SUDOKU

Fun by the Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test! Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Weekly connection

Combines and harvest time

I saw some farmers out cutting soybeans this past weekend, and so it's safe to assume that the harvest season is officially underway. The first self-propelled combine we ever had was an International 303. It had a two-row corn head and a 13-foot grain head. There was no cab on it and when dad came in from cutting beans all afternoon, he used to be covered in dust from head to toe. We used to gather around and watch him wash up for dinner just to watch the dust and dirt turn the water in the sink from clear to black. The fact that our combine didn't have a cab didn't seem to bother him at all. The 303 was such an improvement over the New Idea pull type combine that it didn't matter how dirty, hot, or cold the driver got - it was worth it. In those early days we would park a couple gravity flow wagons on one end of the field

By SCOTT CERNEK
Columnist

would lift the front end of the truck to empty out the grain bed because our truck didn't have its own hoist. We used to love sitting in the cab while it went up.

A few years later we got an IH 715 combine, and then a 915, which led to a 1460 which we had for a long, long time. It still sits in the machinery graveyard out back. I have very fond memories of that IH 1460. We had a rear wheel assist put on and that thing could go anywhere. I remember first learning to unload on the go right into the grain cart as we kept right on picking, and how that really sped things up. In the late 70s and into the 80s we began to rent more farmland, and my brothers and I would combine late into the night and right on into the early morning hours when the weather was good. The bright lights on the combine really lit up the fields and it was just like picking in the daytime. We would be so tired though, that we could hardly keep our eyes open. We had radios in all the harvest equipment so whoever was in the grain cart would sometimes have to be awoken by the combine driver to drive to the combine so it could unload. Then when the grain cart driver filled up the truck, he might have to radio the truck driver to wake up and haul the load up to the bin. The whole program was pretty much dependent on the combine driver as he was never able to catch one of those catnaps.

The worst of it was coming in at 2 or 3 a.m. and then having to get up at 4 to do and the 46 International grain truck on the other end and dad would stop and unload going each way. Slowly, the wagons and truck would fill up and be hauled up to the bins for unloading. It was us kids' job to unload the wagons, but when the truck got full, dad would shut down the combine and drive the truck up to our bins or take it right to the grain elevator in town to unload. I remember he or my grandpa would pull the front tires onto planks that made up a wooden lift at the elevator and up - up - up it the milking. We were like a bunch of zombies for days at a time in the fall. If it rained for a day or two, we celebrated and tried to catch up on our sleep so we could get back at it. I sure have some great memories of those years. We loved the harvest time and all the hard work. We knew that if we got enough rain during the summer, and if we really worked hard, we would be able to make the farm payment each year and the land rent. And just maybe there might be enough left over to pick up another tractor or something else to make the work easier. It's clear from scripture that God expects us to work. 2 Thessalonians 3:10 tells us, "For even when we were with you, we would give you this command: If anyone is not willing to work, let him not eat." By the way, I am going to be speaking at the Winneshiek Evangelical Free Church near Freeport on Sunday, Oct. 1 at 2 p.m. as part of their homecoming celebration. Hope to see some of you there. Until next week, God bless.
