Look forward, not back

I remember my first spring planting corn. Things were going real well all day long as I drove up and down the field turning on the ends and following the mark that the planter left in the freshly worked soil. I kept my eyes looking forward centering the mark in the soil right down the middle of the tractor hood so as to keep nice straight rows. I was taught to keep my eyes looking straight ahead trusting that the planter was trailing in a straight line. I was doing a good job for the longest time, and then as I neared the end of the field, for some reason, I turned around quickly glancing back at the planter behind the tractor. When I looked forward, much to my great dismay, I had veered to the right several feet. I must have turned the steering wheel slightly to the right when I looked back for that moment. I quickly got the front end back on the mark and hoping I hadn't messed up too much. Well I had. The worst part of that deal was that the field was right by one of the main roads that ran by the farm

By SCOTT CERNEK

for all the neighbors and passersby to see. As the corn began to grow a few days later, I watched in horror as one set of corn rows jutted hard to the right and then straightened out again. It looked as if the driver had fallen asleep at the wheel or something. The taller the corn grew the worse it looked. All summer those rows screamed out to me whenever I drove by. I couldn't wait for the harvest so we could finally get those corn rows cut down and put my bad dream to rest.

Today most farmers never have to worry about such things. They actually have GPS's in their tractors that steer the tractor and keep every row in every field straight and true. It's kind of sad that everything is so technical these days. Pretty soon we won't have to think about anything. We'll just hop in our cars and set the autopilot to our destination, sit back and relax as the car drives itself. I guess that's already happening in some places.

Jesus explained the concept of keeping one's eyes focused on the prize ahead, and not looking back. He said this in the gospel of Luke 9:62 "No one who puts his hand to the plow and then looks back is fit for the kingdom of God." The Lord wants us to be focused on what really matters in life and that would be the eternal things like salvation, grateful hearts, giving praise to God, longing for His return, as well as lifting up our burdens and concerns to Him. Prayer is simply telling God about your life and asking him to help keep you close to him. Philippians 3:13 says, But one thing I do: Forgetting what is behind and straining toward what is ahead, I press on toward the goal to win the prize of God's heavenly calling in Christ Jesus. Keep your focus on Him my friends. Until next week, God bless!
