Funny things you think, do and say when you are a widow

one.

sometimes you just have to laugh. And why not?

Laughter can be healing. It can be an escape. It lowers stress. It gives a boost to your immune system. It is relaxing. It is stimulating. It increases endorphins and It can provide a respite from an otherwise bleak situation. It can be fun.

And what, if not widowhood, correlates so very closely with laughter? I can't think of a thing, she said with a wry, all-knowing, sarcastic smile.

Gotcha.

Being a widow has provided a unique, albeit, quirky and (dare I say) weird outlook into the everyday and even the mundane. Nothing is expected or unexpected. It is new and heartbreaking and hilarious - all at the same

I hesitate to share, because the humor of widowhood can be dark, or at least darkish. But don't knock it until you've lived it. Sometimes

I do it all the time.

Take this afternoon. I was in a good mood and looked at myself in the bathroom mirror and said, rather jokingly, "I hope my boyfriend calls tonight." Until I remembered ...

I don't have a boyfriend.

(A note about sanity here: It is sanctioned and definitely okay to talk to yourself in the mirror when you are a widow. Who else do you have to talk to?)

Back to my mirror, mirror on the wall:

My original statement (to myself) was somehow exceedingly humorous to me in that moment. I gave myself a smile in the mirror and said it out loud, "You don't have a boyfriend."

Next, through my giggles I whispered, "Yet." And that one extra word seemed vindicating in a number of ways. Plus hilarious-and hopeful.

Î'll take hopeful any day, even Tuesday.

But there's more! Bedmaking 2.1: I still sleep in "my" side of the bed. Yet when I wash the sheets, I have to do the whole set - both sides. This seems like half a waste - washing half-clean, half-dirty sheets. I wish there was a way to wash half the bed, but I've yet to determine a solution to that

Maybe I could sleep on each side of the bed half the time, a night here and a night there, in order to use the sheets evenly.

I thought about this, and then considered the downside. I mean, think about it, a woman sleeping here and there—willy-nill depending on the night. It just isn't for me. I was in a loyal marriage for more than three decades. I didn't make it this far to engage in behavior that could get me accused of sleeping around—even if it is within my own bed.

Oh goodness, who am I kidding? I'm not nearly that exciting. I don't even have a TV in my bedroom.

One final example: Remote controls (okay, that's multiple examples, but you catch my gist.)

I now enjoy possession of the TV remote. And the fan remote. And a remote for which I know not its purpose, but it is a remote and it is Dang, I'm not lying people, it feels good to actually hold the remote (or maybe three of them) in my two hands.

I'm not going to imply nor allege that I have mastered the control of the remotes. I've only been a widow for three years; give me time. But I do have possession, and I've heard (from someone I

For now, that will have to suffice. And in finding congruity with the theme of this column, holding the remotes, while not fully understanding their function, gives me a knowing, wry

I'm smiling more these days, whether it's in response to the incongruity of widowhood or life in general—or maybe just the fact that I'm alive, the sun is shining and I'm finding new ways to giggle at myself each a day, even if the gal in the mirror is the only one who sees it.

Wildcats open 2024 baseball season with offensive breakout

CORRESPONDENT.

CORRESPONDENT

Most teams are expecting to shake off the rust and wake up the bats when they step on the baseball diamond for a new season. That is especially true in the Midwest, where teams suffer through repeated cancellations and brutal weather to begin the year.

That hasn't been an issue for the River Ridge-Scales

Sure, they had a couple of early cancellations, but what team hasn't? The difference is that RR-SM's offense hit the field looking like a team of seasoned vets. After just two games of play, the Wildcats had already put up 48 runs on the young season. It wasn't heavily lopsided to one game either. The Wildcats came into each game with a balanced attack as their bats led the way to victory.

RR-SM opened the 2024 season on March 14 when they took on the Oregon Hawks. It didn't take long for the Cats to get things going at the plate. A nine-run first inning gave the Wildcats a massive lead before they even recorded three outs. Kaden Deurr had the big hit of the inning as his single up the George Winter followed up with an RBI single of his own. George eventually reached home safely, putting the Cats up 9-0.

Oregon chipped away with three runs in the bottom half, but that was as close as the Hawks could get. RR-SM blew the game wide open with six runs in the top of the third. Joe Winter crushed a double to center, which drove in Ben Richmond to score. Mason Smith, Damon Dittmar, and Sam Rife followed up with three consecutive singles, putting the Cats up 14-4. Before the inning came to an end, George expanded the lead when he ripped a line drive into left. After one run had already crossed, an error on the in. By the middle of the third, RR-SM held a massive 17-4 lead.

The Wildcats put the finishing touches on in the top of the fourth. A slew of defensive errors allowed a game that was already out of reach to get out of hand. In the end, RR-SM picked up a 23-7 victory in what was a dominant season

Deurr led the way at the plate, going four for five with four runs batted in and two runs scored. Smith was next up, going three for four with three RBI and four runs scored. George was two for five with three RBI and two runs scored. Joe was right there, going two for five with two RBI and two runs scored. Seven different one away. The Winters com-the opener.

The Wildcats had to wait a week before getting back on the diamond for a live game, but when they did, they didn't skip a beat. On March 21 the RR-SM offense had another explosive day as they faced off with Orangeville-Aquin.

Once again, the Wildcats got off to a red-hot start. Eleven runs in the top of the first had this game in fear of a mercy rule from the start. Joe drove in the game's first runs with a groundball through the left side. Camden Flack followed up with a two-run single

The Wildcats put up another nine runs in the top of the third as they quickly put this at the plate as George and Joe led the way to victory. Joe was nearly perfect on the day, going three for five with four RBI and three runs scored. Joe was one for two with three RBI and two runs scored. Flack was also one for two with three RBI, two walks, and three runs scored.

On the mound, Dittmar tossed two clean innings with four strikeouts and one hit allowed. Rife also pitched a quick inning with one strikeout and zero hits allowed.

After the 2-0 start, the Wildcats are sitting high. They will need to remain focused when they face much tighter defenses later on. This Thursday, March 4 the Wildcats are set to host East Dubuque at 4:30 p.m.

Stephenson County 4-H works to create a Green Community

Stephenson County 4-H along with the Stephenson County Soil & Water Conservation District and the Jane Addamsland Park Foundation (JAPF) are working to help save the planet, one oak savanna at a time. All youth who love to be outdoors and explore nature are invited to come out and help plant an oak tree in rural Orangeville on Saturday, April 20 at 9 a.m. at the Butterfly Farm, located at 10405 Bellview Rd. Orangeville, IL. This opportunity is open to all youth, whether a 4-H member or not, and will help youth learn to identify an oak tree, how to properly plant an oak tree, and learn about the benefits trees offer us and our community.

"Research shows that nature provides youth with creativity, discovery, and STEM education. We have a great variety of forest preserves, state parks, and hiking trails here in northern Illinois, one of them being right outside of Orangeville. This oak savanna tree planting will benefit youth today in understanding the importance of community service and environmental awareness that will last for many years to come," states Brenda Heimann, Stephenson County 4-H Program Coordinator.

Illinois 4-H offers Forestry as part of its natural resources project area. The 4-H Forestry program drives youth in a positive direction that creates a positive environmental impact. Through this project, youth will gain a sense of leadership and civic engagement as they learn together with adults in their community to help make a difference in rebuilding the numbers of trees across Illinois!

Panthers bounce back after 0-2 star

By Trenten Scheidegger CORRESPONDENT

After dropping backto-back games to open the 2024 baseball season, the Panthers Lena-Winslow bounced back with a pair of victories over Polo and Alleman. It was a good sign for the Panthers. Not only did they come into last week with an 0-2 record, but they were coming off a pair of losses in which they fell by a combined score of 28-1. That's far from the Le-Win standard established in recent years.

The Panthers were looking to wake up their bats, but they needed to play a complete game of baseball. From the mound, the defense, to the batter's box, the Panthers needed to see improvements in all aspects of their game. Not only did they accomplish that, but they learned they can compete in close games.

On Saturday, March 16 the Panthers prepped for another home game as they played was a game that saw the Panthers jump out to an early lead before fending off a Polo

In the bottom of the second, Le-Win came to the plate with the game tied 0-0. At that point, the Panthers had put up just one run in 12 innings played. Something had to give, and it was Luke Madigan's triple over the center fielder that broke the cycle. Aiden Wild followed up with a grounder to the left side. A defensive error allowed Le-Win to score, and the Panthers held their first lead of the season.

That sparked something for Le-Win. Before Polo had recorded an out, back-to-back singles by Jaden Schubert, and Cohen Weegens had the Panthers up 2-0. Before the inning came to an end, Lucas Fye and Miles Mahon each had one-run singles, giving Le-Win a 5-0 advantage.

It was Madigan's excellent performance on the mound that stood out. In five and one third innings, Madigan struck out 11 while allowing zero runs on three hits. Wild came in to throw nearly two innings of relief. Wild struck out three during his time on the mound.

Le-Win's defensive struggles returned in the final inning as a pair of big errors allowed three unearned runs to come in for Polo. It wasn't enough to complete a comeback, as Le-Win held on for a 6-3 victory.

Schubert had a big day at the plate, going three for three with a run scored. Fve was one for two with a walk, two runs batted in, and one run scored. Madigan was two for four with two runs scored. and Weegens went two for Five days later, the Panthers played their first away game of the 2024 season. That night, they traveled to take on the Alleman Pioneers in what turned out to be a thriller of a matchup. The Panthers found themselves trailing multiple times in this one. Alleman took an early 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first. Later on, after Le-Win took a slim lead of their own, Alleman responded with three runs in the bottom of the

The Panthers found their rhythm in the top of that third inning. After going up 2-1, Le-Win went on to score in each of the final five innings of the game.

Another two-run inning in the top of the fourth allowed the Panthers to tie the game again. In the top of the fifth, they once again regained the lead after Wild led the inning off with a triple. Wild eventually scored on a wild pitch, giving his team the 5-4 advantage.

The sixth inning saw that lead expand as Mahon doubled to put runners in scoring position. Maverick Cass drove in a run with a sacrifice fly, but an error on the throw allowed Mahon to score as well. By the middle of the sixth, Le-Win held a 7-4 lead.

Alleman did enough to outs. A run in the bottom of the sixth made it a two-run game. In the seventh, a hit by pitch and a single gave Alleman an opportunity as they had two runners on with just one out. Madigan closed the game in excellent fashion. After a groundout, Madigan had Alleman down to their final out with the score in Le-Win's favor up 8-7. Madigan earned the would-be last out, but a dropped third strike kept the game alive. Finally, it was catcher Mahon who closed the game as he caught a runner trying to steal sec-

Applications now available for veterinary student loans

Illinois Farm Bureau® (IFB) is accepting applications for its Illinois Veterinary Education and Training

(IVET) loan program. Loans are available to second-year veterinary students attending any accredited college of veterinary medicine in the U.S. and who are focusing on Illinois food animal medicine. The IVET Program helps offset the high cost of veterinary education. The program loans up to $40,000 to as many as three veterinary students each year. Loans are made over a period of two to three years.

IVET awards recipients a $1,500 stipend during their fourth year in school to help pay expenses associated with clinical rotations. Loans are repaid over five years, during which graduates must commit to working in a food animal practice that services Illinois livestock producers. "Illinois Farm Bureau encourages veterinary students to pursue a career in caring for food animals," said Tasha Bunting, IFB director of commodity

'To succeed, farmers need the services of a food-animal veterinarian to help them care for their beef cattle, swine, sheep, and poultry. It's an incredibly rewarding career field that has seen an increase in demand in recent years.'

Applications are due May 15 and can be found online at www.ilfb.org/IVET. The selection committee will interview eligible applicants in spring 2024. Successful applicants will be notified by mail. Loan disbursements begin in August. IFB established IVET in 2005. Since then, the organization has awarded more than $610,000 to 29 veterinary students who focus on caring for food animals in Illinois. For more information about the program, contact Tasha Bunting, IFB director of Commodity Programs and Food Systems, at 309-557-2993 or tbunting@ilfb.org.

Preheat oven to 450. Remove pie crusts from pouches. On lightly floured surface, unroll and stack crusts one on top of the other. Roll to a 17 x 12 inch rectangle. Fit crust into ungreased 15 x 10 x 1 inch pan, pressing firmly into corners and sides. Fold crust even with edges of pan. Flute or crimp edges; prick crust several times with fork. Bake 10 minutes until golden

Coarsely chop 4 oz. of the white chocolate; sprinkle onto hot pie crust and let stand 5 minutes. With an offset metal spatula, carefully spread melted white chocolate across bottom of crust (will be thin layer). Freeze 10 minutes or until set.

In a small microwavable bowl, microwave 7 oz. of the remaining white chocolate and milk, uncovered on High for 30 seconds; stir. Continue heating in 10 second increments, stirring after each until chocolate is smooth. Set aside to cool. Shave remaining 1 oz. of white chocolate and set aside for topping.

In large bowl, beat cream cheese and powdered sugar with mixer until well blended. Add cooled white chocolate mixture to bowl. Beat well until blended. Gently fold in whipped topping. Spread jam on top of set layer on crust. Spoon chocolate mixture on top of jam layer; carefully spread to cover jam layer. Refrigerate at least 1 hour until chilled. Cut into squares. Just before serving top with strawberries and reserved shaved white chocolate.

Angel Food Strawberry Cake

This dessert takes a little planning, but it is delicious and pretty enough for a holiday. If you make your own angel food cake instead of using a mix, that is better. However, using a box cake mix will work just fine. Note: If you see that the recipe calls for a lot of boiling water, the frozen strawberries take the place of cold water.

- 1 box of Angel Food Cake Mix
- 1 pkg (3 oz.) strawberry Jell-O 2½ C. boiling water

Stir to cool the mixture and set aside. Place cake on a cake plate. With a serrated knife, carefully cut the top 1 inch of cake from the top. Remove it and lay it beside the cake. # The value of basic research findings

In today's column I want to share information about two research projects the National Institute of Health recently reported on. But first, I must remind you that both studies are in the preliminary stage of research and therefore their conclusions each provide what is termed a basic research finding. Wellexecuted research, which provides advancements in the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of disease, is a long and arduous process. Basic research findings provide both the rational and the foundation for further research.

The American Cancer Institute is conducting research on ways to adapt a successful treatment, against certain cancers of the blood, bone marrow or lymph (CAR T-Cell therapy), so it can be used to treat solid tumors.

Illinois Licensed
General Dentist

T-cells are part of your body's immune system. CAR T-cell therapy involves collecting T cells from the patient's blood and re-engineering them in the laboratory to produce proteins on their surface called chimeric antigen receptors (CARs) that recognize and bind to specific proteins (antigens) on the surface of cancer cells. The engineered T cells are then stimulated to replicate in the laboratory and infused intravenously into the patient, where they kill any cancer cells with the target antigen on their surfaces.

addressed to adapt CAR T-cell therapy to treat solid tumors. Unlike blood cancer cells, solid tumor cells antigens may or may not be expressed on the surface of the cell and solid tumor cells of the same cancer type can vary from patient to patient, and even within a particular patient. In addition, immune-suppressing molecules produced from either the solid tumor or other immune cells can prevent the CAR T-cells from entering the tumor or render them too weak to kill cancer cells (exhaustion).

To overcome the antigen issue, researchers have created a synthetic antigen to mark cancer cells. These synthetic antigens function as a beacon, guiding the CAR T-cells to the tumor, where they attack and destroy it. The researchers delivered the CAR T-cells to mice with multiple types of cancer, by directly injecting them into the tumors or by administering it intravenously into the bloodstream. After two rounds of CAR T-cell treatment, significant reduction in tumor growth was noted. However, as humans are far more sensitive to bacteria than mice are. rigorous safety studies will need to be undertaken before it is evaluated in human patients.

To overcome the issue of T-cell exhaustion, researchers from around the world first had to identify the proteins in the body's defensive systems that lead to T-cell exhaustion. Once they had identified the proteins, they had to learn how and why they attacked the T-cells. Once they understood the process the next step was to engineer

CAR T-cells that could evade riggering it.

The second study is seeking to find new ways to treat bacterial infections in skin wounds and the oral cavity without antibiotics. Researchers at the University of Pennsylvania and Stanford University have developed gold covered nanoparticles that can both identify and target germs associated with oral disease, Streptococcus mutans and Staphylococcus aureus. Staphylococcus aureus is also the most prevalent of the four bacterial pathogens associated with infections in skin wounds.

When exposed to light, the nanoparticles emit ultrasonic waves. By encapsulating the nanoparticles in gold, which converts the energy from light into heat, the pathogens can be both identified by the ultrasonic waves(photoacoustic imaging), then killed by the heat (photothermal therapy). To make the nanoparticles even more appealing to the bacteria, they coat the gold in a type of sugar known as dextran.

The nanoparticles were more effective in treating Staphylococcus aureus infections in skin wounds than those treated with the antimicrobial, gentamicin. When the nanoparticles were applied to Streptococcus Mutans-infected teeth that had been removed from rat's jaws, researchers noted they killed almost one hundred percent of the bacteria.

These positive basic research findings will serve as the foundation for further research into the role of engineered nanoparticles in preventing oral disease and accelerating wound healing.

NUIC announces 2023-2024 All-Conference wrestling team

By Trenten Scheidegger CORRESPONDENT

As another excellent wrestling season has come and gone, the Northwest Upstate Illini Conference recently released their 2023-2024 All-Conference Wrestling team. To no surprise, the Lena-Winslow-Stockton PantherHawks absolutely dominated the list of wrestlers. Perhaps it's expected with one of the only wrestling coops in the conference, minus Durand-Pecatonica. However, even when you divide Le-Win-Stockton's 12 First Team wrestlers in half, they still have more award winners than every other program.

Of the 28 total First Team wrestlers. Le-Win-Stockton had nearly half of them. After the PantherHawks' 12 members, the next closest program was Dakota with four wrestlers on First Team. It should be noted that there are no Second Team selections in wrestling, only First Team and Honorable Men-

Jeremiah Luke also had an incredible sophomore season. After going 43-8 on the year, Luke earned a First Team selection. Karl Hubb just missed that 40-win mark in his senior campaign. With a record of 39-11, Hubb earned his own First Team selection. Jared Dvorak, a fellow senior, matched Hubb's record with 39 wins of his own. Dvorak finished the year 39-8, earning a First Team selection. Michael Haas was the next leading senior with 34 wins on the year. Brady Haas, also a senior, finished right behind him with 33 victories. Both Michael and Brady were First Team selections as seniors.

John Mensendike another shining sophomore for the PantherHawks. If it weren't for the dominant trio ahead of him, Mensendike would have garnered even more notice with a record of 32-17. Mauricio Glass, also a sophomore, tied Mensendike with 32 wins of his own. Glass went 32-16 on the year as both him and Mensendike earned First Team selections.

Rounding out the First Team selections, the Panther-Hawks had two more sophomores and a freshman. Both Tegan Arnold and Reece Demeter finished with over 20 wins as sophomores, which earned them a First Team selection. Freshman Gannon Dunker also earned a First Team selection as the youth shined for the 2023-2024 PantherHawks.

All in all, Le-Win-Stockton had seven different sophomores and one freshman receive a First Team selection. Additionally, sophomore David Prater was also named an Honorable Mention for this

The PantherHawks are going to lose a few high-quality seniors, but their future looks brighter than ever.

For the most part, incumbents beat back challengers amid low primary turnout statewide

By Peter Hancock CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

With only a few exceptions. incumbent officeholders in Illinois cruised to easy victories in primary elections last week that were marked by historically low voter turnout.

Although final numbers won't be known for several more days, preliminary returns from many of the state's larger counties showed turnout hovering in the range of 20-25 percent.

That compares to a statewide average of 47 percent in 2016, when the White House was an open race, and 28 percent during the pandemic-impacted primaries in 2020.

That may have been due to the fact that there were few truly competitive races for voters to decide, especially at the top of the ballot. Democratic President Joe Biden and Republican former President Donald Trump had both secured enough delegates to win their respective party nominations a full week before polls even opened in Illinois.

One race that did prove competitive, though, was the 12th Congressional District race in southern Illinois. where incumbent Republican Mike Bost, of Murphysboro, survived a challenge from former state Sen. Darren Bailey, the unsuccessful GOP candidate for governor in 2022.

Bost is a former state legislator who was first elected to Congress in 2014. Bailey had served only one term in the state House and half a term in the state Senate before running for governor.

Both portrayed themselves as pro-Trump Republicans. Although Trump had endorsed Bailey in his bid for governor, he endorsed Bost in the primary.

Bailey conceded the race Tuesday night when unofficial returns showed Bost ahead by about 3 percentage points, with 96 percent of the votes counted.

Another close congressional race was in the 7th District of Chicago, where longtime incumbent Democrat Danny Davis fended off challenges from Chicago City Treasurer Melissa Conyears-Ervin and community organizer Kina Collins among others.

Davis, who is 82, was first elected to Congress in 1996. Before that, he served on the Cook County Board of Commissioners and, starting in 1979, the Chicago City Council. Although his challengers argued it was time for a new generation to step into leadership, Davis drew on his support from Gov. JB Pritzker and other established Democrats to win the race with an estimated 53 percent of the

In state legislative races, two Democratic lawmakers from the Chicago area were ousted by challengers in the primaries.

In the 20th Senate District, Democratic Sen. Natalie Toro was defeated by challenger Graciela Guzman.

Democratic Party officials

appointed Toro to that seat to fended off a challenge in the fill a vacancy when the last elected senator, Christina Pacione-Zayas, resigned to take a job in Chicago Mayor Brandon Johnson's administration. Toro had backing from Senate President Don Harmon, D-Oak Park, but Guzman was endorsed by liberal U.S. Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vt.

And in the 31st District, Rep. Mary Flowers, the longest-serving member of the House who had fallen out of favor with Democratic leaders in recent months, lost her seat to challenger Michael Craw-

House Speaker Emanuel "Chris" Welch, D-Hillside, appointed Flowers to his leadership team when he was elected speaker in 2021. But Welch removed her from leadership in 2023 amid allegations that she was abusive to staff. Welch endorsed and raised money for Crawford, who carried roughly 70 percent of the vote as of Wednes-

Republican Rep. Blaine Wilhour, of Beecher City,

110th House District from Matthew Hall, of Vandalia, who had the backing of teachers unions and other organized labor groups.

Results were not immediately available, however, in the 102nd House District where another labor-backed candidate, Jim Acklin, of Ogden, was trying to unseat Rep. Adam Niemerg, of Dieterich. That's because both men were running as write-in candidates after Niemerg was removed from the ballot due to a technical error in his candidate filing and Acklin entered the race after the filing deadline.

In the 88th District of central Illinois, Decatur native Regan Deering, who ran unsuccessfully for Congress in 2022, edged out McLean County Board member Chuck Erickson in the Republican primary. That's a seat where incumbent Rep. Dan Caulkins, R-Decatur, is stepping down. No Democrat has entered that race so far.
