JDCF and the Galena Center for the Arts present 'A Visit from Will Dilg'

The Jo Daviess Conservation Foundation and the Galena Center for the Arts are pleased to present a performance of Marking's show, "A Visit from Will Dilg" on Friday, Aug. 23 at 7 p.m. at the Galena Center for the Arts, 971 Gear Street, Galena. Tickets are $25 and can be purchased at galenacenterforthearts.org/events or call the Center for the Arts Thursdays through Sundays, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 815-402-3111.

Will Dilg was a Chicago businessman and an avid sportsman and nature lover, who claimed to spend upwards of 60 days a year fishing the Upper Mississippi backwaters. He watched with growing alarm as the habitats he treasured were degraded and drained en masse for commercial purposes. Dilg lived in the era of the extinction and near-extinction of charismatic species like the Passenger Pigeon, Ivory-Billed Woodpecker, and the American Bison and he wanted to prevent a similar fate from befalling the fish, waterfowl and other riparian wildlife that lived in or migrated over these wetlands.

So, in 1922, Dilg founded the Izaak Walton League (named after the author of The Compleat Angler, first published in 1653), moved to Washington DC and traveled around the country, holding mass meetings and founding League chapters to spearhead the first successful, large scale ecological Congressional lobbying effort in history.

In "A Visit from Will Dilg," Steven Marking engagingly portrays how Will Dilg went about stopping what Dilg called "The Drainage Crime of the Century."

Steven Marking hopes that his one-man, multi-media show will help the public understand how hard fought it was to create the Refuge and how significant it remains 100 years later. It is the largest contiguous floodplain habitat in the nation.

KATHLEEN BOATMAN

Kathleen Joy Boatman, age 76 of Boscobel, WI formerly of Lena, IL passed away peacefully at Beehive Homes of Maple Grove, MN on August 1, 2024, with her daughter, son-in-law, and granddaughter at her side. She was born August 4, 1947, the 13th of 17 children to Carl and Inez (Rogers) Achenbach.

ner, Sophia Wagner, Gunner Hillman, and Briggs Sipe. She is also survived by 4 brothers Jerry (Patti) Achenbach, Edward (Belle Ann) Achenbach, Robert (Judy) Achenbach, Dennis (Marilyn) Achenbach; 4 sisters Anna Walker, Thelma (Jerry) Jones, Barbara (Michael) Collins, Jeanette Nauert; brother-in-law Ted Hall; and numerous nephews, nieces, and their extended families.

Kathy first attended a one room country schoolhouse prior to attending and graduating from Boscobel High School in 1965.

Kathy married Harold Wagner in 1967, and they had three children. She was later married to Donald Boatman in 1983 until his death in 2021.

Kathy held numerous jobs after high school to include being a telephone operator in Madison, WI and a clerk at the Winnebago County Courthouse in Rockford, IL. The jobs she enjoyed the most were working at the Lena Veterinary Clinic and the Lena Drug Store because she enjoyed meeting and interacting with the farmers and area residents.

Kathy enjoyed gardening, working in her flower beds, and remodeling homes (much to Don's dismay!) However, her greatest love was her grandchildren. She loved to spoil them every chance she got. She had a big heart and treated everyone's children as if they were her own.

Kathy is survived by her children Chris (Bambi) Wagner of Lena, IL and Nicole (Michael) Williams of Ham Lake, MN; her grandchildren Madessa Wagner (Jason Radecki), Christopher (Cassie) Wagner, Alexandria Pearson, Wyatt Pearson, Alyssa Williams (Kody Sipe), Paige Williams, Evan Huebner (Savannah Heath), and Makenzie Huebner; her great grandchildren Greyson Wagner, Sophia Wagner, Gunner Hillman, and Briggs Sipe. She is also survived by 4 brothers Jerry (Patti) Achenbach, Edward (Belle Ann) Achenbach, Robert (Judy) Achenbach, Dennis (Marilyn) Achenbach; 4 sisters Anna Walker, Thelma (Jerry) Jones, Barbara (Michael) Collins, Jeanette Nauert; brother-in-law Ted Hall; and numerous nephews, nieces, and their extended families.

Kathy was preceded in death by her parents, infant daughter Angela Marie Wagner, husband Donald Boatman, 4 brothers Patrick, Richard, Gene, and Donald Achenbach; 4 sisters and brothers-in-law Beverly and Robert Wallace, Madeline and Richard Hagensick, Mabelle and Lyle Turner, Peggy Hall, and Robert Walker.

At the request of Kathy and knowing her wishes, there will be no memorial service. There will be an open house celebration of life for Kathy and Don on Aug. 24, 2024, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at their former residence, 204 E. Bluff St. Boscobel, WI. A light lunch will be provided.

Chris and Nicole would like to extend a special thank you to our family members, Mom's friends, and her neighbors who helped her around the house during Don's illness and after he passed.

Kathy's eyes were donated to the University of Minnesota for research. In lieu of flowers, memorial gifts may be made to: Wisconsin Council of the Blind & Visually impaired at 754 Williamson St. Madison, WI 53703 or WCBlind.org; Alzheimer's Association; or American Cancer Society.

Crop price projections increasingly pessimistic

By Daniel Grant
FARMWEEK

Farmers should brace for even tighter margins and implement applicable risk management practices based on the latest crop price estimates from the University of Illinois farmdoc team.

Current levels of futures contracts suggest appropriate budgeting for 2024 crop production is down to $4 per bushel for corn and $10.50 for soybeans.

Those prices would result in low returns for 2024, much lower than the most recent low-price period from 2014 to 2019, according to ag economists on the U of I farmdoc team.

"I think we've now entered a period of lower returns to farming just like we did in 2013 and 2014," Gary Schnitker, U of I soybean industry chair in ag strategy, previously told FarmWeek. "The big thing that we see right now is that just like in 2013 and 2014, cash rents are high relative to the return potential for farmland."

The national marketing year price for corn is currently forecast at $4.65 per bushel (the 2023 marketing year ends in August) compared to $6.54 in 2022. If it drops to $4 for 2024, it would be the lowest since 2019 ($3.56).

It's a similar story for soybeans with a current projected price of $11.55 per bushel for 2024 compared to $13.76 in 2023.

Meanwhile, cash rents increased from an average of $277 per acre statewide from 2014 to 2019 to a projected $359 per acre in 2024, an increase of $82. Non-land costs during the same time increased by $185 per acre for corn and $149 for soybeans, according to Illinois Farm Business Farm Management data.

"Current market price indicators of $4 per bushel for corn and $10.50 for soybeans are above the 2014 to 2019 averages," the U of I economists noted. "Still, return levels likely will be much lower than from 2014 to 2019 because of higher costs."

And don't look now, but current futures prices suggest cash prices at harvest could dip to around $3.80 for corn and below $10 for soybeans.

Beyond that, futures prices suggest market year average prices for 2025 of around $10.80 per bushel for beans while cash corn prices at harvest in 2025 could be in the low-$4.30-range.

Pritzker signs measures reining in biometric data privacy law, eliminating grocery tax

Measures are among more than 50 bills signed since Aug. 2

By Hannah Meisel and Jerry Nowicki

CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Illinois' first-in-the-nation law that allows residents to sue companies over the improper collection of their biometric information will be slightly less punitive after Gov. JB Pritzker signed a new law.

Lawmakers this spring amended the Biometric Information Privacy Act in response to an Illinois Supreme Court ruling last year that suggested lawmakers clarify the law. That ruling found fast food chain White Castle violated BIPA each time employees scanned their fingerprints in the course of performing their jobs, as the company never obtained employees' permission to collect their fingerprints.

But under Senate Bill 2979, employees or customers whose fingerprints, retinal scans, voice samples or other unique biometric information were collected by businesses without their permission can only claim one violation of BIPA instead of hundreds. In jobs with fingerprint-enabled time clocks and cash registers or other secure areas that require biometric data scans to access, employees might end up scanning their thumbs or eyes dozens of times per day.

Using the old method of accrual, White Castle's attorneys estimated the company would be on the hook for up to $17 billion in penalties, as the law provides for $1,000 in damages for each "negligent" violation or $5,000 for each "reckless" or "intentional" violation.

Though the eye-popping number made headlines, White Castle earlier this year settled the case for $9.4 million. Business groups, however, argue that settlement and others like it represent the obvious outcome of the law unique to Illinois, which they argue has incentivized the creation of a cottage industry for ambitious attorneys.

Though technology took years to catch up with the law's aims, thousands of lawsuits have been filed—especially since they began to take off around 2018—including a few that have resulted in high-profile settlements, such as a $650 million class-action payout from Facebook in 2020.

While some business groups were supportive of the reforms, others claimed they did not go far enough.

Chicago-based attorney Danielle Kays of Fisher & Phillips LLP, who represents companies facing BIPA challenges, told Capitol News Illinois that the amendment "can be seen as a step in the right direction" but said it's up to the courts to interpret the update to the law.

"This isn't the full reform that most businesses probably want—or that is warranted, given that still no plaintiff has actually been harmed by BIPA violations," she said.

Because there have been no data breaches that have led to anyone's fingerprints or other biometric information being stolen, Kays and others say lawmakers should further amend BIPA to allow businesses to cure violations before facing a lawsuit. A business is in violation of BIPA if it doesn't have a storage policy in place, doesn't properly protect the data, or if it does not get consent from customers or employees for the data being collected.

The amendment also made it easier for companies to get consent from customers or employees.

While the old law required "informed written consent" for the collection of fingerprints and other biometric data, businesses can now obtain that consent via an electronic signature, which the bill defines as an "electronic sound, symbol, or process."

Kays also noted that there was an uptick in BIPA cases filed between May, when lawmakers passed the amendment, and the end of July.

"We track the cases on a daily basis and BIPA filings have been fairly consistent but there, of course, have been ebbs and flows," she said. "One could conclude that the plaintiffs were trying to file the lawsuits before the BIPA amendment went into effect."

Grocery tax to be eliminated

As part of state budget negotiations this year, lawmakers approved Pritzker's plan to eliminate the statewide 1 percent grocery tax beginning in 2026. He signed that provision into law on Aug. 5.

The revenue from the state grocery tax goes to municipal governments, rather than state coffers. To make up for those lost revenues, the law allows

Slices of life

The meaning of life

By JILL PERTLER
Columnist

Our search for meaning is nearly as old as time.

I've been round and round again (and again) with widowhood. To say I overthink it is the understatement of understatements.

It seems like something this big and this life-changing should have meaning.

Big meaning.

I can't imagine going through what this has put me through without it having meaning. Purpose. Immense purpose.

Without that it would be such a waste. That would be even more sad than losing my person.

And that feels devastating. To be honest - and I can say this now that I am out of the dark, suffocating cloud that encompasses the center of grief - now that I am nearly on the other side (and I'm not sure there really is another side) I'm surprised I survived.

I'm glad I did. I think I'm glad. I wouldn't have wanted to give up or to die, but at times it felt like death, or maybe something close to death or maybe something much worse than death.

Because based on what I believe now, death is pretty awesome. It is a gateway to the spectacular. And we all will love it when we get there.

But that isn't supposed to be now. At least not for the most of us.

So we grapple with life - the struggles of it all and the meaning therein.

Because we all struggle. We all deal with our own struggles.

And each one of them seems so personal at the time. Because it is, but then again, it isn't. None of them are.

Because as personal as my struggle has been, there a lot of widows and widowers who are traveling through the turmoil that is grief.

Many people struggle with mental health issues. Likewise (sadly) for people with cancer and other diseases. There are lots who are physically or cognitively disabled. There is abuse and neglect, poverty, homelessness and hunger. Many struggle with pain we all can see and even more with pain we can't.

There are so many ways to challenge the joy-filled happiness we all believe is supposed to comprise life.

We struggle collectively and we struggle individually while we search for a purpose to it all.

What does all this mean - for me, for the people I love, for the world at large? And why?

Why the need for the pain? The suffering. The despair. The confusion. The loss. Being lost.

What is the purpose of it all? Shouldn't there be a purpose? A meaning?

Perhaps pain is a teaching moment. Perhaps it is an integral part of the purpose.

Boy, wouldn't that suck? But it does make sense.

Maybe, pain is growth. Maybe it can lead to clarity.

Clarity regarding the small stuff; none of it matters. Clarity regarding the big stuff; none of it matters.

Our suffering is real. My suffering has been real. I will never deny that.

Oftentimes, suffering, in its specificity, feels personal. It feels like we are the only one, when that just isn't true.

We all struggle. We all suffer. We are all outcasts - in some form - at one time or another.

And it is what we do with that and because of that - for ourselves and for others - inward and outward, that propels us forward or backward or somewhere in-between.

It is what helps us define the meaning. It helps us find the meaning. Perhaps it is the meaning. The purpose - to move beyond and through the suffering to understand none of us is in this alone. We are all here together.

Perhaps that itself is the answer to my original question.

Conversation on the importance of civic engagement with Gen Z voters

By U.S. Rep. Raja Krishnamoorthi

I joined The Hill's Mychael Schnell, former Illinois Congressman Peter Roskam, and A Starting Point co-founders Chris Evans and Mark Kassen recently in Chicago for a bipartisan discussion on the importance of participating in our democracy and in broader civic engagement.

It was a pleasure to meet with so many students from the BridgeUSA organization, many of whom will be voting in their first presidential election in November.

Every vote matters, and it is our duty as Americans to participate in our democracy and make our voices heard and represented.

Examining the CCP's

Great Firewall and its techno-authoritarian state

The Select Committee on the Strategic Competition Between the United States and the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) recently held a hearing on the danger posed by the CCP's efforts to censor and monitor all information coming into and out of the country.

The internet is designed to connect people from around the world, promoting the exchange of ideas and information freely. But for those living within the People's Republic of China, this right is being denied by the CCP, which is using the internet to divide and suppress its people by cutting off their connection to the outside world and only promoting content and ideas that the CCP wants its citizens to see.

The CCP has also stifled conversations about human rights and democracy within the PRC, painting the U.S. and our allies as aggressors and spreading anti-democratic propaganda to keep its citizens in line with the authoritarian regime. This, coupled with the CCP's estimated 500 million surveillance cameras in use throughout the country, has allowed the regime to maintain a stranglehold on its population.

As Ranking Member of the Committee, what is equally concerning is the spread of this type of techno-authoritarian state to other nations around the world. Xi Jinping has said that the countries that control the internet will win the world,

Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau offering $250 towards ROPS purchase

The Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau would like to offer funds to reimburse farmers for purchasing Rollover Protection Structure (ROPS). Fifty-five percent of farm tractors in Illinois do not have a cab or ROPS. Only one in five victims will survive a tractor rollover accident. The leading cause of farm related deaths in Illinois is tractor rollover accidents. They account for more than 30% of farm related deaths. ROPS help protect farmers and family members from being crushed in the event of a tractor turnover or rollover.

Safety Chairman, Dan Robbe, states, "Safety is a priority of the farm bureau, and we would like to encourage our members to install ROPS on their tractors".

Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau members who purchase a ROPS could receive a reimbursement of $250 towards the purchase of a ROPS (there are six rebates available). To receive the $250, members need to bring in their paid invoice to the Farm Bureau office in Elizabeth. Customers are responsible for the cost, freight, and installation which are available through the dealer. If you have been thinking about putting a ROPS on one of your tractors, now is the time. For more information about this program, or to become a member of our organization, contact the Jo Daviess County Farm Bureau office at 815-858-2235 or email jdcfbmgr@gmail.com.

Family Farm signs

As we are nearing the end of summer, we all start thinking of back to school and the fall weather coming soon. There's still time to do some work around the farm and spruce things up a bit. Why not add a "This is a Family Farm" sign to your landscape? The signs are 17.5" X 23" and cost $30. Stop by our office and pick one up.

SUDOKU

Fun by the Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test! Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

counties and municipalities to levy their own 1 percent grocery taxes by passing an ordinance, rather than needing a referendum.

It also gives non-home rule municipalities the authority to impose sales taxes by up to 1 percent without a referendum.

Inspecting state developmental facilities

The Illinois Department of Human Services Office of the Inspector General will be allowed to conduct unannounced site visits at state-run facilities serving individuals with developmental or mental disabilities.

Senate Bill 857, signed Aug. 2, gives the OIG authority to conduct site visits to all community agencies in the state, including Community Integrated Living Arrangements and Community Mental Health Centers. The OIG is also required to issue written reports and recommendations after reviewing a facility.

The OIG will also have more authority to investigate allegations of material obstruction of an investigation under the law that took effect upon its signature on Aug. 2.

Coverage of infertility, wigs

Senate Bill 773 requires state-regulated group health insurance policies that cover pregnancy to group health insurance to cover the diagnosis and treatment of infertility starting in 2026, including such options as in vitro fertilization. The measure also requires those plans to cover annual menopause health visits for those age 45 and older.

Senate Bill 2573 requires insurance plans to cover wigs for individuals who are losing their hair for medical reasons, such as alopecia or from undergoing chemotherapy.

Mindful classrooms

Senate Bill 2872 allows educators to provide students with at least 20 minutes of relaxation activities, like yoga and meditation, each week. It would also allow them to partner with an outside institution to provide the activities.

During House debate this spring, supporters of the bill said practicing soothing techniques, like breathing exercises and stretching, helps students manage their mental health. But those opposed expressed concern with potential programming interfering with classroom learning time and religious freedoms.

Food grants

A pilot program that has given nearly $2 million to local farms will become permanent after Pritzker's signature Aug. 2 on Senate Bill 3077. It creates a special fund for the Department of Agriculture to administer the Local Food Infrastructure Grant Program.

Grants would go to select small farms for things like food processing and cold storage. Grant amounts could range from $1,000 to $75,000 for individual projects and up to $250,000 for a collaborative project.

Garbage truck coverings

Garbage trucks that lose trash because they are not properly covered will be subject to fines starting next year. House Bill 4848 creates a specific violation for law enforcement to cite when garbage or other debris falls from a truck and litters highways. Each infraction will result in a $150 ticket.

Net metering changes coming soon

In September 2021, the Climate and Equitable Jobs Act was signed into law and is now changing the way ComEd and other energy providers are crediting those with renewable energy sources. This change will take place on Jan. 1, 2025. However, there are still many questions involved with this development.

What is net metering?

Net metering is a great incentive that an electric utility may offer. The purpose of the net meter is to measure power "delivered" to a house or "received" by the utility from solar array. At the end of the month, excess kWh credits are used to offset power delivered to homes. The "net" power delivered to homes forms the basis for calculating electric bills for that month.

At the end of the month, if you generated more power than you consumed, excess kWh credits carryover to the next month. The monthly carryover then continues month after month. Depending on your utility, excess credits expire at the end of each quarter, bi-annually, or annually. Some utilities may pay for any end of term excess, but many have a "use-it or lose-it" policy and no value is provided.

What is the difference come Jan. 1, 2025?

Currently, ComEd offers 1:1 net metering that applies to the supply, delivery and fees you are billed. On Jan. 1, 2025, ComEd will change its 1:1 net metering to apply to only the supply portion of the power bill. Net metering will not affect the delivery and fees section of your power bills and you will therefore still have to pay for this part of your bill.

Does this change if I am currently producing solar energy?

If your solar array is installed and certificate of completion applied for before Dec. 13, 2024, your system will be grandfathered in with 1:1 net metering and will not be affected by the net metering change. If you have been considering going solar, now is the best time to take advantage of the best incentives available to you.

How can I learn more?

You can learn more by calling Steline Solar or stopping in with any questions you may have about net metering changes and how you can act now to take advantage of the current net metering benefits.

Watch for signs of heat stress in livestock

By Rhiannon Branch

With plenty of summer left to go, livestock producers are reminded to monitor animals and implement management practices to reduce the risk of heat stress.

"We've had a couple spells of some high heat and high humidity, and it doesn't take very many of those days to cause some stress on the livestock," Dan Shike, interim head of the Department of Animal Sciences at the University of Illinois, told FarmWeek.

Heat stress is more common during periods of high nighttime temperatures.

"When we're not getting the nighttime cooling, that's when those animals really start to have some challenges because they're not able to get rid of that excess heat load and dissipate that heat through the night," Shike said.

Common signs of heat stress are panting, increased water intake and decreased feed intake. Low milk production in dairy cows could also be a symptom.

Shike said ensuring access to plenty of fresh water is key, for cattle especially.

"That's one of their primary ways of dealing with the excess heat load and their water consumption will go up dramatically during times of heat stress," he said.

Providing enough shade for livestock in pastures is also helpful if it does not restrict airflow.

"If we're talking about putting out shade structures, we need to think about do we have the right amount?" he said. "If there's not enough space, the animals will crowd, then that's actually counterproductive because when they're all right next to each other, they're not going to be able to dissipate as much heat."

For livestock housed in buildings, like many swine and dairy farms, Shike said exposure to direct sunlight isn't a concern, but ventilation is important.

"Air flow ventilation, fans, misters and sprinklers are all tools that are used."

With county fair and exhibition season in full swing, Shike said there are extra things for showmen to consider.

"Be mindful of when you transport those animals and try to transport them in the early morning or evening hours to avoid the high heat as some of those trailers can get pretty hot."

He said exhibitors can keep livestock cool at fairs by using fans and misters, offering fresh water and taking frequent trips to the wash rack.

"You do have to be careful if you have an animal that's absolutely in heat stress because if you put a bunch of cold water on their back you can shock their system," he said. "So, the best thing is to give them a drink, maybe start with a little water on their legs and belly and gradually cool them down."

If an exhibition animal gets overheated in the staging area or show ring, a rag with cool water around their neck can provide some relief, Shike said.

Proposed Aqua rate increase reignites tensions between the company and its customers

Aqua Illinois proposal to increase rates under review by Illinois regulators

By Andrew Adams
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

As state regulators consider whether to approve a proposed rate increase for the state's second largest private water utility, its customers are criticizing it for poor service and high prices.

Aqua Illinois, which serves parts of 14 counties mostly in northern Illinois, requested an increase to its rates in January. Under the proposal, customers would see about a $30 increase in monthly bills, according to Citizens Utility Board, a consumer watchdog group involved in the case.

This comes at the same time as the state's largest utility, Illinois American Water, is requesting a similar rate increase of its own—and facing its own criticisms.

The Illinois Commerce Commission is expected to rule on both cases by the end of the year. Regulators at the ICC can accept, reject or modify the proposals based on evidence presented to them from the companies, ICC staff, advocacy groups and municipalities.

Representatives of Aqua Illinois say the rate increase is necessary to maintain the infrastructure of its water systems, such as pump stations and water treatment plants, as well as to keep up with the cost of inflation. According to Aqua Illinois President David Carter, the cost of chemicals needed for making water safe to drink has more than doubled since the utility's last rate case over six years ago.

But many Aqua Illinois customers say the company has already failed to adequately maintain its systems and shouldn't be granted the increase.

Last year, Aqua Illinois entered into a consent order meant to resolve years of legal battles with the state's attorney general stemming from dangerously high levels of lead in the water system for University Park, a far south suburb of Chicago. The heavy metal can lead to brain and kidney damage and is particularly dangerous for young children.

University Park's mayor, members of its board of trustees and residents registered their dissatisfaction with the utility at an ICC hearing Aug. 1 in Bourbonnais. Black residents make up the majority of the working-class village of about 7,200.

McHenry County community are "angry" and "frustrated" with the company.

"No one uses water from the tap," she said.

University Park's unincorporated neighborhood of Eastwood Manor is often discolored due to high levels of iron. In the company's 2023 water quality report for that system, it found the iron concentration to be 2.3 parts per million. While it doesn't apply to this specific water system, the general threshold for iron set by the Illinois EPA's threshold of 1.0 parts per million for drinking water.

"This is environmental racism and injustice," University Park Village Manager Elizabeth Scott said during a public comment. "And ICC, I want you to know we have to have you do something. These people are monsters."

Others, like former village trustee Sonia Jenkins, criticized the rate increase request itself, particularly after many have spent several years buying bottled water to avoid relying on the tap.

"We have major concern with Aqua water company," Jenkins said. "There is no trust. Our seniors cannot afford an increase like this."

In the five years since the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency found lead in University Park's water, Aqua has spent about $18 million on remediation, according to Carter, none of which is being recovered from ratepayers. The lead contamination came from erosion of older pipes.

"We feel really confident that the erosion control treatment we have in place is working well," he said in an interview last week, also noting that testing has found lead levels to be acceptable for three years.

Residents of the village can also request lead level testing from the company at no cost.

"We are committed to wanting to begin to build the trust," Carter said Aug. 1.

But University Park residents are not alone in their discontent over Aqua's water quality. At a separate hearing Monday in the far northwest Chicago suburb of Crystal Lake, attendees complained of service interruptions and of discolored water.

"It's just unfair," said Frank Pontrelli of Lakemoor. "We're just getting browbeat here. Money's getting taken and the water is still orange."

Stephanie Tesmer, a customer and longtime critic of Aqua Illinois, said in an interview that she and others in her

McHenry County community are "angry" and "frustrated" with the company.

"No one uses water from the tap," she said.

University Park's unincorporated neighborhood of Eastwood Manor is often discolored due to high levels of iron. In the company's 2023 water quality report for that system, it found the iron concentration to be 2.3 parts per million. While it doesn't apply to this specific water system, the general threshold for iron set by the Illinois EPA's threshold of 1.0 parts per million for drinking water.

This leaves people like Tesmer relying on personally owned filtration systems to remove iron in their water, which can be costly.

Carter said despite the discoloration, the water meets state and federal safety regulations. Still, the company is expected to have a system-wide iron filtration system in place in Eastwood Manor by early next year.

The company acquired Eastwood Manor's water system, which had been plagued by water quality issues for decades, in 2016.

But Tesmer remains skeptical the utility will keep to its timeline.

"I won't believe anything until I see a proposal at the county level that they're ready to do the work," Tesmer said.

Service interruptions and high costs were also common concerns among residents of Lake County who registered public comment.

Last year, Hawthorn Woods and Kildeer experienced a multi-day service interruption, leaving hundreds of households without water. Parts of Lake County, including Hawthorn Woods, earlier this month were put under a boil advisory after a water main break.

"In 31 years of living in Buffalo Grove, I only had one boil order," Susan Bauer, who moved to Hawthorn Woods four years ago, said during a public comment. "Furthermore, my bills were nothing compared to what I'm paying now. My friends who still live in Buffalo Grove, they pay half of what I pay."

These situations have, according to Aqua, been resolved and all of its water systems are testing below regulatory limits for other hazardous materials.

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

I mentioned before that August is racing by. Teachers are in schools and fall sports have started. Gardens are producing tons of great vegetables. This week's column features the plentiful zucchini. I have had all kinds of calls for recipes using this vegetable that when you blink, it grows to epic proportions. I apologize for those who absolutely hate zucchini because we feature everything from an appetizer to main dishes and desserts too! Have a great week cooking.

Zucchini Appetizer

Beginning our zucchini theme for this week is an easy appetizer. It is made with Bisquick baking mix, and it can be cut into bite-sized pieces. It would be great on an appetizer table.

- 3 C. sliced zucchini
 - 1 C. Bisquick
 - 4 eggs, beaten
 - 1/2 C. chopped onion
 - 1/2 C. shredded Cheddar cheese
 - 1/2 C. oil
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 1/2 t. salt
- Preheat oven to 350. Lightly grease a 9x13 baking dish. Mix zucchini, Bisquick, eggs, onion, cheddar, oil, garlic, and salt together in a large bowl until well combined. Spread mixture into prepared baking dish. Bake until bubbly and lightly browned, about 25 minutes. Cut into pieces to serve.

Zucchini in Dill Cream Sauce

This great side dish gets rid of a lot of zucchini because it uses seven cups. It has a unique flavor with the dill and the sour cream sauce.

- 7 C. sliced zucchini, (1/4 inch slices)
- 1/4 C. finely chopped onion
- 1/2 C. water
- 1 t. salt
- 1 t. chicken bouillon granules or 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 1/2 t. dill weed
- 2 T. butter melted
- 2 t. sugar
- 1 t. lemon juice
- 2 T. flour
- 1/4 C. sour cream

In a Dutch oven, combine zucchini, onion, water, salt, bouillon and dill; bring to a boil. Add the butter, sugar and lemon juice; mix together. Remove from heat and do not drain. Combine the flour and sour cream; stir half the mixture into hot zucchini. Return to heat; add remaining cream mixture and cook until thickened. Place in a serving bowl. Sprinkle with chopped dill.

Zucchini Boats

I have featured zucchini boats in a past column several years ago, and this one is sort of a take-off on stuffed peppers. It can be made ahead if you wish. Try this ground beef and zucchini weeknight meal.

- 2 medium zucchini, about 8 oz.
- 1/4 lb. ground beef
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1/2 C. chopped fresh mushrooms
- 1/2 C. chopped red pepper

1/2 C. chopped green pepper
1 C. shredded cheddar cheese, divided
2 T. ketchup
Salt and pepper to taste
Preheat oven to 350. Trim ends off zucchini. Cut zucchini in half lengthwise; scoop out pulp, leaving 1/2 inch shells. Finely chop pulp. In a skillet, cook beef, zucchini, onion, mushrooms and peppers over medium heat, breaking beef into crumbles, until meat is no longer pink; drain. Remove from the heat. Add 1/2 C. cheese, ketchup, salt and pepper; mix well. Spoon into the zucchini shells. Place in a greased 9 x 13 baking dish. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 C. cheese. Bake, uncovered at 350. until zucchini is tender, 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with minced parsley and warm marinara sauce.

Chicken Zucchini Casserole

The last recipe was a beef and zucchini dish; this easy weeknight meal uses chicken. We certainly wouldn't want to offend anyone's meat choice!

- 1 pkg. (6 oz.) stuffing mix
- 3/4 C. butter, melted
- 3 C. diced zucchini
- 3 C. cubed, cooked chicken breast
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- 1 medium carrot, shredded
- 1/2 C. chopped onion
- 1/2 C. sour cream

Preheat oven to 350. In a large bowl, combine the stuffing mix and butter. Set aside 1/2 C. for topping. Add the zucchini, chicken, soup, carrot, onion and sour cream to the remaining stuffing mixture. Transfer to a greased 11x7 baking dish. Sprinkle with reserved stuffing mixture. Bake, uncovered, until golden brown and bubbly, 40 to 45 minutes.

Piña Colada Zucchini Bread

This is a really unusual take on zucchini bread. This quick bread is filled with a lot of different flavors like pineapple, coconut, vanilla and a surprise ingredient. Try this tasty and different zucchini bread.

- 4 C. flour
 - 3 C. sugar
 - 2 t. baking powder
 - 1 1/2 t. salt
 - 1 t. baking soda
 - 4 eggs, room temperature
 - 1/2 C. canola oil
 - 1 t. coconut extract
 - 1 t. rum extract
 - 1 t. vanilla
 - 3 C. shredded zucchini
 - 1 C. canned crushed pineapple, drained
 - 2 C. chopped pecans
- Preheat the oven to 350. Line 3 greased 8x4 inch loaf pans with waxed paper; grease paper. In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, and baking soda. Whisk until combined. In another bowl, whisk eggs, oil, and extracts. Stir in dry ingredients until just moistened. Fold in zucchini, pineapple, and nuts. Transfer to prepared pans. Bake until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean, 45 to 55 minutes. Cool for 10 minutes before removing from pans to wire racks. Gently remove waxed paper.

Zucchini Cupcakes

These zucchini cupcakes have no chocolate. There are a lot of zucchini cake recipes that use chocolate. The frosting on these is delicious. My mother used to have a date cake recipe with this frosting. Try the different cupcakes with a touch of orange.

- 3 eggs, room temperature
- 1 1/3 C. sugar
- 1/2 C. canola oil
- 1/2 C. orange juice
- 1 t. almond extract
- 2 1/2 C. flour
- 2 t. cinnamon
- 2 t. baking powder
- 1 t. baking soda
- 1 t. salt
- 1/2 t. ground cloves
- 1 1/2 C. shredded zucchini

Frosting:

- 1 C. packed brown sugar
 - 1/2 C. butter, cubed
 - 1/4 C. 2% milk
 - 1 t. vanilla
 - 1 1/2 to 2 C. powdered sugar
- Preheat oven to 350. In a mixer bowl, beat together the eggs, sugar, oil, orange juice and almond extract. In a separate bowl, combine the flour, cinnamon, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cloves. Whisk until totally combined. Gradually add to egg mixture and blend well. Take the bowl off mixer stand and add the zucchini, stirring carefully. Fill paper-lined muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean, 20 to 25 minutes. Cool 10 minutes before removing to a wire rack.

Frosting: Combine brown sugar, butter and milk in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat; cook and stir until thickened, 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Cool to lukewarm. Gradually beat in powdered sugar until frosting reaches spreading consistency. Frost cupcakes.

Final Thoughts

Time marches on as summer winds down. The pool closes at the end of this week. Summer concerts are winding down, and fairs are a thing of the past in our immediate area. Teachers are preparing rooms, and students are dusting off their Chrome Books.

There are a few things coming up that you may want to put on your calendar. The Lena Methodist Church is having an ice cream social on Aug. 15. Check out their menu. The Lena Area Historical Society is presenting a program on Saturday, Aug. 17 at 2 p.m. Jim McGenty of Pecatonica will present a program on the "Stagecoach Era." He has written many articles on the subject for the Northwest Illinois Quarterly Magazine. We have The Stagecoach Inn in Lena, one of the stops of the stagecoach on its run from Chicago to Iowa. Also, don't forget the Pearl City Boulevard Bash coming up later in August, the Shannon Labor Day Festival, and the Lena Lions Fall Festival the weekend after Labor Day. There are still all kinds of fun activities coming up.

We continue to look for summer fruit and vegetable recipes, so send some favorites our way. If you find some recipes to share, you can contact us by email at scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com or by mail at From Lena's Kitchens, The Shopper's Guide at Rock Valley Publishing, 1102 Ann St., Delavan, WI 53115. Have a great week.

What your tongue can say about your health

By DR. STEPHEN PETRAS Illinois Licensed General Dentist

Examining your tongue is a vital part of your oral exam. The shape, color, and any lesions, pain, burning, swelling, or coating on your tongue not only tells your dentist a lot about your oral health but also your overall health.

A normal, healthy tongue is moist, pink, and covered with papillae or small raised protrusions that contain taste buds. Deviations in color can indicate such conditions as a vitamin deficiency, fever, infection, or hormonal imbalance. If the exam reveals a coating on the tongue, the color of that coating can help identify if it is an infection or an underlying medical condition.

Swelling of the tongue can happen for a number of reasons. If your tongue swells up quickly and/or is accompanied by throat tightness, difficulty breathing and feeling dizzy or faint, this is a medical emergency, and you should seek immediate assistance. Other causes of tongue swelling include, but are not limited to, trauma from chipped or damaged teeth, sharp pieces of food, oral piercings, tongue chewing, and ill-fitting dentures. Alcohol, tobacco, acidic, spicy, or hot foods and beverages, whitening products (especially hydrogen peroxide) and certain food additives (such as excessive cinnamon intake) can irritate oral tissues and cause the tongue to swell. Certain medications (especially certain high blood pressure meds), vitamin deficiencies, decreased thyroid hormone, overproduction of growth hormone, low-estrogen states, loss of bitter taste buds, HPV, canker sores, acid reflux and oral cancer are also associated with tongue swelling.

Tongue lesions vary and can be indicators of stress, trauma, infections, vitamin deficiencies, and systemic disease including cancer.

More people than ever understand the need to floss and brush twice a day, but many people are not aware that food and bacteria on your tongue contributes to plaque buildup and bad breath. Gently brushing your tongue from the back to the tip of the tongue helps to remove this buildup, improve your breath and sense of taste, and affords you the perfect opportunity to examine your tongue. Knowing what your tongue normally looks like makes it easy to spot changes early.

Bottom line, if you find any abnormalities in your tongue, do not wait until your next exam to notify your dentist. Early diagnosis and intervention can minimize complications, so make an appointment with your dentist to get it checked. Make sure you bring an updated medical history, as well as a complete list of all medications, including both prescription and over-the-counter meds and any nutritional supplements that you are using. If your dentist suspects an underlying medical condition, he will consult with your physician, and this information will guide them in determining which diagnostic tests will be needed to obtain a definitive diagnosis and treatment plan.

Illinois further expands reproductive health care protections

Pritzker signs bills safeguarding various reproductive rights for residents, visitors of Illinois

By Dilpreet Raju
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Gov. JB Pritzker signed multiple bills expanding reproductive rights in Illinois last week, including codifying a federal law that allows medical professionals to perform an abortion in response to a clinical emergency.

Another bill bolsters Illinois' interstate shield law that prohibits Illinois authorities from disclosing information, or using resources, to abet any interstate investigation into someone receiving abortion services within Illinois. The final bill signed prohibits discrimination against people for their reproductive health decisions, including abortion, in vitro fertilization and fertility treatment.

Following the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in 2022 that overturned Roe v. Wade, states have had greater authority to curtail abortion access. States with Democratic majorities, like Illinois, have sought to enact more protections for abortion and other reproductive health services, while Republican-led states have moved to impose bans or limitations on the procedure.

One federal law Illinois lawmakers sought to codify in case it is struck down is the Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act, or EMTALA, which allows practitioners to perform abortions in medical emergencies. The U.S. Supreme Court declined to hear a case against EMTALA in June, although it could come back before the high court once it advances further in the lower courts.

Pritzker at the time called the high court's decision a "small respite," but he said it was also important to be proactive as a state in case of any further U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

"We can't wait around and be reactive when the latest attacks come, the pro-choice majority in this country need to be proactive," Pritzker said. "The three bills that I am signing today send a single, straightforward message: Illinois will always be a place where women have the freedom to make their own medical decisions."

Chief sponsor of the EMTALA-codification bill, Rep. Dagmara Avelar, D-Bolingbrook, said the realities of medical emergencies are distant from the clashes of partisan politics.

"We recognize that a medical emergency like this knows no politics," Avelar said. "A person in crisis deserves care, not controversy."

The bill also allows the Department of Public Health to investigate potential violations where medical practitioners fail to provide "stabilizing treatment" and issue fines at a minimum of $50,000.

Dr. Allison Cowett, medical director at Family Planning Associates Medical Group in Chicago, said her clinic is seeing more than double the number of out-of-state patients as compared to 2022.

"I will take care of patients from as close by as our West Loop neighborhood and as far away as Texas, border towns and the southern part of Florida," she said.

Cowett maligned the situation for people experiencing unsafe or unwanted pregnancies in states where abortion is illegal.

• Protections

“Some patients share their stories with me, they share their rage about what forced them to come to Illinois for basic medical care,” she said. “They were turned away because providers are afraid of criminalization and prosecution for even discussing abortion with a patient. This is not what health care is supposed to be.” Attorney General Kwame Raoul said Illinois’ protections will help people in nearby states that have enacted abortion restrictions.

“We have Indiana with a near abortion ban, near-total abortion ban, Missouri banning abortions without exception for rape and incest, Kentucky the same, and Iowa’s recently enacted six-week ban,” Raoul said. “That is horrific, but it lifts us up as a safe haven.”

Lt. Gov. Juliana Stratton said the laws passed are about expanding the state’s ability to take in more people seeking reproductive health care.

“Today is both beautiful and dumbfounding. As Gov.

Pritzker protects doctors and empowers Illinois families, the governor of Iowa just signed a fetal heartbeat bill that will push Iowans into our home for health,” Stratton said, also adding, “We have to stretch our capacity to provide care, not just for the women of Illinois, but for all women in the Midwest and beyond.”

and many other leaders, including Russia's Vladimir Putin, have taken steps to restrict online freedoms in a similar manner.

The U.S. cannot allow this model to continue to spread, and we must continue to work with our partners and allies to counter the efforts of the CCP to export its Great Firewall idea to other nations.

Working to protect the United States Postal Service

I joined with Robert Weissman, co-president of public interest at Public Citizen, in authoring a letter in the Washington Post on the current state of the United States Postal Service (USPS).

Under Postmaster General DeJoy's struggling strategic plan, customers of the Postal Service have seen relentless rate hikes. July 14 marked the fifth increase in three years, affecting broad categories of popular mail products, including first-class mail, newspapers, magazines, catalogs, and more. Package prices have also been raised significantly, and the price of the first-class "forever" stamp is now 73 cents.

These recent price increases total more than 184 percent of inflation, leaving small businesses and customers racing to keep up with higher prices, even in the face of declining service standards and slower delivery times. The Postal Regulatory Commission, charged with oversight of the USPS, noted in its recent comments on the rate hikes that "the Commission is concerned, given the current state of affairs, that the Postal Service's proposal does not reflect reasoned consideration of the potential widespread effects of its proposal, is not prudent, and is not consistent with the best interest of all stakeholders."

Our country needs a reliable, affordable postal system for everyone. Contrary to the title of Louis DeJoy's strategy for the USPS, his current leadership is not "delivering for America."

But every water utility—public and private—is facing aging infrastructure that will need to be replaced or upgraded in the coming years. The federal EPA in a 2023 report found that Illinois needs more than $22 billion in infrastructure spending over the next two decades, an increase of about 6 percent since its last assessment of infrastructure needs that was released in 2018.

While some infrastructure improvements can be handled with government funding, for Aqua and other private companies, much of it will have to come from customers.

"We are on kind of a collision course, truly, with rates and infrastructure," Carter said.
