Gary L. Rote, 85, of Cedarville, IL, passed away at home, Thursday, Jan. 4, 2024, with his family by his side. He was born Sept. 13, 1938, in Monroe, WI to William H. and Helen (Bellville) Rote. On June 28, 1958, he married Marlene Wild at Stavers United Methodist Church in rural Monroe.

- The Greatest Book Ever Written -

Do you have a Bible!? If so, you have in your possession, the greatest book ever written, the most amazing book in all the world, the only place in all humanity, in all human history where you are given the bedrock, undiluted truth about life. The word of God gives you the insights of God into life, the explanation of who you are, what God intended you to be and what will fulfill you. No book is more important to learn, to feed upon, than the word of God. This book tells you where humanity ran off the tracks and it explains clearly how to get back on the narrow path.

It's a big book, it takes a lot of reading, a lot of studying, a lot of thinking and meditating to grasp what it says. But when you do, it will change your life; it will lead you into fullness, liberty & beauty. That's what the Bible is for. To feed upon this word is tremendously significant & important.

Thank you to the Lena Lions, Lena Area Church Cooperative and Leamon's for remembering me during the holiday season.

Obituary

HELEN FULLERTON

Helen Marie (Rockey) Fullerton, 92 passed peacefully surrounded by family at 12:03 p.m. on Dec. 28, 2023. Helen was born in Freeport on Aug. 24, 1931, to Dr. LF and Flossie (Priewe) Rocky. She was the eldest of three daughters. She had a very happy childhood in Orangeville and Freeport. She graduated from Freeport High School in 1949. To this day she could tell you who lived in every house around her neighborhood and beyond. It was a close community and in those days, everyone knew their neighbors.

It was during her Home Economics studies at Purdue University that she met her future husband, Charles D. Fullerton. They were married on her 21st birthday in 1952. Together they made their home after graduation in LaFayette, Indiana. During the next 12 years two daughters were born, and in 1964 they moved to be closer to family in Freeport. They built a house south of Eleroy, Illinois. Helen enjoyed being a stay-at-home Mom, while doing some substitute teaching in area schools.

In 1968, they moved west of Freeport to Harlem Center Road and enjoyed country living. Helen started a dog boarding kennel they called "Chelen's Kennel", which stands for Chuck plus Helen. She loved watching other people's dogs, even though they had seven dogs of their own. It has been rumored that if you sent a post card to your pet while on vacation, she would go out and read the card to your pet. She put her heart into everything she did.

When her daughters were in high school, Helen went to work outside the home. She very much enjoyed the years she worked at Economy, St. Paul, and Met Life Insurance companies in Freeport. Many co-workers will remember enjoying the baked goodies she loved to share at work.

When they bought a 5th wheel camper, traveling became their next hobby. Door County and a 3-week trip through Nova Scotia were the big trips, along with many weekend outings with camping friends or grandchildren. Many great memories were made while camping with Grandma Helen and Grandpa Church.

Charles passed in 2008 and Helen chose to move into assisted living in Freeport after a few years. She reconnected with acquaintances she had known through the years and made new friends too.

Helen was predeceased by her parent and her husband. She is survived by her daughters and their families as follows: Terri (Daryl) Thyberg of McConnell, Illinois and their children, Tamie (Dr. Greg) Dammann, Joanie Gora (Jeremy Morse) and Andrew (Nicole) Thyberg, Cathy (Tim) Nelson of Durant, Iowa and their daughter, Amanda (Austin Arnold) Weik. Great-Grandchildren: Sophia (Daniel) Vale, Samantha (David) Wichman, Cameron (Maddy) Dammann, Nate Dammann (Fiance - Lily Prabhaker), Ellie and Ethan Gora - Thyberg, Haley, Gracelyn, Brooklyn, Delyla, Brayden, Mary, Gad, Elijah and Isaiah Thyberg. Great Great Grandchildren: Flora Grace and Poppy Louise Wichman, Margaret Ruth and Jennifer Joy Vale. She is also survived by her two sisters; Roberta Dildine of Dallas, TX and Catherine (Kit) Baldwin of Freeport and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

A visitation will be held on Jan. 14, 2024, beginning at 1 p.m. and a service to immediately follow at 2 p.m. all at Walker Mortuary in Freeport. Condolences can be left for the family at www.walkermortuary.com.

Concerns about herbicide resistance addressed at Northwest Illinois Agronomy Summit

Herbicide resistance is one of agronomic crop producers' most challenging issues. Kathryn Seebruck, Crops Educator, U of I Extension, will address Navigating the Inevitability of Herbicide Resistance at the upcoming Northwest Illinois Agronomy Summit. Our understanding of resistance is not keeping pace with the frequency of resistance evolution, making it increasingly difficult to mitigate. This presentation will explore herbicide resistance evolution, discuss the rise in non-target-site (NTS) resistance, and illustrate the importance of utilizing multiple control methods to prevent weed seed production.

The Northwest Illinois Agronomy

Summit will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 31, 2024, with the program running from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Highland Community College Student Conference Center, 2998 W. Pearl City Road, Freeport, IL.

Additional topics to be addressed include Practical Nitrogen Management for Corn, presented by Giovanni Preza Fontes, Field Crops Agronomist, U of I Extension. Connor Sible, a Postdoctoral Research Associate with the Crop Physiology Department at the University of Illinois, will present Understanding Biologicals for Row Crops. Dan Smith, Southwest Regional Specialist, Nutrient and Pest Management Program, University of Wisconsin-

Madison, will discuss Building Soil Health in Northern Climates. Highland Community College Agriculture Instructor Justin Ebert will be on hand to talk about the Highland Community College research plots and the results from this past growing season.

To register or for more information about the Northwest Illinois Agronomy Summit, visit us online at go.illinois.edu/jsw or call U of I Extension at 815-235-4125. OPINION

IT'S NOT SO MUCH ABOUT PUSHING IT UPHILL AS IT IS ABOUT KEEPING IT FROM SLIDING BACKWARD.

Weekly connection Real winter returns

In case you haven't noticed it's been a very mild winter so far here in southern Wisconsin. I don't think any of the lakes in this area are frozen yet and it's almost the middle of January. I have the feeling, however, that these warm temps might be about to come to a screeching halt. I heard someone say the other day that we are supposed to have forty snows this winter. Who knows, maybe we're just running a little late this year. I remember a fierce winter that we experienced back in 1978-79. It was quite a winter as I recall. I was a junior in high school that year, and I can remember the snow being so deep that it was stacked up about twenty feet high on both sides of our country road. One day that year my brothers and I had a rather harrowing experience on the farm. It was actually on Christmas Eve, and we needed to move a fresh cow and her calf from the dry cow barn which was about a half mile down the road to the home dairy barn. It was in the late afternoon, and it had been snowing and blowing with great intensity. We took off anyway cutting through the drifts with the tractor pulling the cattle trailer behind. We hoped to make quick work of the task at hand and get back to the warm barn out of the blizzard. By the time we got to the dry cow lot, loaded up the cow and calf, and headed back to the home farm, the wind had really picked up and it was snowing and blowing like crazy. In fact, the drifts of snow were so deep that we got stuck fast about halfway home and couldn't move an inch. Part of the problem was that it had snowed almost every day for a week, and there was only a narrow path in the road to follow. With the new snow coming down and the wind blowing so hard as well, huge drifts quickly moved in and completely blocked the road. It was impossible to see the sides of the road and so we got off the trail on our way back home and got sucked down into the deep deep snow.

We tried rocking the tractor and trailer back and forth to get free, but to no avail. We were stuck fast. The poor cow and calf were getting pummeled with snow and wind and so were my brother and I as we braced ourselves against the north wind, lowered our heads so our eyes wouldn't freeze shut, and scrambled home on foot as quickly as we could. Thankfully, we had just purchased a new International 5288 front wheel assist tractor that fall for chisel plowing, and it proved to be perfect for the job at hand. We fired that tractor up and headed down the road straining to stay on the path, as we drove to where the other tractor and trailer were stuck with the cow and calf inside. We hooked up a log chain and breathed a prayer as we began to try and pull it out of the ditch. I remember having to yank hard on that chain several times with the big tractor to get the momentum started, and once the smaller tractor and trailer began to move, we opened up the throttle and pulled with all our might. By the time we got that tractor and trailer to the barn, that poor cow and calf were covered in several inches of snow and ice. We quickly got them off the trailer and into the barn where we had a pen piled high with warm soft straw for them to curl up in. We also filled the manger with some

The love of animals

Over the Christmas season, it is shown over and over on all prominent TV channels. Every time I see the commercial, I become angrier! (Silent Night plays softly in the background.) abused horses, the stumbling near blind kittens... How can people be so cruel?

A noted actress appeals to you to just contribute $19 a month and if we get 3,000 new donors we can make a huge difference. This has to be among America's greatest frauds.

We talk with our spouse, saying, "Certainly we can afford $19 a month for such a worthy cause?" You feel so good for helping these poor abused critters.

Here is the tragic reality... Two cents of every dollar or 38 cents of your $19 goes directly to animal welfare. The rest goes to offshore branch accounts and fattening executives running the agency according to the Center for the Environment and Welfare.

ASPCA CEO "million dollar" Matt Bershadker makes $856,785 in base salary per year and another $104,740 in benefits. The most recent figures show 259 people at the ASPCA make six figure salaries. They have over $11 million tucked away in Caribbean accounts.

In 2021, CBS News investigators found that since 2008, the ASPCA has raised more than $2 billion for "animal welfare." In that time, it has spent $146 million, or about 7%, of the total money raised in grants to local animal welfare groups. They spent three times that, or $421 million, in fundraising. That's how they get you to contribute "just $19 to such a worthwhile organization."

Ladies and gentlemen – don't do it! Go to your local shelter. They have no budget for fundraising. They desperately need your financial help.

My personal favorite is Friends Forever in Freeport, and there are many surrounding us all. Friends Forever operates on your contribution and most employees there are volunteers. They are like you and I – they love animals and want nothing more than to get them good homes. What could be more meaningful? They truly deserve your support "for the love of animals."

Illinois breaks wheat yield records

By Phyllis Coulter
FARMWEEK

Illinois wheat growers broke yield records for the third year in a row.

Farmers not only broke the record in 2023, they "smashed it," according to Mark Schleusener.

Usually when a record is broken, it is by one to two bushels per acre, last year it was by eight, said Schleusener, Illinois state statistician for USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

The new state average wheat yield estimate for 2023 is 87 bushels per acre, up from 79 in 2022.

"We kind of smashed the record," he said on Dec. 18 when the data was released.

Illinois wheat farmers also broke county high yield records. It is the first time a county averaged more than 100 bushels per acre, he said. Again, the year's results blasted past that with five counties surpassing that mark.

Tazewell County took top honors with the highest average yield in the state at 108.5 bushels per acre.

Stephenson, Knox, Jo Daviess and Gallatin counties all also topped the impressive 100-bushel-county-average.

"It was a remarkable year to grow wheat in Illinois," he said.

While noteworthy, the high yields weren't a complete surprise. An Illinois wheat tour projected high yields as did NASS.

"Every time we gave a new forecast, it got higher," the state statistician said.

In both May and June, the forecasts were 78 bushels. In both July and August in more mature crops, estimates leaped to 84 bushels per acre and stayed there. The new number of 87 bushels also comes from a larger sample size, Schleusener said.

Washington County, which has the most wheat acreage in Illinois, had the highest production last year coming in at more than 6.4 million bushels.

Randolph County came in second in total production, just shy of 3.4 million bushels, and Perry County came in third with almost 3 million bushels.

Earlier in the year, some people scoffed at the high yields projected by the Illinois Wheat Association (IWA) after its annual wheat tour in May.

Tour participants projected an average of 97.1 bushels per acre based on 57 samples from 20 counties, mostly south of Interstate 70. The projections were far above anything ever seen in this part of Illinois.

During the tour, IWA used a new method to enhance crop scouting with more focus on spikelet measurements and tiller counts to make yield projections. The results, using the new technique, were greeted with some skepticism because they were so much higher than in the past.

"Everybody kind of laughed at us," said Mark Krausz, IWA president. But no one is laughing now. "I think we were pretty accurate," he said.

Projections in previous years had been considerably lower than the actual final yields, so the IWA sought the help of the University of Illinois for some tweaks in its forecasting to be more accurate.

The new system including spikelet and tiller information proved much more precise, especially taking into consideration the dry weather that followed the wheat tour. The lack of rain brought yields down a little from the earlier potential tour members saw in May, Krausz said.

"Not everybody had exceptional wheat; some wheat was just good," said the Clinton County farmer of areas that didn't receive timely rains during the year.

As for 2024's wheat crop, Krausz said it's looking good so far. Like last year, milder temperatures helped the winter wheat get off to a good start.

"I've been all over the state and it has real good potential," he said.

I am so thankful that God has provided a way for people to be rescued from the danger of sin. We read in II Peter 3:9 The Lord is not slow in keeping his promise, as some understand slowness. Instead, he is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance. In a way, we rescued that cow and calf just as God rescues us through faith in the Christ. Until next week, God bless.

Stockton boys battle through injuries, snap recent losing streak

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

After falling to the Warren Warriors on Jan. 2, the Stockton Blackhawks found themselves in quite a predicament. The loss to Warren was their third consecutive regular season loss. It was also their second consecutive loss to Warren, as they faced off to end the first half of the season.

Not only did the Blackhawks drop back-to-back games to the Warriors, but their upcoming schedule wasn't looking too friendly. The Blackhawks had to face off with a surprising Galena Pirates squad on Jan. 4. Stockton was on the road for that matchup where saw them lose to the Pirates 54-37.

In the midst of it all, Stockton head coach John Hammann took the time to discuss the state of the team. "We have been battling some key injuries that have hurt our team with our depth and rotation, which has put everyone on our team in a different role," Hammann shared. Injuries shook the whole team up. Hammann explained, "When a player's role changes, there is an adjustment period for everyone on the team."

Despite the injuries, the Blackhawks continue to fight their way through a grueling schedule. With upcoming matchups against the Durand Bulldogs, the River Ridge Wildcats, and the East Dubuque Warriors, the Blackhawks will be used to being the underdogs. "Our schedule has been very difficult and does not get any easier as we get into conference play," Hammann said.

Stockton's coach is still hoping to see the team progress, no matter the opponent. "We are looking to improve every day in practice, so that it translates to games. We are working on cleaning up some of the mistakes we are making in games to make sure that we put ourselves in a position to succeed."

Stockton saw some of that improvement on Saturday, Jan. 6, when they faced off with Black Hawk at this year's Stateline Shootout in Warren. The Black Hawk Warriors have struggled through the season as they came into the shootout with a winless 0-10 record. Stockton was just 3-8, but they were riding a four-game losing streak. With both teams eager for a win, this was set up for an exciting game, despite the overall records.

From the opening tip,

Stockton got off to a hot start. Bennett Graves and Carter Blair provided an early spark with their three-point shooting. They each hit a pair of shots from deep as Stockton put up four three-pointers in the opening quarter. Will Westaby added four first quarter points of his own as the Blackhawks jumped out to a big lead.

By the start of the second quarter, Stockton already held a 22-6 advantage. Black Hawk would chip away at the deficit, however. The Warriors outscored the Blackhawks 15-8 in the second. If it wasn't for Graves' third three-pointer of the game, Stockton's lead would have all dwindled even further. Westaby added another three points in the second to help the Blackhawks take a 30-21 lead into halftime.

Both teams came out strong in the second half. The third quarter featured multiple momentum shifts as both teams looked to set themselves apart. Westaby continued to attack the defense down low as he put up another four points. Colby Tucker had five points in the quarter with a three-pointer and two free throws. The duo helped the Blackhawks take a 42-32 lead into the final quarter.

The fourth quarter became a physical game as the Blackhawks looked to run out the clock. The Warriors hit a couple of late three-pointers, which gave them life. In the end, a basket from graves and a free throw by Westaby provided the only fourth quarter points for Stockton. That was just enough to win as Stockton picked up a 45-42 victory over Black Hawk.

Graves led the team in scoring with 15 points off a trio of three-pointers. Westaby was the only other Stockton player in double figures with 12. Blair added eight, while Tucker had seven in the victory.

Hammann saw his team improve their record to 4-8 with the victory over Black Hawk. Despite that overall record, Hammann remains pleased with his squad and the way they have fought. "The boys continue to work hard every day in practice and play hard in games, which I am very proud of. We just need to focus on executing at a higher level in games," Hammann added.

Stockton is set to play host to the Amboy Clippers on Jan. 13 at 2:30 p.m.

Warriors pull off upset over Scales Mound in buzzer beater fashion

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

Despite a change at the head coach position, the Warren Warriors have found their stride as of late. At the beginning of the season, the Warriors were playing under Branden Behlke. At semester, Behlke returned to Black Hawk and Troy Pafford took over the position. Since the change, the Warriors have picked up some impressive victories over Stockton and Scales Mound.

Warren faced off with the Stockton Blackhawks on Jan. 2. At the time, both teams were coming off long breaks. They faced off with each other back on Dec. 21, which was their last game before the new year. Back in December, Warren picked up a 45-34 victory over Stockton. The Warriors began 2024 the same way they ended 2023, with a win over the Blackhawks.

Stockton held the energy early in the game as the home team. Things went back and forth, but the Blackhawks took a 10-9 advantage to end the first. Some pesky defense gave the Warriors momentum early in the second quarter, however. A steal by Treyton Pafford led to an assist to Bryce VanRaalte down low. That gave the Warriors a 13-10 advantage early in quarter two.

Stockton continued to keep the pace. Later in the quarter, Carter Blair hit a tough shot to tie the game at 18-18. Blair was fouled on the play but was unsuccessful on the and-one opportunity. That turned into an extra chance for the Blackhawks as Harbach tipped a rebound to Jon Randecker for a physical layup underneath.

In the closing moments of the first half, Warren tied the game with some savvy defense. Stockton was trying to hold the ball for the last shot. After a double team in the corner by Braxten Kent and Teagan Sabinson, Pafford stole a pass over the middle. Pafford took it the distance, tying the game 20-20 with an easy layup. The game remained tied until the half.

After an even first half, the Warriors dominated the third quarter. The offense came out firing on all cylinders as they outscored the Blackhawks 21-8 in the third quarter. Warren outscored Stockton 14-10 in the fourth, but it was the big third quarter that stood out.

VanRaalte had an explosive night offensively, leading the team with 24 points. Brady Stietz was Warren's next leading scorer with six. Stockton was led by Randecker with 14. Colby Tucker was the only other Blackhawk in double figures with 10. Harbach added six as Stockton fell to Warren 55-38.

Two days later, the Warriors kept it rolling when they faced perhaps their toughest challenge of the young season. On Jan. 4, the Warriors held a record of 5-5. Their opponent, the Scales mound Hornets, were ranked in the state of one of Illinois' premier 1A boys basketball teams. Despite that, the Warriors put on a show in front of their home crowd.

There was no shortage of offense in the first quarter. VanRaalte put in work down low with six first quarter points. Stietz added a pair of his own baskets, and Sabinson hit a three-pointer. On the other end, Thomas Hereau had an electric start. Hereau hit a pair of three-pointers on his way to 11 first quarter points.

Warren always managed to keep themselves close, and the end of the first quarter was a perfect example of that. In the closing seconds, Warren displayed some great passes before a Stietz assist to VanRaalte to beat the buzzer. By the end of one, Warren trailed by just a point at 16-15.

In the second quarter, the Warriors caught fire from deep. In fact, it was a bit of a three-point contest as both teams combined for six threes in the quarter. It was Warren who had the majority of them, as Sabinson and Pafford each hit a pair in the second. Pafford had 10 points in the quarter which allowed the Warriors to get out to a first half advantage. At the break, Warren held a 33-28 lead.

In the third quarter, the three-point magic shifted to the Hornets' hands. Max Wielen hit a pair of big three-pointers to help the cause. Evan Cogan, who

FHN celebrates December DAISY, BEE Award winners

Every day, every person at FHN strives to provide exceptional, compassionate care to patients and their loved ones. FHN is proud to announce the December 2023 DAISY and BEE award recipients.

FHN's December DAISY award winner is Emergency Department Triage Nurse Doug Munda, who helped an injured little girl stay calm for evaluation and treatment. "My daughter instantly formed a bond with Doug and was comforted by his gentle demeanor," his nominator said. He gave her a stuffed animal, and asked if she could take care of the animal for him. "She did not require any pain medication, as Doug made sure she had a warm blanket, the Disney Channel on the TV and her stuffed animal next to her."

The DAISY (Diseases Attacking the Immune System) Award is an international recognition program for hospitals that honors and celebrates the skillful, compassionate care nurses provide every day. The DAISY Foundation was established by the family of J. Patrick Barnes after he died from complications of the auto-immune disease ITP (Idiopathic Thrombocytopenic Purpura) in 1999. During his hospitalization, his family deeply appreciated the care and compassion shown to Patrick and his entire family. When he died, they felt compelled to say "thank you" to nurses in a very public way: The DAISY Award.

FHN's December BEE Award recipient is CNA Lillie Curtiss, who provided excellent care to a post-surgical patient. Her nominator spent the night at the hospital after knee surgery, and said, "When I woke up the next day, Lillie joyfully walked into my room. She did not have to ask any questions about my care. I thought I was at a spa. Any assistance I needed, Lillie was there to help."

Just like a DAISY would not be able to grow without the help of the BEE, our nurses could not do what they do for our patients without the outstanding teamwork of other health care professionals. The BEE (Being Exceptional Everyday) Award honors patient care (non-nurse) staff who assist a nurse or a patient and his or her family in delivering excellent patient care.

Patients or their loved ones can learn more about the awards and share their story at www.fhn.org/daisy-bee - and a multidisciplinary selection committee of FHN will select the DAISY and BEE Award honorees from nominations submitted by patients and family members. DAISY honorees will be recognized at a public ceremony in his or her unit at FHN and will receive a certificate, an award pin, and a hand-carved stone sculpture entitled A Healer's Touch. Everyone in the unit will celebrate with cinnamon rolls - a favorite of Patrick's during his illness. BEE honorees will be recognized publicly on their unit, receive a certificate, and award pin and the unit will celebrate with honey-themed treats.

went scoreless in the first half, hit his first basket with a three of his own. Derrick Distler added a three as the Hornets hit four of them in the quarter.

Warren ran their offense through Pafford in the third. Pafford hit a pair of his own three-pointers as he put up 10 in the quarter. Scales Mound outscored Warren 16-15 in the quarter, but Pafford did just enough to maintain the lead.

Heading into the fourth, the Warriors held a 47-44 lead. The Hornets continued to operate from deep as Wiene hit two more three-pointers. Kaden Deurr hit a three of his own.

In the end, it was Jordan Kohl who hit the biggest three of the night. Kohl had two three-pointers in the final quarter, both of which came in the final seconds of the game. With under 30 seconds to play, VanRaalte grabbed an offensive rebound and quickly hit Kohl on the right wing. Kohl, just a sophomore, drilled the shot to tie the game at 57-57.

Coming out of a timeout, the Warriors played great defense. Scales Mound tried to hold for the final shot, but VanRaalte stole a pass over the middle. With seven seconds left, he found Pafford up court. Pafford fumbled the pass, however, nearly leading to a turnover. What ensued was a work of art as Stietz caught the ball on the baseline and tossed a behind the back pass to a wide-open Kohl. No backboard, no rim, Kohl needed nothing but net to put the Hornets away. His buzzer beater three-pointer knocked off Scales Mound as Warren picked up a 60-57 victory.

Pafford led the way in scoring with 24. VanRaalte was next up with 13, and Sabinson added 11 in the victory. Wiene led the Hornets with 17 points, while Hereau finished with 15. Jonah Driscoll added eight in the loss.

Lady Broncos defeat Pearl City, improve to 19-1

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Orangeville Broncos continue to dominate the girls basketball world as one of the best 1A teams in all of Illinois. Last week, they continued to prove that as they picked up victories over Durand and Pearl City.

On Jan. 4, the Broncos hit the road to face off with the Durand Bulldogs. At the time, Durand held a record of 5-6. Meanwhile, the Broncos sat atop the NUIC at 17-1. Orangeville was also riding a three-game winning streak, which they had no intention of giving up.

Durand's defense had no answers for Whitney Sullivan in the opening quarter. That's something most defenses struggle with against the Broncos, and that remained true for the Bulldogs. Sullivan put up 12 points, including going four for four at the line in the first quarter. Laney Cahoon sunk an early three as the Broncos took a 19-11 advantage into the second quarter.

There, Orangeville continued to grow their lead. Sullivan dominated the paint as she put up another nine points. Nadalee Doyle went to work, hitting a three-pointer and a couple of inside baskets. Cahoon added four as the Broncos outscored Durand 2-9 in the quarter. By the break, Orangeville held a 41-20 advantage.

Things only got worse for Durand in the second half. Orangeville's pesky defense held the Bulldogs to just six third quarter points. Meanwhile, the Broncos put up another 19 points on their end.

This time, it was Cahoon doing the damage. In the third quarter alone, Cahoon hit a pair of three-pointers as she put up 10 points. Doyle hit another three in the quarter as she added six points of her own.

By the fourth, Orangeville held a nearly insurmountable lead as they were up 60-26. The number two ranked Broncos managed to let the clock run out on a 64-26 victory over Durand. Sullivan led Orangeville with 23 points. Cahoon was the next leading scorer with 17, and Doyle was right behind her with 15.

The very next day, the Broncos hit the road again as they traveled to face off with the Pearl City Wolves in another conference matchup. Pearl City came in at just 3-14 on the year, and they found themselves in a tough matchup against the winning Broncos.

Once again, the Broncos got off to a dominant start. In the very first quarter, Kaylynn O'Haver hit a three-pointer, giving her five quick points. Doyle added five of her own. The Broncos mixed things up early on as Cahoon and Sullivan, who typically lead the team in scoring, had just two points each.

Pearl City struggled to get their offense going. Fallyn Endress and Tana Gravert were the only Wolves to score in the quarter. By the end of the first, Pearl City already trailed by a score of 14-4.

Orangeville began to pick things up in the second quarter as Sullivan put up six points. Bailey Jordan added a basket of her own as the Broncos outscored Pearl City 13-4 in the quarter. By the break, Orangeville held a 27-8 advantage.

The Broncos continued to run their offense in the third quarter. Cahoon caught fire with 12 points in the third. Addy Wheeler hit a pair of three-pointers on her way to eight third quarter points. O'Haver hit her second three of the night as well.

The Wolves also came out firing in the third. Danica Stager and Kendra Kuhlemeier each hit threes in the quarter. In fact, the Wolves had one of their better offensive quarters of the season as they combined for 14 in the quarter. Despite that, they still went into the fourth trailing Orangeville 55-22.

Cahoon led the Broncos with 15, while Sullivan was the only other Orangeville player in double figures at 10. Wheeler and O'Haver each finished the game with nine. Pearl City was led by Endress, who finished with six. Three other Wolves finished with five in Stager, Kuhlemeier, and Gravert.

The Broncos improved to 19-1 on the year as they picked up a 57-24 victory over the Wolves. On Jan. 13, Pearl City will continue their season as they play host to the Polo Marcos. Orangeville won't be in action until Jan. 17 when they play host to the Dakota Indians.

Orangeville-Aquin falls to Durand as losing streak continues

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Orangeville-Aquin Broncos have experienced the ups and downs that a young coop should expect. Early in the season, the Orangeville-Aquin boys basketball team hit their stride with three wins in four games played. With victories over Hiawatha, Benton, and West Carroll, the Broncos saw their record improve to 3-5 on the season.

A five-game losing streak followed that 3-5 stretch. Perhaps the most painful part of watching their record fall to 3-10 was how close the Broncos have been to winning in most of those games. The losing streak began with a nine-point loss to River Ridge back on Dec. 16. A 48-44 loss to Warren and a 46-43 loss to Forreston followed. The Broncos then ended 2023 with a loss to Dakota, before starting 2024 with another loss to Durand.

Despite the losses, the Broncos can feel confident about how they compete. In each and every game, Orangeville-Aquin has given themselves a chance to come out on top. They continued to prove they can compete with anyone when they faced off with the Dakota Indians for their last game of 2023.

In the first quarter, the Broncos may have surprised the Indians. They matched Dakota point for point as the game went into the second quarter tied at 12-12. That's where things got out of hand for the Broncos, however. Dakota's offense went on a big run, taking a 32-19 lead into halftime.

Orangeville-Aquin's offense came out strong in the second half. Brant Carlson got the scoring started with a tough layup from the right side of the paint. Carlson was fouled on the play, which led to a successful and-one opportunity. Shortly after, Cody Wirth sunk a three-pointer from the left wing. Wirth followed that up with a one-hander in the middle of the paint, which bounced around the rim before falling in.

The Broncos appeared to find their stride offensively. Unfortunately for them, Dakota's offense was just as impressive. Despite the Orangeville-Aquin run, Dakota managed to maintain their lead as they took a 47-35 advantage into the fourth quarter.

The Broncos put up 12 in the fourth, but it wasn't enough to comeback as they fell to the Indians 61-47. Carlson led the Broncos in scoring with 15 points. Wirth was right behind him with 14. Brock Tyrrell added eight in the losing effort.

Things didn't get any easier for the Broncos when they began the new year. On Jan.

4, Orangeville-Aquin took on the Durand Bulldogs in an NUIC matchup. Durand brought a 10-3 record into their matchup with the Broncos. Once again, the Broncos hoped to pull off an upset as the underdogs.

Another tough first half left the Broncos trailing early on. Orangeville-Aquin kept pace early on, but Durand eventually pulled away for a 34-21 advantage.

Once again, the Broncos came out strong in the second half. In the third quarter, Wirth hit a pair of baskets before going two for two at the free throw line. Jaxon Grilliot hit a three-pointer on his way to five third quarter points. Tyrrell, Carlson, and Ben Briggs each had baskets in the quarter. The Broncos managed to chip away at the lead as they went into the fourth trailing 48-38.

Orangeville-Aquin continued to have the momentum in the fourth. Ben Briggs began to find success down low with a trio of baskets. Wirth hit two big shots to close the gap. Late in the game, Grilliot found Briggs down low for an assist. Briggs' second basket of the quarter made things interesting as the Broncos only trailed by just eight with over two minutes left to play.

That was as close as they would get, however. The Broncos went on to fall by a final score of 61-54. Wirth had a solid night offensively, leading the way with 16 points. Briggs was the only other Bronco in double figures with 13. Tyrrell added eight, while Carlson had seven in the loss.

Despite the losses, the Broncos don't seem far off from coming out on top. They will get another opportunity on Jan. 12 when they play host to the Pearl City Wolves.

Trump faces ballot challenge in Illinois minutes after filing his petitions

Objectors say he's disqualified under 14th Amendment for role in Jan. 6 Capitol riots

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Illinois is now among the growing list of states in which former President Donald Trump will have to fight to have his name appear on the 2024 election ballots.

A group of five voters filed a joint objection to Trump's candidacy on Jan. 4, arguing that Trump should be disqualified under the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which prohibits anyone who took part in an insurrection against the United States from holding federal office.

The objection alleges that Trump's attempts to overturn the results of the 2020 elections, including his involvement in events leading up to the Jan. 6, 2021, storming of the U.S. Capitol in Washington, amounted to an insurrection.

"Consequently, Donald J. Trump is disqualified from, and ineligible to hold, the office of President of the United States," the objection states. "Accordingly, his nomination papers are invalid under Illinois law because when Trump swore he was 'qualified' for the presidential office, as required by (state statute), he did so falsely."

Jan. 4 was the first day for presidential candidates to file petitions for the March 19 primary ballot. According to the Illinois State Board of Elections' website, the Trump campaign filed its petitions at 8 a.m., along with fellow Republican candidates Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis, former South Carolina Gov. Nikki Haley, and Texas businessman Ryan L. Binkley.

On the Democratic side, President Joe Biden's campaign filed petitions, along with Minnesota Congressman Dean Phillips and author Marianne Williamson.

As of Jan. 4, Trump was the only candidate facing an objection. The deadline for filing objections is Friday, Jan. 12.

Similar objections have been filed in multiple other states. So far, however, they have only been upheld in Colorado and Maine. The Trump campaign has filed appeals in both of those cases, including a direct appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court in the Colorado case.

Matthew Piers, a Chicago-based attorney who filed the Illinois objection, said in an interview that the cases highlight the differences in election laws among the various states.

In some states, he said, primary elections are considered operations of political parties, not the states themselves, and therefore are not subject to rules set by the state. But in Illinois, he said, state law specifically requires candidates to state on their nominating petitions that they are qualified for the office they are seeking.

Article II of the U.S. Constitution requires presidents to be "natural born citizens" who are at least 35 years of age and who have been residents of the United States for at least 14 years.

But the 14th amendment, enacted in the aftermath of the Civil War, adds more conditions, barring any former public officials who previously took an oath to support the Constitution from holding certain public offices in the future if they ever engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the United States or gave aid or comfort to its enemies.

The objection cites numerous other government agencies and officials who have concluded that the events of Jan. 6, 2021, were an insurrection, including decisions of the Colorado Supreme Court and the Maine secretary of state to keep Trump's name off the ballot in those states.

The objection also cites several recent court rulings, including some involving people convicted of crimes stemming from the Jan. 6 events at the Capitol.

In an email, Illinois Republican Party Chairman Don Tracy said the state party is neutral in the GOP primary but that the issue of Trump's candidacy should be decided by voters.

"This attempt to remove President Trump from the ballot without due process is an anti-democracy attempt to limit the voting rights of Illinois citizens and should be dismissed outright," Tracy said.

Legal challenges to a candidate's qualifications for office are not uncommon in Illinois. Dozens of them are currently pending at the Illinois State Board of Elections against candidates for the General Assembly and various judicial positions, mostly based on claims that petition signatures were invalid or insufficient.

In 2016, a challenge was filed against Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton based on her petition signatures. And in 2012, Democratic President Barack Obama faced three nearly identical challenges to his candidacy based on false allegations about his citizenship.

State Board of Elections spokesman Matt Dietrich said in an email the objection to Trump's candidacy will be investigated by a hearing officer who will make a recommendation to the board's general counsel. The full, eight-member bipartisan board will consider the challenge at a meeting Tuesday, Jan. 30.

Illinois State Police launches new road rage campaign

The Illinois State Police (ISP) is launching an educational, public awareness campaign focused on reducing incidents involving road rage. The new campaign, Road Rage. Don't Engage. is designed to raise awareness about an increase in road rage incidents leading to violence, as well as educate the public on the signs of road rage and tips on how to prevent and handle these situations.

"Although road rage is nothing new, we're seeing people react more aggressively and dangerously," said ISP Director Brendan F. Kelly. "The message is simple - if you see or become part of a road rage situation, don't engage. That extra car length you gain by cutting someone off, or arriving 10 seconds earlier by tailgating another person, is not worth your life."

ISP developed a campaign to raise public awareness about road rage and the disturbing trend. The campaign consists of social media, including a social media toolkit, along with billboards and radio ads in strategic markets. ISP Safety Education Officers across the state will continue to educate the public on the dangers of road rage and how to deal with the dangerous behavior.

According to an AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety study, when drivers explained why they became violent, the reasons were often trivial, such as the other driver wouldn't let them pass or they kept tailgating. Almost 80% of drivers reported aggressive behaviors while driving, including speeding and following other vehicles too closely.

Road rage is anger and frustration caused by the stress of driving in a motor vehicle. Some of the most common signs of road rage and aggressive driving are:

- Following too closely or tailgating
- Improper or erratic lane changing
- Illegally driving on the shoulder of the road (emergency lane), in a ditch/median, or on sidewalk
- Passing where prohibited
- Failure to yield right of way

- Failure to obey traffic laws, signs, and devices
- Failure to yield to emergency personnel and construction zone speed limits
- Failure to signal
- Driving too fast for conditions or in excess of posted speed limit or racing

ISP reminds the public that when it comes to aggressive drivers and road rage, don't engage. The following are tips on how to avoid being the victim of road rage:

- If you are in the left lane and someone wants to pass, move to your right and allow them to pass
- When merging, make sure you have plenty of room and use your turn signal
- If someone cuts you off, slow down and give them room to merge into your lane

Amid record overdoses and drug counselor shortage, workforce expansion program aims to fill gap

Joint program offers funds, tuition assistance and stipends for future alcohol and drug counselors

By Dilpreet Raju
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Amid five straight years of record overdose deaths in Illinois, a new state program aims to alleviate a shortage of professionals who work to prevent substance use disorders.

Illinois' behavioral health counselor workforce "is aging while new entrants are declining," according to a 2019 report to the General Assembly; 56 percent of certified substance use disorder workers in the state were over the age of 50 at the time.

According to the Behavioral Health Workforce Center's latest data from 2023, 81 of Illinois' 102 counties have fewer than 13 licensed professional counselors per 60,000 residents, straining those counselors tasked with servicing a large portion of the state.

To alleviate the workforce shortage, the state's Department of Human Services has partnered with the Illinois Certification Board to offer stipends to lessen the financial burden for those working toward certification in substance use prevention and treatment.

The 2019 task force report also found the state's "already below-national-average" number of behavioral health professionals dropped 23 percent between 2016 to 2018, coinciding with a two-year period in which social services funding was slashed as lawmakers and the governor failed to approve a state budget.

While the state's human service funding has increased in recent years, an analysis from the Chicago-based

Center for Tax and Budget Accountability, a nonprofit think tank, found that the current fiscal year marks the first since FY 2000 in which the increase outpaced inflation.

Workforce expansion

The Illinois Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor Workforce Expansion program launched in May and is currently set to run through June 2024. It offers aid in the form of scholarships, tuition payments, internship stipends, application fees and $1,000 upon hire with a state-licensed provider, following graduation from an ICB accredited training program.

Adriana Trino-Pujals, executive director of the Elgin-based Latino Treatment Center, said the challenge to find, hire and retain workers in behavioral health has remained difficult, mainly due to economic constraints that can push students to consider other career paths. According to Bureau of Labor Statistics data analyzing 2022 payrolls, the median salary for a behavioral health counselor in Illinois is about $48,000.

Some students who start classes to obtain a certification can't afford to finish, Trino-Pujals said.

"And then you're going to take that same person and I'm going to tell them that we're going to pay them 30-grand a year. Well, at that point, I'd rather go work at Walmart," she said.

The new workforce expansion program is a partnership between the ICB — an independent organization that credentials several human services positions in the state—and the IDHS Office of Substance Use Prevention and Recovery.

Chris Boyster, executive director of the ICB, said the workforce expansion program aims "to ensure that there's absolutely no barriers for completion."

"Let's say you want to become a CADC, but that class is taught on Monday nights and Monday nights you don't have anybody to watch your child. It will cover day care," Boyster said.

The CADC Workforce Expansion program will also provide internship stipends up to $7,500, providing some reimbursement for work that might otherwise have been unpaid. It can also be used to pay for application and initial certification fees, along with transportation and course costs. Fees associated with enrolling and studying to become a CADC run at least $500, according to the ICB Schedule of Fees.

To qualify for the program's $1,000 hiring stipend, a student must be in the process of getting credentialed as a CADC and agree to a two-year employment period with a state-licensed facility.

Information on how to apply to participate in the program can be found at ilcadworkforce.org.

The workforce expansion program received a $3 million appropriation in the current-year budget. IDHS spokesperson Daisy Contreras said in an email the program's continuation in future fiscal years is "pending the availability of funds and program performance indicators."

It's too early in the program's implementation to track significant trends, IDHS saw an "initial increase of approximately 30% in new applications" for the first half fiscal year 2024, which began in July. That followed a dip in the number of CADC applicants coinciding with the COVID-19 pandemic, she said.

Rising toll

During 2021, the latest year for which comparable data is available, more than 3,000 people died of an opioid-involved overdose in Illinois, while 1,995 in the state were killed by firearms, according to the Illinois Department of Public Health Opioid Data Dashboard and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. That same year, 1,611 people in Illinois died of alcohol-induced deaths—more than the number of people killed in traffic accidents, according to KFF, formerly known as The Kaiser Family Foundation.

CADCs offer support and try to assess the needs of individuals who seek treatment.

Jen Anel, who works as overdose prevention manager at Chicago Recovery Alliance, said that in addition to working hundreds of hours in unpaid internships to qualify for her CADC, she had to work multiple jobs to make ends meet. She became certified in 2018 and said her coursework focused heavily on abstinence and relapse prevention.

"Abstinence is the goal," Anel said. "There was not really any sort of harm reduction education, or what do we do with a client who is continuing to use. How do we help that person identify their own goal, which may not even be abstinence?"

Anel said she left her job in traditional substance use treatment because she saw an opportunity to help more people, and in a more direct way.

Trino-Pujals, who also serves as the ICB's treasurer, said the program is a step toward keeping more students engaged in the field of substance use treatment and harm reduction.

"We have a horrible shortage," she said. The lack of CADCs "has hindered us to be able to continue to progress in our field."

'Too little, too late'

Trino-Pujals said she was inspired to become an alcohol and drug counselor partly because both of her parents worked in substance use treatment, and she saw her father recover from alcoholism.

"Once I took the test, it not only propelled me professionally, but it also helped me to understand a lot more of the fields, theories and different processes regarding (substance use treatment)," she said.

The ICB expanded its reach in November by naming eight universities, public and private, as accredited training programs, including Loyola University, Southern Illinois University Carbondale and the Chicago School of Professional Psychology. The move will make CADC courses more readily available to college-age students interested in recovery and treatment work.

The program is one of three IDHS initiatives aimed at addressing the shortage of behavioral health workers in the state, with the others being a loan repayment program and another workforce incentive program focusing on certifying people who have lived experience as peer support specialists.

Still, many advocates say the recent state efforts are not nearly enough. Anel, for example, said she fears the hiring stipend is still too low to incentivize people to pursue a certification.

"Two years for $1,000? I'm going to keep it real here, come on," Anel said.

John Werning, the executive director of Chicago Recovery Alliance—a harm reduction organization founded over three decades ago—said he is skeptical of state investment in an overdose program that isn't directly aimed at slowing the state's death toll.

"People who use drugs far outnumber the amount of people who are seeking or treatment or who qualify for a substance use disorder diagnosis," he said. "We've never seen a reduction in the demand for drug use in this country and we've only seen overdose rates climb."

Werning said there remains a need for investment in more social service programs such as overdose prevention sites because a diversity of options expands what people can utilize, hopefully saving more lives.

"It might also be too little, too late," he said, "we need broad, really tremendous investments in social services across the board, not just treatment modalities."

Madigan trial delayed until October for SCOTUS review of bribery statute

At court hearing, former Democratic powerhouse makes first appearance in court

By Hannah Meisel
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Former Illinois House Speaker Michael Madigan won't be spending his 82nd birthday in a federal courtroom this spring after a judge on Jan. 3 granted this request to delay his bribery and racketeering trial originally set to begin April 1.

Madigan claimed the small victory while appearing in court for the first time since he was indicted nearly two years ago, opting to show up in person to a hearing at the Dirksen Federal Courthouse Jan. 3 despite having been granted permission to appear via videoconference. Sporting a black suit and royal blue tie, the former speaker spoke only once during the hearing.

"Yes I do, your honor," Madigan said in reply to U.S. District Judge Robert Blakey's question as to whether he consented to the trial's rescheduling to Oct. 8.

The trial is now scheduled for several months after the U.S. Supreme Court is expected to weigh in on the case of a northwest Indiana mayor convicted under the same federal bribery statutes at play in Madigan's case.

Attorneys for the former speaker and his codefendant argued the high court's ruling could affect the outcome of Madigan's case.

Blakey agreed during the hourlong hearing, likening the risk of going to trial prior to the Supreme Court's expected June ruling to stepping on a Lego brick.

"I'd go, 'George! I thought I told you to pick up the Legos!'" Blakey said, recounting telling his then-young son to clean up his toys. "And he'd say, 'Eh, I picked up most of them.'"

Blakey acknowledged that while only a third of the 23 charges Madigan is facing could be affected by the high court's ruling and posited that no parties involved want to "walk into a dark room with no shoes on" and be thrown a Lego by the Supreme Court.

Most critically, Blakey said, delaying the trial until after the Supreme Court's ruling would avoid the possibility of having to redo the entire trial, which he said would be a waste of everyone's resources. Government prosecutors opposed the delay, but in a filing Tuesday evening offered that they'd be willing to reevaluate jury instructions if the high court had not ruled by the time the case was nearing a close in late spring.

But Blakey rejected that solution, saying the "critical juncture" for clarity on what the federal bribery statute says does not occur during jury instructions. Rather, he said, it occurs even before opening statements begin, as attorneys on both sides prepare for trial.

"You're absolutely right: there's a bunch of the case that won't be affected," he said. "But there's enough of the case that's going to be affected that it might require retrial."

The case at issue on the Supreme Court's docket is a review of a 2021 conviction of a northwest Indiana mayor who accepted $13,000 from a company that had recently won contracts to sell garbage trucks to the city. The high court accepted the case last month and is expected to clarify whether "gratuities" are the same as bribes, even if there's no quid pro quo agreement in place.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Amarjeet Bhachu pointed out that prosecutors in the Northern District of Illinois are overseeing that case, which stems from Portage, Indiana, about 20 miles east of the Illinois border.

"When you corruptly solicit a payment ... an actual quid pro quo isn't required," Bhachu maintained during the Jan. 3 hearing.

But Federal appeals courts have split on the issue, and Madigan has already attempted to have the case dismissed on similar grounds, though Blakey has yet to rule on that motion from last year.

Madigan was forced out of his 36-year reign as House Speaker in early 2021 as pressure grew from his own Democratic caucus after he was cited as "Public Official A" in federal charging documents against electric utility Commonwealth Edison and former top lobbyists and executives at the company.

Prosecutors alleged ComEd bribed Madigan with jobs and contracts for his political allies in exchange for favorable legislation in Springfield. ComEd agreed to pay a $200 million fine as part of its resolution of the legal action against it, while the company's former CEO and three ex-lobbyists fought the charges in a seven-week trial last spring. All were ultimately convicted by a jury.

The four are still awaiting sentencing, which was originally scheduled for January before being delayed due to court scheduling conflicts. Also awaiting sentencing is the former ComEd executive who wore a wire against his colleagues and became the government's star witness in last year's trial.

Madigan wasn't indicted until March 2022, more than a year after he'd stepped down from nearly every public office he'd held, including as head of the state's Democratic Party and the legislative seat he'd kept for 50 years representing Chicago's southwest side.

The indictment was largely a repackaging of allegations from the ComEd cases, claiming Madigan and his codefendant—ComEd's longtime top outside lobbyist Mike McClain—ran a "criminal enterprise" via the power Madigan had accumulated from his positions as both a political power broker and name partner in a Chicago-based property tax law firm.

In October 2022, the feds added an additional count alleging telecommunications giant AT&T Illinois had been part of a bribery scheme similar to ComEd's, wherein the company allegedly gave jobs and contracts to Madigan allies in exchange for favorable treatment in Springfield.
