During this time the men spend time visiting, playing games, and getting to know each other better. Bible Study is offered 6:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month. Craftsmen is held from 3:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on the third Wednesday of each month. During this time there are snacks, a brief devotional thought, and plenty of time to work on crafts individually or together. All of the above-mentioned events are hosted on the lower level of Salem United Church of Christ, and all are welcome to join. For more information on any of these gatherings, you can contact salemwingsofjoy@yahoo.com.

Obituary

CLARE YACKLE

Clare Yackle of Oakley Courts, Freeport, and formerly Lake Carroll, went to her heavenly home on May 13, 2023, at the age of 96. Clare was born on April 16, 1927 to George Clifford and Mildred LaRosh Lloyd. She attended both grade and high school in Spring Hill, KS, where she met her future husband, Norman Yackle.

After high school graduation Clare moved to Kansas City, MO to attend business college. For five years she rode across town in a streetcar and worked as a private secretary. Norman served in the Coast Guard during this time, and then earned a bachelor's degree from Kansas University. The couple saw each other on weekends to attend football games, dance to big name bands in Kansas City, and to spend time in Spring Hill with their parents. Clare and Norman were married on June 25, 1950, in Spring Hill United Methodist Church. That fall, Norman attended the University of Iowa to earn his master's degree, and Clare worked in the Old Capitol building as secretary. They enjoyed their time in Iowa City, attending many college basketball and football games and theater presentations, and sneaking onto the golf course to play golf.

Clare and Norman moved to Shannon in 1951, where Norman was hired as a coach and teacher. The first year there, Clare was secretary to the superintendent. They were parents of four children, Michele, Mike, Mary and Marcy. In 1982 they moved to Lake Carroll, IL, where they enjoyed going on nature walks and spending many hours on the golf course.

In June 2000, Clare and Norman celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary surrounded by friends and family. Clare was very proud of her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, and kept up with their activities with great interest.

Clare was a long-time member of Shannon Bethel United Methodist Church, where she taught Sunday school for over 50 years. She was a member of Bethel United Methodist Women, the Shannon American Legion Auxiliary, the Lake Carroll Ladies' Golf League, and the Lake Carroll Red Hat Society. For years after her husband died, Clare organized a Relay for Life team called "Stormin' for Norman".

She is survived by her brother Merrill (Joan) Lloyd, sister-in-law LeEllen Lloyd, three daughters, Michelle (Mark) Horner of Shannon, Mary (Tim) Berryhill of Stockton, IL, and Marcy (C.T.) Campbell of Luray, VA, son Mike (Linda) Yackle of Crystal Lake, IL, and numerous cousins, nieces, and nephews. She is also survived by seven grandchildren, Rachel (Kelcey) Brackett, Ben (Elisa) Horner, Derek Berryhill, Rose (Jake) Stoecker, Nick (Jessica) Yackle, Norman (Kelsey) Yackle, and Monica Campbell. Also surviving are five great-grandchildren, Arys and Dell Brackett, Isla Horner, and Piper and Penelope Yackle.

Preceding her in death were her parents, her husband Norman, brother George and sister-in-law Rosemary Lloyd, sister Betty and brother-in-law Glenn Kappelman, brother Damon, and grandson Richard Berryhill.

A visitation was held on Tuesday, May 16 at Bethel United Methodist Church in Shannon. The funeral was held Wednesday, May 17, also at Bethel United Methodist Church in Shannon, with Pastors Brenda Norris and Dawn Barr officiating.

Burial was in Chapel Hill Memorial Gardens in Freeport.

A memorial fund has been established for Shannon Bethel United Methodist Church.

American Pickers to film in Illinois

The American Pickers are excited to return to Illinois! They plan to film episodes of The History Channel hit television series throughout your area in July 2023.

American Pickers is a documentary series that explores the fascinating world of antique "picking" on The History Channel. The hit show follows skilled pickers in the business, as they hunt for America's most valuable antiques. They are always excited to find historically significant or rare items, in addition to unforgettable Characters and their collections.

As they hit the back roads from coast to coast, the Pickers are on a mission to recycle and rescue forgotten relics. Along the way, they want to meet characters with amazing stories and fun items. They hope to give historically significant objects a new lease on life while learning a thing or two about America's past along the way. The Pickers have seen a lot of rusty gold over the years and are always looking to discover something they've never seen before. They are ready to find extraordinary items and hear fascinating tales about them.

We at American Pickers continue to take the pandemic very seriously and will be following all guidelines and protocols for safe filming outlined by the state and CDC. Nevertheless, we are excited to continue reaching the many collectors in the area to discuss their years of picking and are eager to hear their memorable stories.

The American Pickers TV Show is looking for leads and would love to explore your hidden treasure. If you or someone you know has a unique item, story to tell, and is ready to sell...we would love to hear from you! Please note, the Pickers do not pick stores, flea markets, malls, auction businesses, museums, or anything open to the public.

If interested, please send your name, phone number, location, and description of the collection with photos to americanpickers@cinetflix.com or call (646) 493-2184 facebook: @GotAPick.

Highland Chemistry lab donation funds the purchase of equipment for students

A donation to the Highland Community College Foundation by Fred and Carol Redmore was used to purchase a Thermo Scientific Nicolet iS5™ infrared spectrometer for Highland's Chemistry lab. Fred Redmore taught Chemistry at Highland for more than 40 years, and Carol Redmore taught English.

Spectroscopy is the study of the interaction of light and matter. Chemists commonly use infrared spectroscopy in their chemical investigations. In some ways, the bonds that hold atoms together in molecules can be reasonably modeled as springs. The springs can be made to bend and stretch with infrared radiation. The infrared spectrometer measures the intensity of infrared radiation applied and compares it to the infrared radiation that passes through the sample. Different bonds have different characteristic absorptions of radiation. From the different infrared absorptions, investigators can piece together the structural features of the molecules.

"The donation came at the perfect time as our previous instrument ran MS-DOS 3.0 and used floppy disks for data storage," said John Sullivan, Highland Chemistry instructor. "The new instrument is a current generation and is used in many local workplaces for analysis and quality control of products."

Daniel Creuzer, a Highland student planning to go into the medical field, shares working with the spectrometer on an Honors Program project provided a meaningful additional path for him to learn data gathering. "I had a lot of fun working on the project, and I'd totally do it again," Creuzer said. "John Sullivan was an excellent mentor during the project. He provided hints during the project that allowed me to find the answers myself without explicitly telling me what I had to do. For example, I learned Beer's law quite a bit ahead of when it was presented in the normal class materials, and that helped me understand what kind of information I was supposed to be getting."

Elevated Voices celebrates Juneteenth with Wild West themed event

"Elevated Voices" Non-Profit Collective Celebrates Juneteenth with Wild West Themed Event Freeport, IL - The "Elevated Voices" non-profit collective, founded by Alana Paige and Phylinese Brooks, is pleased to announce their upcoming event on June 17th at the Stephenson County Fairgrounds from 1-6pm. This year's event will pay homage to the Wild West and celebrate Juneteenth, a holiday commemorating the emancipation of enslaved African Americans in the United States.

Through Black art, expression, and voices, Elevated Voices hopes to cultivate a more profound and vital understanding of one another while also creating a space for Black creatives of all mediums to thrive, allowing them to feel empowered, seen, and heard. With this year's event, they aim to expand the image of Blackness by honoring the contributions of Black cowboys and cowgirls, who played a significant role in the Wild West era yet are often underrepresented in local fairs and rodeos.

"We want to celebrate the rise of Black people after emancipation was passed, especially after June 19th, 1865 - Juneteenth," said Alana Paige, co-founder of Elevated Voices. "This event is an opportunity for our community to come together, honor our ancestors' contributions, and elevate their stories."

The event will feature various forms of Black art, including music, spoken word, and visual arts, as well as food and beverages from local vendors. Attendees are encouraged to come dressed in their Wild West best and join in the festivities. "We invite everyone to join us in celebrating this momentous occasion and honoring the contributions of our ancestors," said Phylinese Brooks, co-founder of Elevated Voices. "This event is an opportunity to come together as a community, have fun, and learn about Black history and culture."

NWILED awards the John D. Cooke, III Memorial Entrepreneurial Scholarship

Beginning in 2018 Northwest Illinois Economic Development (NWILED) began offering an entrepreneurial scholarship. In 2021, the scholarship was renamed in honor and remembrance of the late John Cooke III who was a founding member of the organization. This year, NWILED was pleased to announce four scholarships across our service area.

The 2023 winners of the NWILED John D. Cooke, III Memorial Entrepreneurial Scholarship are:

Winner: Chase Dittmar – Galena High School, $2,000

Runner Up: Jacob Furlong – Galena High School, $1,500

Runner Up: Katie Barch – Stockton High School, $1,500

Honorable Mention: Zachary Pauley – Chadwick-Milledgeville High School, $1,000.

Through the Cooke scholarship, NWILED hopes to enrich the lives of deserving students in our service area that are entrepreneurial and want to start a business or pursue a career in business. We received 10 applications this year. Our winner, Chase Dittmar, plans to attend Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa to pursue a degree in biology and environmental science. While working on his degree, Mr. Dittmar intends to advance his agri-tourism beekeeping business by purchasing additional beehives, filing for his LLC application, creating a label for his honey products, and growing his market presence.

Slices of life

Being someone's You

By JILL PERTLER
Columnist

There are some things I really miss.

Lots of them, actually. When I called him, I knew he'd pick up if he could. And if he couldn't, I knew he'd call me back as soon as he was able, and probably send a text before that.

When he answered my calls, I'd often say, "It's me," and he'd answer "Hello, You!"

I miss being someone's You.

In his phone contacts, he had me listed as AAJill, so that my number would show up at the top of his list.

I miss being at the top of someone's list. I miss being their AA.

Sometimes I'd have an itch on my back that I couldn't reach. I'd simply ask him to scratch that particular spot. It was no big deal.

I miss having something as simple and complex as an itch being no big deal. I miss having someone to scratch my back.

I miss having someone who has my back.

The other day, I got tangled up while trying to get out of a complicated bathing suit. Seriously. It would have been hilarious if I wasn't trapped, contorted and alone.

The suit had lots of criss-crosses in the back and I found myself unable to navigate the web of straps. In the old days, I would have summoned for my husband's help. He would've given me a hard time about it, and we both would have laughed, but he would have helped me free myself from the fabric.

I miss his help. I miss him teasing me and giving me a hard time. I miss us laughing together. I miss having someone who will help free me from life's tangles and awkward spots.

He was really proud that I wrote this column. He'd bring it up in conversation with people we didn't know well, and I'd sort of cringe because I didn't want the spotlight on me.

I miss having someone be proud of my writing, or any of the things I do. I miss him building me up.

We used to take each other for granted. After 33 years of marriage, I think that's pretty common, but it isn't necessarily a negative thing. He took it for granted that I'd prep the coffee every night. I took it for granted that he'd pour me my first cup every morning. I took it for granted that we'd go to bed together each night. He took it for granted that we'd make the bed together each morning.

I miss being taken for granted and having someone to take for granted.

State tax credit a bipartisan approach to easing Illinois' affordable housing deficit

By State Rep. Dagmara Avelar and State Rep. Ryan Spain

All around Illinois, the signs of change are apparent. The COVID-19 pandemic changed our economy, how we live and work, and how working-class and lower-income families struggle day to day.

We come together to argue for a solution to one of our state's most pressing needs to address this change head on: affordable housing. This is not a regional problem, or one of partisan politics. We all know someone who needs help finding a home to call their own, without bankrupting them.

Illinois is far from alone, as our nation grapples with a tenacious housing crisis. As the Illinois Housing Council shared in a report last fall, our state has the eighth-highest deficit of homes nationally, and our housing deficit has grown 64 percent just in the past decade.

Without affordable housing, Illinois cannot grow its population or attract new businesses. Our families cannot build wealth and save for a better future. Residents travel farther for jobs, for education, for basic services. Stress grows in our economy, our environment, and on every form of public service.

We are coming together as a Democrat and Republican in the Illinois House for a better path forward. The Build Illinois Homes Tax Credit would build on our state's most successful production tool—the federal Low-Income Housing Tax Credit—to attract private investment for shovel ready affordable housing developments that cannot move forward due to financing gaps.

As envisioned under House Bill 2044, Illinois can take a major step toward addressing its affordable housing shortage by mirroring that successful federal tax credit program with a state credit that more than 20 other states already have adopted.

Guidelines for writing, submitting a letter to the editor

Rock Valley Publishing encourages readers to reach out to the community by writing a letter to the editor.

Letters are limited to 500 words. Authors must include their first and last name, the city or village in which they reside, and a phone number and email address where they can be reached in case of questions.

Send letters to: scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com
Letter-writers will be limited to one letter per month except for locally elected officials, or individuals specifically associated with local village governments or entities such as school districts, park districts or library districts.

No letters directed to a third party will be accepted for publication.

We reserve the right to edit a letter for reasons of clarity, space restrictions and libel.

The Build Illinois Homes State Tax Credit calls for creating an estimated 3,500 homes or apartments each year, generating nearly $1 billion in economic activity and $300 million in state and local taxes paid over the next decade, and more than 17,000 jobs supported during that time. Each annual round of tax credits will cost the state $350 million spread over 10 years, but the economic returns generated from the program will more than offset the cost.

If the Legislature and governor approve the tax credit as part of next year's state budget, Illinoisans will pay nothing to support it for several years unlike most state grant programs. Developers receiving the credit use its promise to finance their project fully upfront, and then must complete construction that meets state guidelines and must have qualified tenants move in before investors can collect a single dollar in credits. Unlike grant dollars, any investor found not to be following the credit's rules must pay back tax dollars they receive.

We stepped up in the Legislature during the pandemic to invest $225 million in federal dollars to ensure affordable housing developments could move forward because of funding shortfalls caused by rising interest rates, inflation on construction costs or other financing challenges. But those funds are running out, and our long-term needs are growing. If we do not act now, Illinois will see a drop in the production of desperately needed affordable homes and apartments.

Workers relocating to our suburbs for warehouse and logistics jobs need affordable housing for our economic success. Seniors and working families on smaller incomes in our cities, suburbs, and rural areas need affordable housing to stabilize their lives. Our neighbors struggling with homelessness need access to safe and stable housing coupled with services. We know the will to create more affordable housing is strong, and we believe the Build Illinois Homes Tax Credit is the way.

We urge our colleagues in Springfield to embrace our changing post-pandemic world and make a commitment to affordable, accessible, quality housing throughout our great state. Support the Build Illinois Homes Tax Credit.

He talked about his grandparents and how they used to shop for dinner each day at the grocery store. We couldn't wait to do that. To waste time at the grocery store, as a couple, without kids, carrying one of those mini baskets because we didn't need a whole cart.

I miss that this never happened for us.

I miss lots of things that happened and never got the chance to happen. Many details. I miss everything. The things we had and the things we planned for. I miss him.

That won't change.

But I am here and he isn't and I have to do the best with what I have. It isn't my first choice, but it's what I've got.

It's what we've all got. Making the best with what we have.

While still remembering how nice it was to be someone's You.

Army Corps to implement 'lessons learned' from 2022 low water levels

By Timothy Eggert
FARMWEEK

Top leaders with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said the service is working to insulate the ag industry from negative impacts similar to those caused when dry conditions dramatically lowered Mississippi River water levels last fall.

Despite dredging efforts and shortened barge tow lengths implemented at the time, the low water levels from October to late November — peak harvest time — closed locks and dams, snarled barge traffic, halted the flow of grain and sent freight rates skyrocketing.

Appearing at a Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works hearing over the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers fiscal year 2024 budget, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works Michael Connor said the service this year is leaning on “lessons learned” from that period to “try and ensure that the next drought doesn’t have a steep impact.”

When Mississippi River levels fall as low as they did last year, there is “significant immediate economic impact” because “you can’t efficiently move product,” Connor said, adding “that reverberates (in) the agricultural community.”

He was responding to U.S. Sen. John Boozman, R-Arkansas, the ranking member of the Senate Ag Committee, who said most ag products nationwide are exported via water system infrastructure.

“Our inland waterways, our ports and harbors are so vital” to farmers who rely on them for inputs and trade, and to consumers who depend on their efficiency to keep food costs affordable, Boozman said.

While the upper portions of the river currently don’t reflect the exposed riverbed like last fall — areas from St. Paul, Minnesota, to Burlington, Iowa, largely remained above flood stage through late April and early May because of severe winter snow melt — they could again drop this summer and fall if severe dry conditions repeat.

In addition to dredging and working with the ag industry to manage portions of the river, Connor said the Corps is continuing to develop a “long-term strategy” for drought contingency planning across all the inland waterway systems it oversees.

That strategy includes using Corps’ authorities under the Environmental Infrastructure Program and standard operations to make changes that can “provide more water” and to see whether “ecosystem restoration might take pressure off water supply in our tribal programs and planning programs,” Connor said.

Lt. Gen. Scott Spellmon, the 55th Chief of Engineers and Corps’ commanding general, said the Corps’ budget for research and development has quadrupled to $86 million under its current request.

If appropriated, parts of those funds would be used to improve inland waterway system modeling and apply reservoir forecasting and changing precipitation patterns to better predict drought-related stress periods, Spellmon said. The Corps’ total $7.41 billion FY 2024 budget request is its largest ever, one that would spend more than $2 billion on general construction, including $1.726 billion worth of improvements to coastal and Great Lakes ports via the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund and over $1 billion on inland waterways.

A total $4.47 billion would go to operation and maintenance costs, with the Mississippi River and Tributaries program calling for $232 million. Budget plans for construction projects and maintenance to Corps’ facilities along Illinois portions of the Mississippi River and state waterways, including the Chicago, Illinois and Kaskaskia rivers total around $282.5 million.

Major items include a combined $106 million for regular maintenance at Illinois sites on the Mississippi River such as dredging and repairs, and specific projects such as replacing the kevel rail at lock and dams 18 and 20 and repairing concrete at Lock and Dam 21.

Broncos capture Regional Championship

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Orangeville Broncos added to their list of accolades with their 2023 softball postseason run. After pinning themselves as NUIC-East Champs, the Broncos went on to earn the Regional Championship as well.

The Broncos opened their 2023 postseason with a matchup against the Milledgeville Missiles. Despite being played in Lanark, the Broncos had the privilege of playing as the home team. Orangeville was the high seed, as Milledgeville finished the season with a record of 9-11 while the Broncos were 26-2. Orangeville wasted little time getting out to a lead. In the bottom of the first with two outs, Addyson Wheeler got the party started with a solo shot over the left field fence.

The Broncos blew the game wide open in the bottom of the third. This time, it was Anicka Kraft with the big hit as she crushed a two-run homerun to put the Broncos up 5-0. Defensively, Leah Baker tossed a gem for the Broncos. She got the win on the mound with seven strikeouts and just two hits allowed in six innings of work. Laney Holland shut things down with two strikeouts in the seventh as the Broncos got the 10-1 win.

Kraft led the way offensively, going three for four with three runs scored and four runs batted in. Hanna Broge was the only other Bronco with multiple hits as she went two for four with two RBI. Wheeler finished the day one for two with a pair of walks and three runs scored.

The victory propelled them into the regional championship where they were set to face off with a familiar opponent. The Broncos played against the Lena-Winslow Panthers twice in the regular season, with Orangeville winning both games by scores of 12-3 and 8-4. The Broncos looked to complete the three-game sweep over the Panthers on May 19.

The first inning was an offensive shootout. The Panthers put a pair of runs on the board in the top half. After a leadoff single by Rachael Setterstrom, Emma Kempel hit a groundball that drove a pair in. The Broncos responded with five runs of their own in the bottom half. Once again, Orangeville had an early boom shot as Meghan Holder hit a leadoff homer over the left field fence. Wheeler, Meghan Carlisle, and Kraft then hit three consecutive singles to tie the game at 2-2. Before the first inning came to an end, the Broncos had their second homer as Isabelle Talbert roped a three-run shot over the left field fence. Thanks to the big hits, the Broncos held an early 5-2 lead.

Things slowed down after the big first inning. At the end of the fourth, the Broncos held a 6-2 lead. The Panthers began to chip away at the four-run deficit in the fifth and sixth innings, however. Madigan led off the fifth with a solo homerun. Later, Kaidynce Lynch hit an RBI double to left to bring them within two. Then, with two outs in the sixth, Hailee Schiess hit a two-run homer to center. The big shot made it a one run game as the Panthers trailed the Broncos 7-6.

With the one-run lead, Baker came back out to the mound with the championship on the line. Baker made quick work of the Panthers, getting three groundouts and capturing the 7-6 win for Orangeville. Baker tossed another complete game, going seven innings with seven strikeouts and six earned runs allowed.

At the plate, Talbert led the way going two for three with three RBI. Wheeler was two for four with one RBI, and Carlisle added two hits in the win. Kempel led the way for the Panthers, going three for four with two RBI. Schiess also impressed, going two for four with two runs scored and two RBI. Cierra Hatelak was also two for four in the loss.

The win propelled the Broncos into the next round where they faced off with Forreton earlier this week.

Panther baseball left unsatisfied after 2023 season

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Lena-Winslow Panthers had high hopes when it came to the 2023 baseball season. Not only were the Panthers coming off a regional championship, but they were highly regarded as one of the best teams in the area by numerous local coaches. Le-Win put their talents on display throughout the regular season, earning the one seed with a 14-6 overall record.

As always, teams are hoping to play their best ball at the end of the season heading into the playoffs. Despite the number one seed, that wasn't the case for this year's Panthers. Le-Win suffered a three-game losing streak to end the regular season. In those three games, the Panthers scored just eight total runs as they fell to Warren-Stockton, River Ridge-Scales Mound, and Milledgeville.

To Lena-Winslow Head Coach, Nick Werhane, the skid began even before the three-game losing streak. "We definitely hit a slump during the last couple weeks," Werhane said, explaining, "Looking back, I feel that it started after our second game against Pearl city. We battled really hard against an extremely good pitcher and team and came up a little short." Not only did that series take a bit out of the Panthers' sails, but they were never one-hundred percent health-wise again either. Werhane shared, "I found out the next day that Drew Streckwald tweaked his hamstring trying to beat out a play at first." The loss batting of Streckwald was a major impact for the Panthers. Streckwald was one of the team's top hitters with a .380 batting average. "He never got back to one hundred percent after that, so we had to try and give him rest here and there to get it to heal," Werhane said.

The injury to Streckwald changed everything for the Panthers. Werhane explained, "The boys did an awesome job stepping up, but when one of your senior leaders is not at full strength, it can really change the team's dynamic. At the same time, our bats as a whole went cold, and we had a few games where our defense was not our best. Those are things that give coaches nightmares at the end of the regular season."

The Panthers saw those exact struggles continue into the postseason. Thanks to the one seed, Le-Win had a bye through the first round of regionals. Prior to their first matchup of the postseason, Le-Win played host to Forreton. It looked like the Panthers finally awoke their bats as they put up seven runs on eight hits. Streckwald, despite the injury, went two for three with two runs batted in. C Lynch also had a multi-hit day, going two for three with two RBI and one run scored. Luke Madigan also had two RBI as Le-Win beat Forreton 7-6.

Just two days later, the Panthers found themselves playing host to the Aquin Bulldogs in Hebron. Just when it looked like the Le-Win offense has restored their power, they posted just four hits in a 6-3 loss to Aquin. It's obvious, but teams can't afford that type of offensive slump in the postseason, especially a team that relies on their offense as Le-Win does. Rowen Schulz was a bright spot on the offense with two hits in four at bats, but that was half of Le-Win's hits in the game. Madigan added two more RBI, but it wasn't enough. The Panthers found themselves upset in regional play as Aquin moved on.

U.S. Supreme Court leaves assault weapons ban in place, for now

Plaintiffs had requested injunction pending appeal

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS
Illinois' ban on assault-style weapons and large capacity magazines will remain in force, at least for the time being. The U.S. Supreme Court on May 17 declined to grant a temporary injunction to block enforcement of the law, known as the Protect Illinois Communities Act, pending an appeal of five consolidated lower court decisions at the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

On April 26, the National Association for Gun Rights, or NAGR, filed an application for an injunction with Justice Amy Coney Barrett, who hears emergency requests from the Seventh Circuit. According to a notation on the court's website, Barrett referred the application to the full court, which declined to issue the injunction.

The court did not issue an opinion giving its reasons for the denial. It would have taken votes from five justices to grant the injunction. Once the full court has acted on an application, the application is considered closed and there is no further opportunity to request the same relief.

State Rep. Bob Morgan, D-Deerfield, who was the law's chief sponsor in the House, issued a statement praising the court's decision.

"The Protect Illinois Communities Act has already prevented the sale of thousands of assault weapons and high-capacity magazines in our state," he said. "This ruling is a victory in the fight to keep these weapons of war from creating more carnage in communities like mine and countless others across this state."

NAGR, along with a Naperville gun dealer, are plaintiffs in a lawsuit challenging both the state weapons ban and a local ban enacted by the city of Naperville in August 2022. Both laws were enacted in response to a mass shooting at an Independence Day parade in Highland Park that left seven people dead and scores more injured or traumatized.

On Feb. 17, U.S. District Judge Virginia Kendall declined to block the laws while the case was being heard. In a 33-page opinion, she said the plaintiffs failed to meet the high legal standard for a preliminary injunction.

That standard requires someone to show that they are likely to succeed on the merits of their case, that they will suffer irreparable harm without an injunction, that the "balance of equities" tips in their favor and that an injunction is in the public interest.

On the "balance of equities" test in particular, Kendall said the plaintiffs stand to suffer only "minimal" harms from the ban on the sale and possession of certain weapons. She also said the state and city "compellingly" argued that their laws protect public safety by removing particularly dangerous weapons from circulation.

NAGR appealed that decision to the Seventh Circuit, which also declined to issue an injunction. Wednesday's decision from the U.S. Supreme Court upholds both denials. The Gun Violence Prevention PAC, or G-PAC, issued a statement praising the decision and the state's lawyers. "Stopping enforcement of the law would allow resumption of a continuing flow of new assault weapons and large capacity magazines into our communities," G-Pac said in a statement. "Sale of those dangerous weapons has now stopped and it should never be resumed."

In a separate case in the Southern District of Illinois, Judge Stephen P. McGlynn granted a request for a preliminary injunction on April 28. That ruling involved three consolidated cases, including one filed by the Illinois State Rifle Association.

That order was quickly put on hold by the Seventh Circuit, which is now scheduled to hear a consolidated appeal in five federal cases challenging the law—the three from the Southern District, the NAGR case from the Northern District, and one other Northern District case challenging local weapons bans in Chicago and Cook County.

Oral arguments in that appeal are scheduled for June 29.

Shots fired

On May 17, 2023, at approximately 10:17 p.m., Freeport Police Department officers responded to the 1100 Block of S Galena in reference to shots fired. During the investigation, officers learned that a 19-year-old male victim had sustained a gunshot wound. The victim was transported by ambulance to the Freeport Memorial Hospital in stable condition. The shooting is considered gang related.

The Freeport Police department is investigating the incident and is asking for anyone who has any information to contact either the Freeport Police Department at 815-235-8222, or Staline Area Crime Stoppers at 866-TIPSNOW or through texting at Tip411.

Tips to Staline Area Crime Stoppers can also be submitted online at www.stalineareacrimestoppers.com or on the P-3 mobile app. Tipsters to Staline Area Crime Stoppers always remain anonymous and may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1000. Staline Area Crime Stoppers is the official Crime Stoppers organization of Freeport and Stephenson County.

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

Summer will officially begin with Memorial Day. School is over and park programs are starting. There seems to be a little more excitement in the air after our long winter. This week we have some picnic recipes and some seasonal rhubarb recipes. Happy cooking!

Halve the tomatoes, re-serve. Trim beans. Bring large pot of salted water to boil. Add beans; cook until just tender, 2 to 3 minutes. Drain, rinsing under cold water until cool, about 1 minute. Pat dry. In a large bowl, whisk together oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Add onion, olives, beans and tomatoes; toss until evenly coated. Add croutons, feta and basil; gently toss until coated and combined. Transfer to a serving bowl.

Macaroni Coleslaw

When thinking about picnic recipes, we often think about potato or macaroni salad. This one would be a great one to have around all summer long. It has the usual slaw mixture but adds macaroni and water chestnuts. You can use ditalini which is a small tubular pasta sometimes referred to as thimble pasta. It doesn't taste any different than regular macaroni, but it is pretty darn cute. The recipe says to use the light Miracle Whip; you can use any mayo you want. Enjoy this upgrade to a classic dish.

- 1 pkg. (7 oz.) macaroni or ditalini
- 1 pkg. (14 oz.) coleslaw mix
- 2 medium onions, finely chopped
- 2 celery ribs, finely chopped
- 1 medium cucumber, finely chopped
- 1 medium green or red pepper, finely chopped
- 1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and chopped

Dressing:

- 1 1/2 C. Miracle Whip Light
- 1/3 C. sugar
- 1/4 C. cider vinegar
- 1/2 t. salt
- 1/4 t. pepper

Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain and rinse in cold water. Transfer to a large bowl; add the coleslaw mix, onions, celery, cucumber, pepper, and water chestnuts. Toss gently. In a small bowl, whisk the dressing ingredients. Pour over salad and toss to coat. Cover and refrigerate for at least an hour.

Green Bean Salad

Memorial Day weekend ushers in the picnic season. This is a great salad that you don't have to worry about spoiling because of the oil and vinegar dressing. You can substitute regular balsamic vinegar for the white. The regular is a little sweeter. If you don't want the sweet taste, use rice vinegar.

- 3/4 C. grape tomatoes
- 12 oz. fresh green beans
- 2 T. olive oil
- 1 T. white balsamic vinegar
- 1/4 t. salt
- 1/4 t. pepper
- 1/3 C. sliced red onion
- 1/3 C. black olives, drained
- 3/4 C. croutons
- 1/2 C. crumbled feta cheese
- 1/2 C. fresh basil leaves fact, at the bottom of the recipe there is a note to remember not to use catsup. However, if you want catsup on your hot dog, I say go for it!

- 1 all beef hot dog
- 1 poppy seed hot dog bun
- 1 T. yellow mustard
- 1 T. sweet green pickle relish
- 1 T. chopped onion
- 4 tomato wedges
- 1 dill pickle spear
- 2 short peppers
- 1 dash of celery salt

Bring a pot of water to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat to low; place hot dog in water and cook until warmed through, about 5 minutes. Remove hot dog from water and set aside. Place the buns in a steamer or wrap in foil and warm in oven for 2 to 4 minutes. Place hot dog on warmed bun. Pile on toppings in this order: mustard, relish, onion, tomato, pickle, peppers, and celery salt. The tomato wedge should be nestled between the hot dog and top of the bun on one side. Place the pickle between the hot dog and the bottom of the bun on the other side.

Rhubarb Streusel Muffins

Since we are into some rhubarb recipes this week (and probably next week too), this recipe is for the breakfast lovers. These muffins are moist because of the sour cream.

- 1/2 C. butter, softened
- 1 C. packed brown sugar
- 1/2 C. sugar
- 1 egg, room temperature
- 2 C. flour
- 1 t. baking powder
- 1/2 t. baking soda
- 1/8 t. salt
- 1 C. sour cream
- 3 C. chopped fresh or frozen rhubarb, thawed

Topping:

- 1/2 C. chopped pecans
 - 1/4 C. packed brown sugar
 - 1 t. cinnamon
 - 1 T. butter
- Preheat the oven to 350. In a large bowl, cream butter, and sugars until light and fluffy, 5 to 7 minutes. Beat in egg. In a separate bowl, combine the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream, beating well after each addition. Fold in rhubarb.

Fill paper lined or greased muffin cups three-fourths full. For topping, combine the pecans, brown sugar and cinnamon in a small bowl; cut in butter until crumbly. Sprinkle over batter. Bake until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean, 22 to 25 minutes. Cool in pans for 5 minutes before moving to a wire rack to cool completely.

Update on antibiotic resistance

By DR. STEPHEN PETRAS
Illinois Licensed
General Dentist

Bacteria are single-celled, living organisms that can reproduce on their own and can survive in a variety of environments, including inside our bodies. Most bacteria are harmless and some even help your body to digest food, absorb nutrients and fight disease. Antibiotics work on the harmful types of bacteria that cause disease by either killing them or interfering with the bacteria's reproduction. Antibiotic resistance occurs when bacteria evolve or change, so that antibiotics no longer affect or kill them. While antibiotic resistance can take place in nature, poor infection prevention and control of infections and frequent and inappropriate use of antibiotics accelerate its spread. One example of this is when antibiotics are mistakenly prescribed for a viral infection. If your infection or illness is caused by a virus it will not respond to an antibiotic. To compound this, the antibiotics can destroy your body's good, or disease-fighting bacteria, which can cause you to develop a serious bacterial infection.

The largest contributor to antibiotic resistance is seen when people stop taking their antibiotics before the prescribed amount of time "because they feel better," or "want to save some for next time." When antibiotics are not taken for the full amount of time prescribed, the weakest bacteria will be killed, but the strongest bacteria are left to grow and develop defense strategies against antibiotics called resistance mechanisms. These resistance traits in their DNA can then be spread to other germs. Several years ago, when I first discussed this issue, there were already certain strains of bacteria that had become resistant to even the most powerful antibiotics.

As more germs evolve multiple and/or complex resistance mechanisms, it can make all antibiotics ineffective, resulting in untreatable infections.

Antibiotic resistance jeopardizes the safety of procedures such as organ transplants, chemotherapy, surgery, and child delivery. Failure to address antibiotic resistance is not an option. It is one of the biggest threats to global health. For example, one of the most antibiotic-resistant pathogens in clinical medicine, Acinetobacter (A.) Baumannii, has developed both intrinsic and acquired mechanisms of resistance. Bloodstream infections from these bacteria have a reported death rate of 34%-43% in ICUs worldwide. A. Baumannii, which is included in the group of antibiotic-resistant germs that the World Health Organization (WHO) deems to be "the greatest threat to human health," has been found in water, soil, and food throughout the world.

The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and WHO annually report on the progress of global efforts to fight antibiotic resistance. While they have made progress with this arduous task, it is admittedly not nearly enough. Thankfully, recent research is benefitting from the combination of advancements in knowledge gained by both the Human Genome Project and technological advances that allow for a better understanding of the bacterial immune system and how organisms develop antibiotic resistance. This means that researchers can use whole-genome sequencing to track the spread of drug-resistant microbes through populations. Insight into the mechanisms behind resistance, whether through mutations that alter the targets of antibiotics or by acquiring dedicated resistance genes from other bacteria, is leading to new ways to circumvent or reverse these. Advances in cryo-electron microscopy have led to the development of a new antibiotic that was shown to be effective against some of the most resistant bacteria in lab testing and is now entering human trials.

As the CDC incorporates these new weapons into its arsenal, they continue to do so in a manner that recognizes the interconnection between people, animals, and plants within their unique environments (water, soil, etc.) throughout the world. The common goal remains to prevent, detect, respond to, and contain infections in a manner that avoids the further development of antibiotic resistance.

There are several critical ways you can help slow the emergence of resistant bacteria and prevent the spread of resistant infections. Taking antibiotics only when they are needed is the most important way you can protect yourself and your family from antibiotic resistance. Never pressure your healthcare provider to prescribe an antibiotic. While viruses differ greatly from bacteria, they can cause some remarkably similar signs and symptoms of certain diseases. Because of the seriousness of antibiotic resistance, your doctor will not wish to prescribe antibiotics without a differential diagnosis to confirm that the cause of the infection is bacterial. Thanks to recent developments in rapid diagnostic testing, confirmation of whether a virus or bacteria is the cause of infection may be reported sooner. When your dentist or physician decides that your infection warrants antibiotics, take them exactly as prescribed. Do not share your antibiotics with anyone. Some people are unknowingly allergic to certain antibiotics and may have a life-threatening reaction that will require emergency medical care. In addition, you do not know if your antibiotics are effective against their particular infection, the potency of antibiotics changes as they age, and inappropriate use of antibiotics may cause a "superinfection".

To prevent the occurrence and spread of infections, teach and model good hand hygiene for your children. Make sure they know how to cover their mouths and properly dispose of tissues when they are ill. Make sure that they rinse off their toothbrushes thoroughly and do not store them in a dark, damp place. Keep them up to date with their vaccinations. Teach them not to share personal items such as drinking glasses, eating utensils, combs, and toothbrushes. Stay home when ill. If you or your child must go out when ill, wear a mask.

Learn to dehydrate fruits and vegetables

Dehydrating food is one of the oldest food preservation methods around. However, safely dehydrating is critical to enjoying dried goods months after harvesting. Whether you want to lighten the weight of your favorite foods for camping and backpacking or preserve fruits and vegetables for later use, drying is an easy and safe option.

Understanding the basic principles behind the dehydrating process is key to its success. Drying or dehydrating removes moisture from food to inhibit the growth of bacteria, mold, and yeast. Moreover, it slows down enzyme activity without deactivating them, ensuring food does not spoil quickly. Did you know that depending on the produce being dried, you may need to pretreat or blanch the items before beginning the drying process? Or that some fruits and vegetables are more suitable for drying than others?

Join University of Illinois Extension's Nutrition and Wellness Educator, Diane Reinhold, for Yes! You Can: Preserve It Safely: Dehydrating: From Grape to Raisin. We will cover the basics of safely selecting, dehydrating and storing fruits and vegetables. As well as discuss the various drying methods and commonly dried foods such as fruits and vegetables in the form of chips or leathers.

Yes! You Can: Preserve It Safely: Dehydrating: From Grape to Raisin will be held in-person on Thursday, June 29 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the University of Illinois Extension-Stephenson County, 2998 W. Pearl City Road Freeport, IL 61032, and virtually via Zoom, Tuesday, June 13 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Reserve a seat today by calling our office at 815-235-4125 the online at go.illinois.edu/jsw. There is a $5 registration fee. If reasonable accommodations are needed to participate in this program, please contact the office at 815-235-4125.

Rosy Rhubarb Upside Down Cake

This rhubarb recipe was sent to me by a friend who loves to make cakes. It is very much like one I have used in the last couple of years. It is moist and pretty on a serving plate.

3 C. cubed fresh rhubarb (about 8 stalks cut into 1-inch pieces)

¾ C. regular sugar

¾ C. water

1 T. lemon juice

½ t. cinnamon

¼ t. nutmeg

Cake:

3 T. butter, melted

¼ C. packed brown sugar

1 C. flour

1 t. baking powder

¼ t. salt

2 eggs

2/3 C. white sugar

1 t. lemon extract

Preheat the oven to 350. In a large saucepan, combine the rhubarb, sugar, water, lemon juice, cinnamon, and nutmeg. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered for 6 to 8 minutes or until rhubarb is crisp tender, stirring to dissolve sugar. Drain, reserving 6 T. cooking liquids.

Pour butter into an 8-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with brown sugar; top with drained rhubarb. In a small bowl, sift flour, baking powder and salt together twice. In a large bowl, beat eggs on high speed for 3 minutes. Gradually add sugar, beating until thick and lemon colored. Beat in extract and reserved cooking liquid. Fold in flour mixture. Pour over rhubarb. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until top springs back when lightly touched. Cool 10 minutes before inverting onto a serving plate. Serve warm.

Final Thoughts

I bought my cemetery pots that hopefully will be able to be used on my front porch. There seems to be a problem with cemetery flowers and pots disappearing. My greenhouse guy was talking about it and we both agreed that stealing anything off graves is disgusting. The only thing lower than stealing is vandalizing graves. At this time of the year, many of us visit cemeteries more than at other times. The people who take care of them work very hard to keep them looking nice. If you see anyone stealing or vandalizing, please report them. I am off my soap box about cemeteries. I spent a lot of teaching years taking students to cemeteries in one of my classes. I hoped to impress upon them the importance of respect.

There has been a lot of action around town with removing trees and trimming them. I guess that is also a sign of summer. I am looking forward to the gardens that are being planted. I know the planting season has had a rough start. Some people are still waiting for the soil to be turned over so that planting can begin. I was gifted with some beautiful asparagus and have been enjoying this wonderful vegetable. Thank you to my friends who have helped me enjoy this seasonal favorite. Rhubarb seems to be the fruit (or vegetable) that people are using. We will continue to look for seasonal recipes.

If you have any summer vegetable or fruit recipes, we would like to see them. If you have any recipes that you would like to share with us, you can contact us in person, by mail at From Lena's Kitchens, The Shopper's Guide at 240 W. Main St. or email us at scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com.

Pearl City Lions 2023 Scholarship Awards recipients

The Pearl City Lions Club annually presents scholarships to several deserving graduating seniors from Pearl City High School. Lionism is dedicated to service to others and applicants for the scholarships are asked to explain in an essay why they think service is important and how they plan on using their future career to serve others.

This year the club is offering two types of scholarships; the college education scholarship for students planning on attending a two- or four-year college and the Career and Technical Education scholarship awarding a CTE program at a community college or tech school. The CTE scholarships are being awarded as the club wishes to encourage students pursuing careers in the trades and vocational areas.

The three recipients of the 2023 Pearl City Lions Club CTE Scholarships in the amount of $1665 each are Laine Rosenstiel, Cade Monks, and Brooklyn Schreck. The Pearl City Lions also awards the Pearl City Lions Underdog Scholarship funded by an anonymous and generous Pearl City High School alum. This scholarship in the amount of $1500 awarded over two years is awarded to a graduating senior who has overcome obstacles in high school and is moving ahead to their post-high school educational pursuits at the college level. The recipient of the Pearl City Lions Underdog Scholarship was Cade Monks.

The disappointing loss left the Panthers hungry for more. Following the loss Werhane said, "If losing the first game of regionals as the one seed isn't motivation, then I shouldn't be coaching anymore. I'm already looking forward to next year and getting back to work. We are going to put in the work, and I'm confident that my returning players will be up for the challenge."

The Panthers will have to face that challenge without a number of key players from 2023, however. They got a little taste of what that will be like with the loss of Streckwald, but Le-Win is losing a solid senior class. "I'm losing five outstanding seniors," Werhane said before listing Wes Offerman, Drew Streckwald, Jake Zeal, Ayden Packard, and Rowen Schulz. This group has left their impact all over Le-Win sports. Streckwald quarterbacked another state title football team. Zeal and Schulz dominated the basketball court for multiple years. Packard and Offerman were underrated, key pieces to their surrounding teams.

"Not only did they lead our program on the field, but they are even better off the field," Werhane shared, adding "They are all excellent in the classroom, in the community, and as sons and brothers. This group is what every baseball player in my program should strive for. Hard work, dedication to your team, love of the game, and respect for others. They have raised the expectations here at Le-Win and the younger players coming up need to look up to their example. They deserved a better ending, but things don't always happen that way."

Surely, it was a bitter ending for the 2023 Panthers. When expectations are so high, it can be hard to end a career feeling satisfied. That's something this group of seniors will have to live the rest of their lives with. Fortunately, they have displayed the mental wherewithal and strength to take it on the chin and use it to make them better men in the future. The future will look a little different for Le-Win baseball, but thanks to this year's senior class, the expectations remain high.
