Slices of life

Sun and shade

By JILL PERTLER
Columnist

I've always loved gardening. No, I'm going to take that a step further: I've always loved growing things.

Growing things—as in flowers, vegetables, friendships, babies and kids, this column, faith, my marriage, knowledge, compassion, kindness and most importantly love. And more, of course. There is always more to grow.

I've learned many insider tips and tricks about growing things over the years. Today I realized I'm still learning.

I'm in a new climate and meeting new neighbors. That's a scenario ripe for learning potential.

I was recently talking with a neighbor. She has numerous plants in her yard that are common in this region, but completely new to me. I asked her about a couple—whether they liked sun or shade, water requirements, whether they were finicky or easy to grow, and so on.

"Oh, honey," she said, "I just plant them. If they grow, they grow. If they don't, they weren't meant for my yard. They have to be happy to be here."

I thought that was insightful and wise.

In my last house I had a large garden plot filled with shade. The owners before me planted roses. Rose plants thrive on sun and temperate winters. I had neither.

However, I did have an ample supply of small children at the time, which prevented me from treating my roses with the TLC they needed to survive in my yard.

So they perished. At the time, I thought: Any plant can grow in the sun. It takes something special to grow in the shade.

I replaced the roses with hostas. Hostas are a common perennial in the cool, dark climates that favor them, but apparently they aren't as widespread as I thought. My autocorrect wants to change the word to "hostess," so apparently they haven't even made their way into some dictionaries.

For those unfamiliar, hostas are sort of leafy northern versions of large-leaved tropical plants.

They typically grow in a round mound, with leaves flowing outward. They can be as small as six inches in diameter or as large as six feet - and just as tall (or short). Cultivars have come up with hundreds (and probably thousands) of named varieties. I believe I had close to 40 or 50 different strains in my backyard.

It took years to build, and was one of the hardest things for me to leave when I sold my house.

But, there were other gardens to grow.

I moved from a plot of ever-present shade and ever-present winter (or so it seemed) to ever-present sun and ever-present warmth. I've looked around and there isn't a hosta to be found in my new environment.

Apparently growing hostas in my yard now would be akin to growing roses in my old plot. With that comes the realization: Not every plant likes the shade. It takes something special to grow in the sun.

Baseball and Grandkids

All my life I have loved the game of baseball. When we were kids living in northwest Indiana, we would watch the Cubs on channel 9 whenever we could. My brothers and I would try and squeeze in a couple innings watching their afternoon games on TV around the farm work if we could. Almost every evening we would go out in the backyard and reenact the game. One of us would play in the field and the other one would toss the ball in the air and hit it. It was really a blessing that they used to play all their home games in the afternoon because then we had the evenings to play our own games. We would also play three on three games in the evening and make it so that if we hit the ball to the opposite field we were automatically out. That way each team was made up of a pitcher, an infielder and an outfielder and it was pretty competitive. Sometimes we had to invoke the invisible runner rule if the bases were loaded so that there would be a batter. Man, did we love the game. I was the youngest boy at the time, so I was always frustrated because I grounded out to the pitcher a lot. Those games drove me to work very hard at getting better and eventually I became a very good player and went on to become a starting catcher on my college team. I also played twenty years of amateur baseball in the Home Talent League in Wisconsin. Along with that I was a high school head baseball coach for twenty-six years. The Cubs are still one of my passions and I check their scores daily.

These days it's sure been having fun teaching my grandkids to play. None of them are in a T-ball league or anything, but they sure love to play the game with Grandpa. I picked up a couple soft baseballs and we seem to play whenever we all get together. For some of them it takes several swings to make contact, but I keep pitching until they do. Even my two-year-old grandson takes his turn swinging the bat. It is so much fun to play with them and cheer loudly when they hit the ball or run from base to base.

This past weekend I came out of retirement at age sixty-one and played in a Co-ed softball tournament in Rewey, Wisconsin. We battled hard but lost our first two games and our championship run was thwarted. In this tournament the men have to bat opposite handed and only get one strike so it's pretty tough. It can be pretty embarrassing for a big strong guy to awkwardly swing opposite handed and strike out or hit a weak grounder or pop up. Luckily, I was a switch hitter in college and so my opposite hand is still pretty solid. The trouble is I was so scared to swing and miss that I didn't put much power into my swings my first couple times up. Later, as my confidence grew, I swung harder and got some base hits. It was fun to still be able to play shortstop too at my age and throw a few people out. There were some very tough girls who played and in fact the lady second baseman made a couple really nice plays on a couple of liners I hit. The major accomplishment on the day was to play and not get injured as last year I pulled a quad muscle and was pretty much shut down. I think all the biking that I wrote about last week really helped my legs.

I feel so blessed to have twelve grandkids to share my passions with. Along with baseball I love to read Bible stories and pray with them whenever we get together at the end of day. In Deuteronomy 6:5-9 we are directed by God to teach our children to love Him and walk with Him. 5 You shall love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your might. 6 And these words that I command you today shall be on your heart. 7 You shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rise. 8 You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes. 9 You shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates. Until next week, God bless!

Herein lies the wisdom of my new neighbor. Not everything can grow everywhere. Plants have to be happy in their environment. You can try forcing them, like the people who planted the roses at my old house, but it's always going to be a battle against nature—against the order of things.

The same goes for people. Sometimes we find the right amount of shade and cool temperatures; other times we seek the sun. Both are good. Both can be good.

Bottom line, we all get to figure out where we grow best. When it's time to put down roots and when it's time to replant and regrow—sunshine or shade or maybe even a little of both.

I'm not sure where that will take me, but for now, right here seems right, but I'm still learning. I hope I never stop.

Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau offering $250 towards ROPS purchase

The Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau would like to offer funds to reimburse farmers for purchasing Rollover Protection Structure (ROPS). Fifty-five percent of farm tractors in Illinois do not have a cab or ROPS. Only one in five victims will survive a tractor rollover accident. The leading cause of farm related deaths in Illinois is tractor rollover accidents. They account for more than 30% of farm related deaths. ROPS help protect farmers and family members from being crushed in the event of a tractor turnover or rollover.

As we are nearing the end of summer, we all start thinking of back to school and the fall weather coming soon. There's still time to do some work around the farm and spruce things up a bit. Why not add a "This is a Family Farm" sign to your landscape? The signs are 17.5" X 23" and cost $30. Stop by our office and pick one up.

Promising research gives hope for the future

We all know that it's important to keep our teeth as clean and healthy as we can. But what if your child was born without any teeth? As I mentioned in a previous column, there is a rare genetic disorder, called anodontia, in which a baby is missing both primary and permanent teeth. A variation of this genetic disorder, called partial

Illinois Licensed

anodontia, occurs when a child is born with some, but not all their teeth. Both of these conditions have a detrimental impact on the child's development, as they affect the ability to chew, swallow, and even speak.

If a child does not start to develop their primary teeth by the age of 13 months, your dentist will want to take x-rays to establish a differential diagnosis between late development, anodontia, or if it is associated with a group of related hereditary conditions referred to as ectodermal dysplasia. If a child develops their primary teeth but does not develop any permanent teeth by age 10, your dentist will take x-rays to establish a differential diagnosis between late development, partial anodontia, or an association with ectodermal dysplasia.

Historically children with anodontia have been treated with dentures that have to be replaced as the child grows. Once their facial bones have stopped growing, they have the option to continue to use dentures or have full mouth implants. The good news is, thanks to decades of research, there is hope for a future in which missing teeth may be grown. The bad news is, this is not estimated to become a reality until the 2030s or later. The study that has been in the news most lately is being headed up by Dr. Katsu Takahashi, head of the dentistry and oral surgery department at Kitano Hospital in Japan. Dr. Takahashi has been dedicated to finding a better solution for anodontia since he graduated

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

We certainly haven't had the beastly weather we expect in August. The weather hasn't been too hot, and everything is green and growing! This week we continue to feature the fruits and vegetables of the season. Have a great week cooking.

Deviled Crab Melts

This great little appetizer can be made with lump crab or imitation crab. It is a good recipe to have for any time of the year. I had an appetizer like this one in Door County. It is one of my favorites.

- 8 English muffins
- 24 oz. crabmeat, chopped
- 1 C. mayonnaise
- 2 T. chopped fresh cilantro
- 2 T. chopped fresh basil
- 1 1/2 t. lime zest
- 1 t. salt
- 1/4 t. chili powder
- 1/8 t. cayenne pepper
- 5 plum tomatoes, cut into 1/4-inch thick slices
- 8 oz. Monterey Jack cheese, shredded

Preheat broiler with oven rack 6 inches from heat. Place muffins on a wire rack on a baking sheet; broil until golden brown, about 3 minutes. Remove pan and set aside. In a large bowl, gently combine crab, mayo, cilantro, basil, lime zest, salt, chili powder, and cayenne. Spread crab mixture over muffin slices. Top evenly with tomato slices and cheese. Return pan to oven and broil until cheese is melted and starting to brown, about 3 minutes. Let cool 5 minutes and serve immediately. Serve with chopped basil on each muffin.

Piña Colada Fruit Salad

This refreshing fruit salad is great for a hot summer day. The beautiful summer fruits are enhanced by the piña colada mix.

- 1 can (10 oz.) frozen non-alcoholic piña colada mix, thawed
- 1/2 C. sugar
- 1/2 C. pineapple-orange juice
- 1/8 t. almond extract
- 1/8 t. coconut extract
- 1 1/2 C. green grapes
- 1 1/2 C. seedless red grapes
- 1 1/2 C. fresh blueberries
- 1 1/2 C. halved fresh strawberries
- 1 can (8 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained
- 1/2 C. fresh raspberries

Mint for garnish
Dressing: mix the piña colada mix, sugar, pineapple-orange juice, and extracts until sugar is dissolved. Place fruit in a large bowl. Toss gently with dressing. Chill for 1 hour before serving. Garnish with mint.

Tuna Pasta Salad

If you are looking for a light summer salad, this tuna pasta salad is a great way to go. It uses a vinaigrette dressing rather than mayo. You can substitute pepperoncini or jalapeño peppers for the banana peppers. You can also substitute white wine vinegar or white vinegar for the Champaign vinegar. It is a great salad for picnics.

- 12 oz. uncooked rotini pasta
- 1 envelope Ranch dressing mix
- 1 T. Champagne vinegar
- 2 t. lemon zest
- 1/4 C. fresh lemon juice
- 2 t. honey
- 1/4 t. kosher salt
- 1/2 C. olive oil
- 2 cans tuna packed in oil, drained
- 2 C. cherry tomatoes, halved
- 1/2 thinly sliced red onion
- 1/2 C. jarred sliced tricolor banana peppers
- 3 C. Arugula

Prepare pasta according to package directions; drain and let cool completely, about 20 minutes. Place in a large bowl. Stir together ranch dressing mix, vinegar, lemon zest and juice, honey, and salt in a small bowl. Slowly drizzle in olive oil in a steady stream, whisking constantly until smooth and combined. Add drained tuna, tomatoes, onion, and peppers to pasta in bowl. Drizzle in dressing; toss gently to coat. Add arugula; toss gently. Serve chilled.

Inside-out Stuffed Cabbage

Cabbage is coming in and so is the squash crop. This easy stovetop recipe is a great one for any hot day. There is a spicy V8 juice if you want a little zip in the dish.

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 2 C. cubed peeled butternut squash
- 1 medium green pepper, chopped
- 1 envelope Lipton onion soup mix
- 1 T. brown sugar
- 1 can (11 1/2 oz.) V8 juice
- 1 C. water
- 6 C. chopped cabbage
- 1/2 C. uncooked instant brown rice

In a Dutch oven, cook beef with squash and pepper over medium-high heat until the beef is no longer pink; crumble the beef and drain. Stir in soup mix, brown sugar, V8 juice, water, and cabbage. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat; simmer, covered until cabbage is tender, 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add rice and return to a boil. Simmer, covered, 5 minutes. Remove from heat; let stand until rice is tender, about 5 minutes.

Piña Colada Zucchini Bread

In keeping with the piña colada theme, this bread uses the zucchini that is so plentiful and produces a different flavor.

- 4 C. flour
- 3 C. sugar
- 2 t. baking powder
- 1 1/2 t. salt
- 1 t. baking soda
- 4 eggs, room temperature
- 1 1/2 C. canola oil
- 1 t. coconut extract
- 1 t. rum extract
- 1 t. vanilla
- 3 C. shredded zucchini
- 1 C. canned crushed pineapple, drained
- 1/2 C. chopped nuts (walnuts or pecans)

Line the bottoms of 3 greased and floured 8 x 4-inch loaf pans with parchment paper; grease the paper; set pans aside. Preheat oven to 350. In a large bowl, combine the flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, and baking soda. In another bowl, whisk the eggs, oil, and extracts. Stir into dry ingredients until just moistened. Fold in the zucchini, pineapple, and nuts. Transfer to prepared pans. Bake for 45 to 55 minutes or until toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool for 10 minutes before removing from pans to wire racks. Gently remove parchment paper from bread.

Raspberry Cream Pie

I was asked for a raspberry pie recipe. I know I have had one before but finding that recipe is sometimes a challenge. This one can use either fresh or frozen raspberries. You can substitute frozen orange concentrate for the orange liqueur if you don't have it. Enjoy this raspberry pie.

- 1 1/2 C. crushed vanilla wafers (about 45)
- 1/3 C. chopped pecans
- 1/4 C. butter, melted
- Filling:
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 2/3 C. powdered sugar
- 2 T. orange liqueur or 2 T. frozen orange concentrate
- 1 t. vanilla
- 1 C. heavy cream, whipped
- Topping:
- 1 C. sugar
- 3 T. cornstarch
- 3 T. water
- 2 1/2 C. fresh or frozen raspberries, divided

Combine the vanilla wafer crumbs, pecans, and butter. Press onto the bottom and up the sides of a greased 9-inch pie plate (use a plastic or metal measuring cup (1/4 C.) to press the crumbs.

In a large bowl, beat the cream cheese, powdered sugar, liqueur, and vanilla until light and fluffy. Fold in whipped cream. Spread onto crust. Chill until serving.

In a small saucepan, combine sugar and cornstarch; stir in the water and 1 1/2 C. raspberries. Bring to a boil; cook and stir for 2 minutes or until thickened. Transfer to a bowl. Refrigerate until chilled. Spread topping over filling. Garnish with remaining 1 cup of berries.

Correction - Blackberry Crisp Recipe

In the Blackberry Crisp Recipe, I had an error in the preparation part of the recipe. I reprinted the whole corrected recipe. Sorry for the omissions.

- 2 C. fresh or frozen blackberries
- 2 T. sugar
- 1 t. cornstarch
- 1 1/2 t. water
- 1/2 t. lemon juice
- 1/2 C. quick cooking oats
- 1/4 C. flour
- 1/4 C. brown sugar
- 1/2 t. cinnamon
- 1/4 C. cold butter
- Vanilla ice cream

Preheat oven to 375. Place blackberries in a greased 1-qt. baking dish. In a small bowl, combine the sugar, cornstarch, water, and lemon juice until smooth. Pour over berries. Combine the oats, flour, brown sugar, and cinnamon in a small bowl; cut in butter until crumbly. Sprinkle over berries. Bake, uncovered, at 375 until filling is bubbly, 20 to 25 minutes. Serve warm with ice cream.

Final Thoughts

Fall sports in the schools have begun, and this school year will start by the time this paper comes out. I always give this word of warning; be careful driving. The students are not always careful when they are moving between buildings and getting off buses and out of cars. Watch your speed and just plain watch. We don't want any accidents, and everyone needs to keep vigilant. That is my public service announcement for this week.

We are gearing up for a great tomato and apple crop. Send any recipes for the great fruits and vegetables of the season. If you have some recipes you would like to share you can contact us in person, by mail at From Lena's Kitchens, The Shopper's Guide at 240 W. Main St. or email us at scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com.

from dental school in 1991. Upon receiving his degree, he temporarily moved to the United States to work with a group of scientists who were studying genes and gene mutations that can affect tooth development in mice. In 2005 he moved back to Japan to join a group of genetic researchers who had identified a certain protein (USAG-1) that could limit the number of teeth that could develop. Since that time the team in Kitano has successfully developed an antibody to USAG-1, that neutralizes or blocks the function of this protein. They have also demonstrated that blocking this protein signals another protein (bone morphogenetic protein or BMP) to grow new teeth. Clinical trials with giving the antibody to mice in 2018 resulted in success in growing teeth. This success was repeated when the antibody was given to ferrets. Clinical trials on humans are scheduled to take place beginning in July 2024.

Researchers at the Technical University in Berlin have been working on a different approach to growing teeth. Their approach involves extracting cells from the dental pulp cells of human teeth and then stimulating them to multiply in the lab. These new cells then undergo treatment, so they do not stick together as they interact and form a three-dimensional ball, referred to as a dental organoid. The goal is to successfully implant this organoid into the patient's jaw, which would then trigger natural tooth growth in the jaw. Although their hypothesis has been successfully demonstrated in vitro (in the lab) they are only starting pre-clinical testing.

I will update this information once any progress is achieved in these or other studies. At any rate, I hope I have instilled in you some new appreciation for your teeth and provided an incentive to take care of your oral health.

Pritzker signs bills expanding protections for Native Americans

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS
Gov. JB Pritzker signed a package of bills Aug. 4 extending cultural protections to Native Americans in Illinois and requiring the teaching of Native American history in public schools. At a bill signing ceremony in Schaumburg, Pritzker highlighted three historic sites that were significant in Native American history in Illinois—the Buel House along the Cherokee Trail of Tears in Pope County; the Pierre Menard Home in Randolph County; and the Kincaid Mounds that contain the remains of a Native American city—and said Illinois needs to acknowledge its role in a dark chapter of history.

“All three of these sites are located within our state’s borders and they represent some of the ugliest parts of our history,” he said. “It’s up to us to right the wrongs of the past and to chart a new course, one that educates our people so we won’t repeat the sins of the past.”

House Bill 3413, the Human Remains Protection Act, establishes procedures for handling human remains and gravesites that are uncovered in Illinois. It also authorizes the Department of Natural Resources to work with the Illinois State Museum and representatives of tribes with historical ties to Illinois to establish a cemetery for the reburial of repatriated Native American remains and materials.

Illinois has the second-largest collection of unrepatriated Native American remains in the U.S., housed by the Illinois State Museum. The museum holds that collection despite the 1990 passage of the federal Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act.

Senate Bill 1446 requires school districts to allow students to wear items of cultural, ethnic or religious significance at their high school graduation. It was prompted in part by an incident in 2022 when a Native American student, Nimkii Curley, at Evanston Township High School was told he could not walk across the stage to receive his diploma with an eagle feather and bead work on his cap and gown.

And House Bill 1633 mandates instruction in Native American history in all social studies courses that teach American history and government. Among those attending the bill signing Aug. 4 was Joseph “Zeke” Rupnick, chairman of the Prairie Band Potawatomi Nation. That nation was once based in DeKalb County, Illinois, but the U.S. General Land Office seized that land in 1849 and sold it at a public auction.

The nation is now headquartered in northeast Kansas where it operates a hotel and casino, but legislation pending in Congress would return more than 130 acres to the Potawatomi and provide them with about $50 million in settlement funds that could be used to reacquire additional land on or near the original reservation.

“The bills signed here into law make it clear that Illinois understands, it is not enough for us to merely exist in a country, in a state built on Native American land, but we must be included as part of the society with equal rights and respect,” Rupnik said.

Get the beautiful smile you’ve always wanted.
