mortgage is serviced. That money can go toward past-due payments as well as future ones. No repayment is required.

Qualifying Illinoisans include those whose household had at least one adult who experienced lower or no wages due to COVID-19 and whose mortgage was being paid on time before March 2020.

Grants cover the homeowner's past due balance and regular mortgage payments through the end of 2020 or until funding is exhausted, whichever comes first.

Applications opened Aug. 24 and can be found at ema.ihda.org. They will be accepted through Sept. 4, but the application window may close early due to anticipated high volume, according to a news release.

The program is designed to "provide critical support for our homeowners, giving them the time they need to regain their financial footing," Gov. JB Pritzker said in a news release.

"At a time when the connection between housing and health is clearer than ever, it is critically important that we keep families stably housed for individual well-being, public health and the recovery of our state's economy," he said. "My administration remains committed to doing everything we can to provide much-needed support for Illinois residents who have been hit hardest by the pandemic..."

The funds for the program came from the federal CARES Act — or, Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security. Illinois received $3.5 billion in total. The General Assembly, when its members were in an abridged session in May, allocated $396 million of that for the Housing Development Authority to assist homeowners and renters.

Capitol News Illinois is a non-profit, nonpartisan news service covering state government.

Illinois Gov. JB Pritzker talks about housing grants being offered through the Housing Development Authority in response to the pandemic. The grants aim to help families prevent foreclosure.

A face mask is among the required school supplies as some students return to in-person instruction this fall.

Health experts offer tips for safe start to school

Officials at FHN health care system recently discussed keeping children safe as they go back to school.

FHN President and CEO Mark Gridley and infection preventionist Margie Kochsmier are featured in the COVID-19 update video, which is available online at fhn.org/coronavirus.

Some highlights of their message included these tips:

Set a good example

"Anyone, of any age, can get COVID-19, and can spread the virus, even if they don't have any symptoms," Kochsmier said. "So it's important that parents serve as good role models for their children and practice safe social distancing, masking and hand washing at home."

Give friendly reminders

Keep your children informed about what's happening, but don't scare them, Kochsmier advised. Instead, choose fun masks and help young students remember social distancing guidelines with comparisons to putting their arms or a hula hoop out in front of them.

Keep it clean

Kochsmier urged parents to continue wiping down high-touch surfaces in the home, as this simple action can help families avoid spreading not just COVID-19, but colds and flu germs as well.

Get immunized

Gridley and Kochsmier also remind parents that, even if their student is attending classes virtually, he or she needs to have a physical exam and verification of their immunizations before entry into preschool, kindergarten, sixth grade and ninth grade.

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

Hopefully the very hot and humid weather is behind us. As I write this column, we wait for rain. The yards have lost their beautiful green and are turning brown. Flowers are drooping and dying. The only good thing about the dry weather is that our tomatoes won't rot in the super wet soil. I have been lucky in that several friends have given me some of their extra produce. This week we have some interesting recipes using some garden goodies. Enjoy cooking since the weather is supposed to be cooler.

Sweet Pickles

There were supposed to be a lot of cucumbers this year. Several of my friends had good ones early, but they have stopped. Even though the bumper crop may not be with us, this next recipe is for some really easy sweet pickles.

9 C. sliced pickling cucumbers
1 large sweet onion, halved and thinly sliced
¼ C. canning salt
1 C. sugar
1 C. water
1 C. white vinegar
½ C. cider vinegar
2 T. mustard seed
½ t. whole peppercorns
4 bay leaves
12 garlic cloves, crushed

In a large nonreactive bowl, combine cucumbers, onion and salt. Cover with crushed ice and mix well. Let stand for three hours. Drain, rinse and drain thoroughly. Prepare canner according to manufacturer's instructions; in a Dutch oven, combine the sugar, water, vinegars, mustard seed, celery seed and whole peppercorns. Bring to a boil, stirring to dissolve sugar. Add cucumber mixture; return to a boil, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat; simmer uncovered until heated through, four to five minutes.

Carefully ladle hot mixture into four hot wide-mouth 1-pint jars, leaving ½ inch headspace. Add three garlic cloves and one bay leaf to each jar. Remove air bubbles and if necessary, adjust headspace by adding hot pickling liquid. Wipe rims. Center lids on jars; screw on bands until fingertip tight. Place jars in canner; process 10 minutes. Remove jars and cool. Enjoy these really great sweet pickles.

Mixed Greens with Apricot Vinaigrette

If you are like me, you like salads, especially in summer. If you are like me, you also like to change them up a little bit from a lettuce salad with bottled dressing. I have several salads with mandarin oranges and strawberries that use poppy seed or balsamic dressings. This one is unique because it uses dried apricots. If you have never tried butter or Bibb lettuce, you are in for a treat. You could also use bagged lettuce if you have it.

½ C. white wine vinegar
¼ C. dried apricots
¼ C. olive oil
1 t. Dijon mustard
1 green onion, finely chopped
1 head butter lettuce, torn
1 small bunch of green leaf lettuce, torn

1 small bunch red leaf lettuce, torn
2 green onions, thinly sliced
1 small cucumber, thinly sliced
¼ C. dill, chopped
2 oz. feta cheese, crumbled

Place vinegar and apricots in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil two minutes. Remove from heat and let sit for 10 minutes. Strain into measuring cup (you should have 3 T.); reserve apricots. Finely chop apricots. In a small bowl, whisk together oil, mustard and 2 T. apricot vinegar; stir in onions and apricots. Toss together torn lettuce, onions, cucumber and dill. Toss with vinaigrette. Serve with sprinkled feta on top of salad.

Oven Roasted Eggplant Parmesan

There are a lot of people who wait for summer to have eggplant. It is not a favorite of mine, but many of my friends go crazy for it. This recipe is easy to make, and the eggplant gets all the flavors of the herbs and red sauce.

4 eggs
3 T. water
2 C. unseasoned breadcrumbs
½ C. grated Parmesan cheese
2 t. Italian seasoning
¼ t. garlic powder
½ t. salt
½ t. pepper
2 eggplants (2 lbs. each), peeled and cut crosswise into ¼ inch slices
2 T. olive oil, divided
¼ C. slivered fresh basil leaves
3 C. red sauce
2 C. shredded mozzarella cheese

Preheat the oven to 400. Coat two baking sheets and an 8-by-11 baking dish with cooking spray and set aside. Whisk the eggs and water in a shallow dish until frothy. In a medium bowl, combine breadcrumbs, Parmesan cheese, Italian seasoning, garlic powder, salt and pepper. Dip the eggplant slices into the egg mixture and then coat them with breadcrumbs, shaking off any excess.

Arrange the eggplant slices in a single layer on prepared baking sheets, and drizzle with 1 T. olive oil. Bake for 15 minutes, then turn the eggplant slices over and drizzle with remaining olive oil, and bake until crisp and golden brown, about 15 minutes longer. Stir the basil into the red sauce in a medium bowl. Spread a thin layer of the sauce in the bottom of the prepared baking dish. Arrange a third of the eggplant slices over the sauce, overlapping slightly. Spoon sauce over the eggplant and sprinkle with 2/3 C. mozzarella cheese. Repeat two more times. (If the sides of your dish are not deep enough, do only two layers.) Bake uncovered until the sauce bubbles and the top is golden brown, about 20 minutes

Shrimp Bowls with Vinaigrette

This easy recipe is great for the hot weather because the shrimp cooks quickly and doesn't need much oven time. Enjoy these shrimp bowls with just a hint of vinaigrette.

1½ C. white or brown rice
6 C. broccoli cut into small florets and stems cut into thin pieces
2 T. olive oil, divided
Salt and pepper
20 large peeled and deveined shrimp, tails removed
1 T. rice vinegar
1 T. finely grated fresh ginger
3 plum tomatoes, seeded and cut into ¼ inch pieces

2 green onions, thinly sliced
1 avocado, cut into small pieces

Heat the oven to 425. Heat medium saucepan on medium, add rice and cook, shaking pan occasionally until lightly toasted, about five minutes. Add 3 C. water and immediately cover. Simmer gently for 10 minutes. Remove from heat and remove lid; cover with a clean towel and let stand 10 minutes; fluff with a fork.

On a rimmed baking sheet, toss broccoli with 1 T. oil and ¼ t. each of salt and pepper. Spread in even layer and roast 15 minutes. Season shrimp with a pinch each of salt and pepper; toss with broccoli and roast until opaque throughout, six to eight minutes. In a medium bowl, whisk together vinegar, ginger and 1 T. oil. Toss with tomatoes and then fold in onions. Divide rice among four bowls and top with shrimp, broccoli and avocado. Spoon vinaigrette over the top of bowls.

Lee's Chicken Casserole

My friend, Lee, has been making this chicken casserole for many years. She shared the recipe when I was looking for a new chicken recipe. I hope you enjoy it as much as I did.

1 C. sliced carrots
¾ C. chopped onion
½ C. chopped celery
¼ C. chicken broth
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 C. sour cream
3 C. cooked, chopped chicken
½ C. mushrooms
1 t. Worcestershire sauce
1 t. salt
1/8 t. pepper

Topping:

1 C. flour
2 t. baking powder
½ t. salt
2 eggs
½ C. milk
1¼ C. shredded cheddar cheese

In a saucepan, combine carrots, onion, celery and chicken broth. Simmer 20 minutes. In a 3-quart casserole that has been sprayed with cooking spray, mix cream of chicken soup, sour cream, chicken, mushrooms, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Add simmered vegetables and liquid; mix well.

Topping: In a mixing bowl, combine flour, baking powder and salt. Add eggs, milk and 1 C. cheese. Mix just until well blended. Drop tablespoonfuls of the topping onto the casserole and bake in a 350-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until golden brown. Sprinkle with remaining cheddar cheese and return to the oven until cheese is melted.

Closing thoughts

School has started in some form or another for most kids in our area. Every mother I talked to said how happy their children were to be back in school. I, like most people, pray that they can stay in school. When school starts, life changes even if you have no school connections.

The pool is closed. I had my last aquasize class last week. I want to commend our park district for taking the necessary precautions and doing the work to have our pool open for part of the summer. I know it was a tremendous responsibility as well as a

School districts in northwest Illinois are following Illinois Department of Public Health guidelines for school opening, which are more stringent than the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention guidelines. If a child is sent home sick, he or she will need to have been fever free without medications for at least 10 days as well as have a negative COVID-19 test and a letter from his or her health care provider.

Balanced zoning, setbacks key to rural clean energy future

By Lu Nelsen
CENTER FOR RURAL AFFAIRS

The wind energy industry remains one of the fastest growing in the United States. It has not only increased capacity, but provided consumers and utilities with clean energy while creating additional economic benefits, such as tax revenue, career opportunities and direct payments to landowners who host turbines.

However, with that growth has come questions and concerns, leaving local officials trying to decide the best approach to regulating development. The most common solution is zoning, in particular setbacks, which plays an important role in setting clear standards for developers and protecting the interests of local residents. But these standards should meet a county's needs, rather than a one-size-fits-all approach.

The Center for Rural Affairs recently reviewed setbacks in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota and found that while many counties employ some kind of standard, there was substantial variance, with some employing a set or fixed distance from the turbine to variable distances based on the height of a turbine.

Importantly, this review showed that zoning itself did not seem to correlate with lack of development, as many counties that had zoning in place for wind energy also hosted a project. This highlights the importance of tailoring standards to ensure they meet the goals of local officials and stakeholders, while also avoiding measures that are so restrictive that they will limit or stop potential development in a county.

Setting clear zoning that allows communities to capture the full benefits of wind energy development without burdening residents is key to bring clean energy and new economic opportunities to rural America.

Lu Nelson is a policy associate at the Center for Rural Affairs, a private, non-profit organization working to strengthen small businesses, family farms and ranches, and rural communities.

Thanks to technology, residents continue to be heard

By state Rep. Andrew Chesney

This past week, I enjoyed hosting my third TeleTownHall meeting since the COVID-19 pandemic set into Illinois this spring. Many of you may have received a call from my office asking you to hold on the line on Aug. 25 to go live with me via phone for this event.

Much like my Pizza and Politics events hosted throughout 2019, these TeleTownHall meetings allowed me an opportunity to provide a 20-minute legislative update and then allowed for at least 20 more minutes of direct questions and answers from participants. COVID-19, economic recovery, unemployment issues, school re-openings and public official corruption were topics at top of mind for many.

I appreciated the genuine questions and feedback from the hundreds of participants. I find these events are a great opportunity to hear directly from your elected official as well as get a direct opportunity to ask a question or voice a concern about state agencies or services.

While I certainly prefer in-person events like our Pizza & Politics series, I understand it is important for our elected officials to remain accessible to the needs of northwest Illinois citizens. I expect we will soon return to in-person events and I will look forward to returning to in-person updates and question-and-answer sessions, likely through a revised format that is being established. Until then, I loved hearing from citizens in this format, as well.

There were more questions than we could get to and I have been busily replying to additional messages and e-mailed questions and concerns. Still, what a treat to still be able to connect, even while in-person events of this size are curtailed by Gov. JB Pritzker for the time being.

I heard from many a support for a regional approach to dealing with this pandemic, even though there are great differences in how residents believe the management of the pandemic should be handled. Especially up for debate are the ways in which Illinois is encouraging, or not encouraging, a long-delayed economic recovery. Indeed, a new report by Moody's Analytics and CNN Business indicates Illinois lags behind the rest of the Midwest in "getting back to normal" as far as restarting economies.

There are many challenges on the horizon. How do we fix unemployment? How do we get government out of the way for recovery? School reopenings or, conversely, remote learning, beg many more questions than answers for parents.

For those concerned about agriculture in our rural communities, there is concern about anemic crop prices, even though the health of the crops is looking good. Meat producers also face continued uncertainty and stress.

Our farmers and producers, teachers and administrators, parents and students, employers and workers need our prayers and help, now more than ever.

I'm not sure if all elected officials find the value in hearing these perspectives from the citizens they represent, but I, for one, wanted to take an opportunity to say thank you for providing me your honest and forthright feedback. This feedback allows me to represent you better, both when we disagree and when we agree.

Northwest Illinois citizens are engaged and ready to continue to fight for much-needed reforms at all levels of government.

State Rep. Andrew Chesney, R-Freeport, represents the 89th District in the Illinois House of Representatives. The district includes all of Jo Daviess and Stephenson counties.

Appellate court: Pritzker has authority to set inmate transfer protocols

Sheriffs say process is burdensome

By Jerry Nowicki
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

A state appellate court has temporarily halted a Logan County court order that required state prisons to accept inmates from county jails.

It's the latest action in a lawsuit filed on behalf of 89 county sheriffs against Gov. JB Pritzker and the director of the Illinois Department of Corrections. Jo Daviess County Sheriff Kevin Turner and Stephenson County Sheriff David Snyders are included in the lawsuit.

Previously, Logan County Judge Jonathan Wright issued an Aug. 3 order requiring IDOC to "accept transfer of all offenders as required by the Illinois Unified Code of Corrections."

Since that order was issued, there were 1,226 transfers from county jails to IDOC facilities, according to department spokesperson Lindsey Hess.

Hess said in an email that on Aug. 4, Graham Reception and Classification Center in the Montgomery County city of Hillsboro "unknowingly accepted" a COVID-19 positive man from Logan County Jail. The transfer was separate from one at the same facility in which seven prisoners were denied entry because two of them tested positive for the virus, Hess said.

The spokesperson said 20 staff and one additional inmate have tested positive for the virus at that facility since the transfer occurred. The correctional workers are quarantining at home and the prisoners are isolated.

On Aug. 21, Illinois' 4th District Appellate Court reversed Wright's order by issuing a temporary stay.

The appellate justices wrote that the governor has authority to "control... the movement of persons" within a disaster area as designated through the governor's disaster proclamation. They also noted the sheriffs did not argue against Pritzker's authority to extend a disaster proclamation multiple times.

Thus, it was within the governor's authority to issue Executive Order 50, which stated, "(IDOC) will resume accepting the transfer of individuals from Illinois county jails. The scheduling of the arrival of individuals from county jails and the intake process to ensure the health and safety of the transferring individuals, as well as all individuals and staff at IDOC, shall be within the sole discretion of the Director of IDOC."

Kankakee County Sheriff Mike Downey – one of the sheriffs involved in a lawsuit against the state regarding transfers from county jails to state prisons – is pictured in a file photo.

That replaced Executive Order 13 from March 26, which halted all transfers "with exceptions at the sole discretion of the director of the IDOC for limited essential transfers."

The sheriffs had argued that the protocols put in place by IDOC after the issuance of Executive Order 50 — which include requirements for social distancing, temperature checks, quarantine and testing, among others — were unduly burdensome.

They noted a transferee must have had a negative COVID-19 test taken within three days of transfer, but many tests take five or more days for results to arrive. If an inmate had to leave the premises for a test, it would reset a 14-day quarantine period required before transfer.

A spokesperson for the Illinois Sheriffs' Association said in an email they will "continue to evaluate the protocols and responsibilities established under (Executive Order 50) to determine if they can be achievable for all sheriffs."

The court addressed those arguments.

"We acknowledge plaintiffs believe (Executive Order 50) imposes serious hardship on numerous sheriffs' offices throughout the state and is unwise and unfair," the court wrote in its ruling. "However, we do not pass judgment on whether the governor's actions are unwise or unfair, but rather on whether the governor's actions are authorized."

In a special note concurring with his fellow appellate justices Lisa Holder White and John Turner, Presiding Justice Robert Steigmann noted he believes Executive Order 50 "addresses the legitimate concerns of the parties, is a good faith attempt to balance the competing interests of the parties and the public, and should be given the chance to accomplish its purpose."

If IDOC does not apply the order in good faith, "the matter could be brought to this court's attention for reconsideration and possible vacation of the stay," he wrote.

"We are obviously disappointed in the court's decision to grant the stay of the preliminary injunction," the sheriffs' association spokesperson said. "However, we continue to be willing to work with IDOC on this issue as we have from the beginning of the pandemic to move IDOC-sentenced inmates into their care."

Hess, from IDOC, said the ruling allows the department "to implement its plan to safely resume admissions from the counties," pointing to the safety protocols that were issued on July 27, prior to the Logan County court order.

"We are committed to working with the county jails to accept new admissions in a manner that protects the health and safety of staff, the incarcerated population and the surrounding community," she said in a statement.

As of last week, IDOC's website indicated there were 457 staff and 774 incarcerated individuals confirmed to have contracted COVID-19. Of those, 334 staff and 491 inmates have recovered, according to the data.

Sadness mixes with happiness in the mess that we call 2020

The year 2020: Wow, in hindsight who could have seen this coming?

I thought we'd been through it all. A pandemic. The lockdown. The economy suffering because of the lockdown and pandemic. Family members losing jobs. My youngest son missing out on his last semester of high school. Virtual graduation.

What else could possibly happen? Ha! I had to ask.

I thought the first six months of 2020 were taxing — a challenge in flexibility and change. A challenge in faith and country and leadership. I thought there weren't any more possible challenges to tackle.

And then I lived out the last 12 days.

In less than two weeks time, here's the trifecta that's unfolded in my life:

- I brought my 18-year-old son 1,300 miles across the country to college and left him there, only

By
PERTLER
Contributor

hoping he'll do well, go to class and learn how to sort his own laundry. Oh, and of course wear his mask (or face covering, depending on your preference). Now he's coming up against the reality of his first hurricane, although to him "It's just a tropical storm, mom, no big deal."

- I lost my dad to non-COVID-19 illness and advanced age. I hadn't been able to see him since the lockdown. He was in a nursing home. My sister was able to be with him in his last days and that brings me comfort.

Finally, I've saved the best for last (truly).

- Upon returning home from bringing my son to college (all my tears were dry by this time) I was blessed with a grandson. He was born during COVID-19, so we weren't able to see him right away. No visitors were allowed at the hospital.

I like to think I live a fairly boring life, but this latest trifecta has been anything but — in heart-tugging ways, in sad ways and in the very best of ways. Life can be complicated. It often is.

My son was supposed to follow us across the country, not the other way around. We had a move planned, but because of COVID-19, everything about that has changed. Instead of us being there to welcome him, he is bravely forging ahead on his own. It's what an 18-year-old is supposed to do. But still, I am his mom. I can't put that behind me — now or ever. His university has an all-you-can-eat food plan and free laundry. At least those are two things I don't have to worry about.

My dad. That's an entire column, but I believe I've already written a few about this hero in my life. It's a shame — a true shame — that he lived his last months without family or friends surrounding him with the love he so deserved. I'm mad at Corona for that. I'm more than mad. Not quite enraged, but somewhere between mad and that. I'm mad-enraged for robbing my wonderful and loving dad of the last weeks or months that he was cognizant enough to know he was sitting in a room that wasn't his home, alone. It wasn't fair. Corona isn't fair. Life isn't fair. I understand this, but it's hard not to be sad about those facts sometimes.

My grandson entered the world seeing people's faces covered by masks. It's not ideal and I hate it, but he has 10 fingers and 10 toes. He is beautiful. He doesn't see our faces but he feels our love and he hears our words of endearment in his perfect little ears. When I held him for the first time his tiny hand gripped my finger. He fell asleep in my arms and grinned in his sleep.

It was probably gas, but in this year of 2020, I'll take what I can get.

State extends driver's license expiration for seniors 75+

Capitol News Illinois

Driver's licenses for Illinoisans 75 or older are valid one extra year beyond the currently listed 2020 expiration date, Secretary of State Jesse White announced last week.

Those roughly 147,000 seniors do not need to visit a motor vehicle facility until just prior to their birthday in 2021, the office said in a news release, noting it will inform qualifying residents in a letter.

The secretary of state's records were updated to reflect this change, and officials notified national and state law enforcement as well.

"I am mindful of the heightened risks associated with seniors contracting COVID-19, and that is why I have authorized this important change during this challenging and unique time," White said in a written statement.

His office has the statutory authority to extend these deadlines by up to one year.

The expiration date for all other Illinoisans' driver's licenses and plate stickers was pushed to Nov. 1. The office is encouraging residents not to visit a driver services facility for matters that can be handled online.

"Especially during hot weather," residents "do not need to rush into" facilities where "heavy customer volume" is expected," the office said in a news release.

Since White opened his offices a few weeks ago, numerous reports have documented long lines that stretch outside and around buildings. The facilities were previously closed due to the threat of COVID-19 spread.

USDA notes expansion of Coronavirus assistance program

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue announced recently that additional commodities will be covered by the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program. Additionally, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is extending the deadline to apply for the program to Sept. 11.

The following additional commodities are now eligible for CFAP:

- Specialty crops: aloe leaves, bananas, batatas, bok choy, carambola (star fruit), cherimoya, chervil (french parsley), citron, curry leaves, daikon, dates, dill, donqua (winter melon), dragon fruit (red pitaya), endive, escarole, filberts, frisee, horseradish, kohlrabi, kumquats, leeks, mamey sapote, maple sap (for maple syrup), mesclun mix, microgreens, nectarines, parsley, persimmons, plantains, pomegranates, pumelos, pumpkins, rutabagas, shallots, tangelos, turnips/celeriac, turmeric, upland/winter cress, water cress, yautia/malanga and yuca/cassava.
- Non-specialty crops and livestock: liquid eggs, frozen eggs and all sheep. Only lambs and yearlings were previously eligible.

- Aquaculture: catfish, crawfish, largemouth bass and carp sold live as food fish; hybrid striped bass; red drum; salmon; sturgeon; tilapia; trout; ornamental/tropical fish; and recreational sportfish.
- Nursery crops and cut flowers

In another change, seven commodities are now eligible for CFAP funding for sales losses. Those commodities are: onions (green), pistachios, peppermint, spearmint, walnuts and watermelons. Originally, these commodities were only eligible for payments on marketing adjustments.

To apply for CFAP, producers — especially those who have not worked with the Farm Service Agency previously — should call 877-508-8364 to begin the application process. An FSA staff member can help producers start their application during the phone call.

Program helps farmers, feeds families

A federal program aimed at helping farmers and feeding those in need reached a milestone recently, with more than 75 million food boxes distributed nationwide.

The United States Department of Agriculture's Farmers to Families Food Box Program helps to support farmers and families affected by the COVID-19 pandemic.

"The delivery of 75 million food boxes has helped an incredible number of Americans in need," Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue said in a news release. "I couldn't be prouder of the great job done by the food box program staff and the many farmers, distributors and non-profits that helped to get this program off the ground for the American people."

The food delivery effort "has required hours of hard work and dedication from USDA employees, farmers, ranchers, distributors and the brave volunteers of countless non-profits going the last mile to reach Americans in need," Perdue said.

Last week, President Trump announced an additional up to $1 billion will be added to the Farmers to Families Food Box Program while the economy continues to reopen.

"This program will continue to fulfill its mission to support the most vulnerable, empower our workforce and uplift great American farmers," Trump adviser Ivanka Trump said in the release.

As the third round of food box funding starts, the USDA plans to purchase combination boxes to ensure all recipient organizations have access to fresh produce, dairy products, fluid milk and meat products.

Jo Daviess county clerk outlines voting options

Residents may choose to vote early or by mail

Due to COVID-19, all 2020 general election voters are encouraged to cast a ballot prior to Election Day, either by mail or during early voting.

Voting by mail is an easy option for voters and you can request a vote-by-mail ballot online, via email, via mail or in person. For an application, call the Jo Daviess county clerk's office at 815-777-0161 or go online to www.jodaviess.org/vote/. Applications for voting by mail are now available from the clerk's office, however, mailing and delivery of ballots does not begin until Thursday, Sept. 24.

All applications for voting by mail must be received in the clerk's office by Thursday, Oct. 29, if sent by mail or Monday, Nov. 2, if delivered in person.

Early voting by personal appearance in the county clerk's office is another option for all registered voters.

Anyone may come and vote in the Jo Daviess county clerk's office, 330 N. Bench St., Galena, during the following times:

- 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, Sept. 24 through Oct. 16
- 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, Oct. 19 through Nov. 2
- 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays, Oct. 24 and Oct. 31

Voting assistance will be available on Election Day at all polling places in Jo Daviess County for voters who are either temporarily or permanently physically incapacitated, or over the age of 65. Voting assistance may be given inside the polling place by someone who accompanies the voter, or by an election judge of each political party.

Arrangements can be made to vote from your car once you arrive at the polls, but residents must call the county clerk's office at 815-777-0161 no later than Monday, Nov. 2, to make these arrangements.

Oct. 6 is the last day that new voter registrations or name/address changes can be taken by either the county clerk's office or a deputy registrar and still allow the voter to vote at the polls.

Oct. 18 is the last day that new voter registrations or name/address changes can be taken online elections.il.gov/.

State law does allow grace period registration and transfer of registration from Oct. 7 through Nov. 3. Grace period registration is conducted only in the county clerk's office and requires the individual to vote at the time of registration. To choose this option, be prepared to show two forms of identification, with at least one having your current address.

For more information on registering to vote, voting assistance or early voting, call the county clerk's office at 815-777-0161 or inquire at 330 N. Bench St., Galena.

Safety precautions protect us all during pandemic

By Dr. Stephen Petras
CONTRIBUTOR

A few months ago, I wrote a column with multiple suggestions as to how to maintain your oral health during the weeks that the American Dental Association's policy mandated that dental offices remain closed to all but emergency care. As the COVID-19 virus continues to mutate and spread, we persevere to seek the best solutions to slow the spread of the virus and protect the health and safety of our families, friends and fellow citizens. To this end, the ADA has issued a new interim policy regarding the need for essential dental care to continue to be delivered during global pandemics. In order to stay healthy, our citizens need access to health care.

As the ADA notes, "Dentistry is an essential health care service because of its role in evaluating, diagnosing, preventing or treating oral diseases that can affect systemic health."

Dentists have had to deal with widespread viruses (such as HIV and hepatitis) for decades. As health care leaders they have developed and honed standardized, effective infection control protocols. These include the use of personal protective equipment, disinfection of operatories and steam sterilization of instruments at the required temperature and pressure over a set amount of time.

As the weeks of mandated closure went on, dentists knew that untreated dental disease needed to be addressed to keep their patients healthy. To this end, we re-opened our offices to deliver that care but, with an abundance of caution, instituted even stricter infection control protocols.

To this end, we closed our waiting rooms. Patients are seen one at a time and they are asked to wait in their cars until they receive a text informing them that their operator room is available. Only the patient is allowed in the dental office; family members must remain in the car (with the exception of very young children and special needs)

A mask is required to enter the dental office, the patient's temperature is taken and recorded and they must fill out a health questionnaire prior to being seen.

You might not immediately recognize your dental team members these days, as their hair is covered and their features are now hidden behind an N-95 mask, along with a conventional mask and face shield. Scrubs are now covered with disposable gowns or lab coats that are changed after each patient is treated. Disposable gloves and shoe coverings complete the look, all designed to provide further protection for you, as well as the dental team.

The reality is that the dental team is at the highest risk of exposure, as your mask must be removed for any procedures. To this end, you also will be required to rinse with an anti-viral mouthwash prior to your dental procedure.

Safety is not a buzzword. Dr. Pul-lara and I value our family's safety, as well as that of our team members, just as much as we value your safety, so these extreme safety measures serve us all.

We are all in this together, as fellow human beings looking out for each other. To stop the further spread of this virus, it is best to assume that all people are carriers, unless proven otherwise.

It is a fact that social distancing helps you avoid the aerosol droplets that carry the virus, so someone does not infect you by spitting on you when they speak, cough or otherwise spread it with their breath. It is also a fact that masks help slow the spread of COVID-19. While wearing a mask for any extended period of time, most people will tend to breathe through their mouths and may not produce as much saliva. Remember to keep yourself well hydrated to avoid dry mouth, bad breath and decay. It is best to hydrate with tap water, as it contains fluoride. A lack of saliva contributes to tooth decay, so it is critical that you keep up your personal oral hygiene. If you wear a mask at work all day and cannot brush after eating, rinse out your mouth well to remove any food particles.

Stephen Petras is an Illinois-licensed general dentist at the Stockton Dental Center.

Jet memorial seeks donations

Dick Gambrel of Chana, Bing Wells of Lena and AJ Kerr of Freeport work on the Northwest Illinois F-4 Jet Memorial in Lena, where they are hoping to close up the aircraft soon and get it ready for painting. Gambrel flew in the second seat of the F-4 when he served in the military. A committee is seeking donations toward the restoration of the jet and a memorial park. Committee members note that donations have been lagging since stay-at-home orders have affected the state. To make a donation, make checks payable to Northwest Illinois F4 Jet Memorial, and mail to P.O. Box 290, Lena, IL 61048. A donation of at least $150 allows the donor to have their name engraved on a brick at the site. Donations are tax deductible.
