Thanksgiving has its ups and downs

By JILL PERTLER
Columnist

Thanksgiving is a day of gratitude, but it's also so much more, not the least of which is food.

Oh my goodness, is there food! It is the start of the food season, also known as the holidays, where eating is akin to breathing and a variety of homemade cookies somehow become a staple in everyone's pantry.

"Here, enjoy another spritz tree!"

Thanksgiving used to be the start of the whole holiday season, but we all know that date has been moved up significantly. I'm not one to argue against early celebrations. I think every day should be one. But starting the holidays on July 5 seems a bit like overkill.

Let's at least give back-to-school and Halloween their due process, shall we? I digress.

Thanksgiving is just around the corner. It is honestly one of my favorite holidays, but it does have its upsides and downsides.

An upside: Gratitude. We all need more of it in our lives. Having a day dedicated to simply being thankful is genius.

A downside: You've got to eat the huge meal around noon because that's how Aunt Florence has always done it, and who wants to challenge tradition?

An upside: A traditional green bean casserole. Stuffing. Sweet potatoes. Mashed potatoes and gravy. All without counting calories.

A downside: Turkey contains tryptophan and that makes you sleepy after a big meal

The upside: An afternoon nap never felt so good.

An upside: Thanksgiving day itself is punctuated by football games—or Hallmark movies, depending on the makeup of your household. Either are good because they put you in the mood for holiday festivities.

A downside: You often have to spend the day with extended family and sometimes not everyone enjoys or likes their passive aggressive great-aunt Gertrude or flutulent uncle Frank.

An upside: Dessert. You're too full but you eat it anyway.

A downside: Dessert. You're too full but you eat it anyway.

An upside: Black Friday provides bargain opportunities galore!

A downside: Black Friday takes you away from family—the likes of great-aunt Gertrude, uncle Frank and aunt Florence—and puts your focus on the latest greatest Amazon deals (which none of us really needs anyway).

An upside: Leftovers! It's a week when you feast on turkey on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. By Sunday you're out of green beans, but there's still stuffing. (Does that stuff self-replicate in the fridge?)

A downside: There is no downside to leftovers, unless you count the cranberry sauce, which might last until next July if you can't find a good and creative use for it.

An upside: Thanksgiving is about spending time with people you love eating homemade comfort food.

A downside: The day only comes around once a year.

Thanksgiving originated in 1621 as a way to give thanks for blessings, which included a successful harvest. President Lincoln declared it a national holiday in 1863 to be celebrated on the last Thursday in November.

Why he chose Thursday, I'm not sure. But it does give us one more upside. Thanksgiving becomes the one holiday that falls on a Thursday and is followed each year by three consecutive Sundays. Or at least it feels that way.

Am I the only one? Enjoy. Practice gratitude. Have that extra piece of pie. Gobble, gobble.

Around the Northern Hills

Thanksgiving is a time when Americans come together to celebrate a holiday that connects each and every one of us. During this truly American holiday, we all give thanks for the previous year's blessings and look ahead to the future.

While we may bring our own traditions and flavors to the table, Thanksgiving is a time for all of us to celebrate our country's rich history. This week, when we sit down for Thanksgiving dinner, I hope we all remember to give special thanks for those who produced the ingredients for our delicious

River Ridge boys basketball tips off 2024-2025 season under new coach

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The River Ridge Wildcats are going to have a new head coach on the sideline for the 2024-2025 boys basketball season. It's a familiar face in Jacob Green who worked with former head coach, Jeremy Knauer. Green has 10 total years of coaching experience under his belt, coaching the junior varsity level at two different schools.

The Wildcats are coming off a season in which they finished 16-15 overall. They return two key players from that 16-win team in senior forward Joe Winter, and senior guard Damon Dittmar.

Despite returning only two starters from last year, the Wildcats have strength in numbers. This year's roster features seven seniors including Winter and Dittmar. Senior guards, Mason Smith, Camden Flack, and David Buck join senior forwards, Nate Haas and Logan Keleher.

A pair of juniors in guard Sam Rife, and forward Aaron Diehl are also expected to be part of the main rotation to start the season. The Wildcats also have five more juniors in guards Ethan Kloss, Eli Eisenberg, and Sawyer Fry, and forwards Jayden Culver, Seth Ries, and Matthew Ransom.

Sophomore guard, Kaden Bauer, is the youngest member of the Wildcats' main rotation. With an overloaded roster of upperclassmen, it could be tough for newcomers to find many opportunities at the varsity level in 2024.

That's a good problem for Green and the Wildcats to have. There is no shortage of leadership or depth on this year's roster, and that is something many teams wish they had. "We have a good nucleus back from last year with solid leadership," Green shared before the season.

Green also believes the team's size will be a strength. When asked to describe himself as a coach, Green spoke about sticking to his roots. "I grew up in a motion offense program, so I'm still deeply rooted in getting post touches and good ball movement," Green explained. That's good news for Winter and the other forwards on the team and should only open things up for the guards.

Winter knows the team has to clean up some of the little things if they want to win more than 16 games this year. "Taking care of the ball" and "consistency over the course of an entire game" were two things Green mentioned when discussing the areas the team needs to improve upon.

At the end of the day, Green is hoping to provide a spark while bringing this team together. "I try to be high-energy, and I set the bar high for the boys. Playing team basketball is a top focus for the program," Green explained, before adding that he "likes to study other teams and the evolution of the game of basketball in general."

The Wildcats got an early test when they opened the 2024-2025 season in a home game against the Galena Pirates on Nov. 26. They will return home on Dec. 6 to play host to the Lena-Winslow Wildcats. That will be the season opener for Le-Win, who also has a first-year head coach this season.

Lady Blackhawks go 1-2 to start Forrester Turkey Tournament

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Stockton Blackhawks faced off with some fierce competition when they opened their 2024-2025 girls basketball season at this year's Forrester Turkey Tournament. Stockton couldn't have asked for a tougher opponent to start this new season. Stillman Valley finished with an impressive 30-5 record last year. That is more than double the amount of wins that the 14-17 Blackhawks finished with. Stillman Valley picked up right where they left off last year as they have gotten off to a 3-0 start at this year's Turkey Tournament.

One of those wins includes a 65-34 victory over Stockton in the season opener. The Blackhawks found themselves trailing by seven after the first quarter. Despite a pair of big three-pointers from Dylann Broshous, Stillman Valley had already jumped out to a 18-11 advantage.

The Blackhawks couldn't keep pace with Stillman Valley, who eventually ran away with a 65-34 victory. Stockton was led by Madalyn Mammoser who finished with 16 points. Broshous added 10 points in the loss. Stillman Valley's leading scorer finished with 34 points.

The Blackhawks bounced back in game two, when they took on the Eastland Cougars on Nov. 22. They came out to another quick start that featured a pair of three-pointers. Kaydra Wright and Katleyn Winters each hit a three in the first, helping the Blackhawks get out to a 12-11 advantage.

The Stockton defense stood out in the second quarter when they held Eastland to just five points. Meanwhile, Emma Eisfeller sunk the third three-pointer of the game for Stockton. They would go on to take a 24-16 lead into the halftime break.

Stockton came out slow in the second half. Two points in the third quarter allowed the Cougars to work their way right back into the game. By the end of the third quarter, Stockton held just a 26-25 lead over Eastland.

The Blackhawks found their stroke from three-point range in the fourth quarter. Wright, Winters, and Eisfeller each hit big three-point shots to help Stockton secure their first victory of the season 39-29. Mammoser led the Blackhawks with 11 points in the victory. Wright and Eisfeller each finished the day with eight points. Eastland's leading scorer finished with eight points in the loss.

The next day, Stockton found themselves in another situation where they watched a big lead dwindle away. On Nov. 23 the Blackhawks took on the Winnebago Indians. After the first quarter, it looked like the Blackhawks would run away with their second victory of the season. Stockton had jumped out to an early 14-6 advantage thanks to seven quick points from Mammoser.

Stockton's offense hit a drought after that. Just three points in the second quarter allowed the Indians to hang around. Although Winnebago put up six points of their own, Stockton would take just a 17-12 lead into the break.

Winnebago had a big second half that featured plenty of success from the free throw line. For the game, Winnebago made 13 of their 21 free throw attempts. While Stockton's offense continued to struggle to produce, Winnebago came all the way back for a 33-27 victory.

Stockton was led by Mammoser who put up 14 in the loss. They failed to produce much outside of that, however. Wright was Stockton's next leading scorer with six. They scored 20 of Stockton's 27 points.

Stockton's season really picks up on Dec. 6 when they play host to the Lena-Winslow Panthers for the home opener. Tipoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Le-Win Music Boosters' second Christmas Variety Showcase

The Le-Win Music Boosters' inaugural Christmas Variety Showcase was such a smashing success in 2023, those musical Panthers are returning to the Panther Den stage on Dec. 15 to serve up a fresh helping of holiday cheer. The student-led showcase directly funds their music trip, which has been a source of precious memories for generations of Le-Win band and choir students.

Last winter's event helped offset the cost of the students' 2024 Orlando trip by raising $4,500 with 100% of proceeds directly benefiting the Le-Win Music Boosters' trip fund. Now, the Boosters have their eyes on fundraising for the 2026 trip. "With travel and transportation costs at record highs, the music trip now represents a significant investment for families whose budgets are already stretched to the limit," said Bekah Randecker, Le-Win Music Booster President. "The Music Boosters want to make sure this trip is financially accessible for all our students, but making up that difference has become a bigger challenge in recent years."

Enter the Christmas Variety Showcase—an event where students raise funds for their trip by doing what they do best—sharing their musical gifts. "It's so fun because the kids are really in the driver's seat, and they share their talent in creative and memoorable ways," said Randecker.

Become a Sponsor

Randecker said last year, community members and business came through with sponsorships in a big way, and she hopes they do again. There are two levels: St. Nick Sponsor for $225 (which includes table of six and special mentions on the stage) and Elf Sponsor (any size donation, including cash, gift cards and prizes). All sponsors will be recognized on the table displays and on social media.

Attend the showcase

Taking place Sunday, Dec. 15, 2024, at 3 p.m., table seating will feature drinks and a decadent dessert tray.

The cost is for a table of 6 is $125, a single table seat is $25 and bleacher seating with a goodie bag is $5 per person. Table tickets and sponsorships will be sold through Dec. 5. Bleacher seating will be available at the door. For more details or to reserve your sponsorship or seat, call or text Bekah Randecker at 815-238-5807. For further updates and details, follow "Le-Win Music Boosters" on Facebook.

After a successful music trip fundraiser last December, Le-Win music students are returning to the Panther Den stage on Dec. 15, 2024, to serve up a fresh helping of holiday cheer! Contact Music Boosters President Bekah Randecker at 815-238-5807 by Dec. 5 to reserve sponsorships and table seating for the 2nd Christmas Variety Showcase. Bleacher seating available at the door.

Panthers punch their ticket to state

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT
The Lena-Winslow Panthers are headed to the Illinois High School Football State Championship for the fifth consecutive season. They will take on the undefeated Althoff Catholic Crusaders on Friday, Nov. 25, at 10 a.m. This year's state games are held at Hancock Stadium at Illinois State University in Normal, IL.

It's a long-awaited matchup between the top two teams in all of Illinois 1A football. Althoff didn't have an easy trip to state, but they made it look that way. The Crusaders beat last year's 1A champion, the Camp Point Central (CPC) Panthers, 58-19 last week. CPC had been to the state game two years in a row. Lena-Winslow has done their fair share of dominating in the postseason too. In round four, the Panthers beat an undefeated LeRoy squad 42-13. In all four postseason games combined, Le-Win outscored their opponents by one hundred thirty points. Althoff comes out of their side of the 1A bracket as the one seed. The Panthers came out of their side as the one seed, after dominating the gridiron against their one seed. Twenty-six combined wins and zero losses will be on the field when the Crusaders and Panthers face off Friday morning. Something has to give in the title game as only one team will go home undefeated.

Le-Win's physical front has led them this far, and the expectation should be the same in the title game. On offense or defense, the Panthers win by controlling the line of scrimmage. They put on a clinic in doing so against the LeRoy Panthers in round four.

Le-Win went with a heavy dose of Aiden Wild in this one. It didn't take long for him to get going. On just his third carry of the game, Wild took it 41 yards to paydirt. Wild also tallied the two-point conversion, giving the Panthers an 8-0 lead with over six minutes left in the first.

Their lead held until early in the second quarter, when LeRoy responded with a 46-yard passing touchdown. That made it a one-score game as LeRoy cut the score to 8-7.

Le-Win's offense went almost 17 minutes of game time without scoring. It was Alec Schlichting who finally put the Panthers back in the endzone when he broke free for a 74-yard rushing score.

The touchdown flipped the momentum back into Le-Win's hands heading into halftime. After going scoreless for so long and allowing LeRoy to complete a big passing touchdown, it could have been a very different game heading into the break. Instead, Schlichting gave his team a 16-7 advantage.

Le-Win couldn't have asked for a better start to the second half. Wild came out ready to go in the third quarter, where he quickly broke free for another touchdown run of over 40 yards.

That is where Ric Arand's Panthers really took control of the game. On LeRoy's ensuing drive, they threw for another score, only it was to Le-Win's Jaylen Rakowska, who returned his interception 57 yards for a pick-six. That gave Le-Win a 28-7 lead midway through the third quarter.

By the end of the game,

Le-Win made it look like it was never really a close game. They picked up a 42-13 victory over LeRoy, punching their ticket to the title game. After LeRoy made it a one-point game in the second quarter, Le-Win outscored them 34-6 in the remaining thirty minutes of play.

Wild racked up nearly two hundred rushing yards in the victory. With 22 carries, Wild ran for 193 yards and three scores. He also converted a pair of two-point conversions, had two tackles for loss, two sacks, and punted the ball three times for 99 yards. Truly, a jack of all trades for the Panthers.

Schlichting finished the day with one 133 yards and a touchdown of his own. The Panthers rushed for 382 yards as a team.

State Democrats brace for second Trump administration amid return to Springfield

Leaders ponder options ahead of Jan. 20 inauguration

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

During Donald Trump's first term as president, Gov. JB Pritzker and Democrats in the Illinois General Assembly spent much of their time enacting laws and policies in direct opposition to the conservative agenda they saw coming from the White House.

Those included the 2019 Reproductive Health Act that declared abortion access to be a "fundamental right" under state law, which lawmakers passed in anticipation that a conservative Supreme Court would eventually overturn Roe v. Wade.

It also included numerous head-to-head confrontations with the Trump administration during the COVID-19 pandemic, when Pritzker was ordering public health measures aimed at preventing the spread of the disease while openly criticizing Trump for refusing to do the same.

Now, as Trump prepares to take office again, Pritzker and Democratic leaders are bracing themselves for another round of conflict with the White House while planning for legislation and policies to blunt the potential impact of a second Trump administration.

"Over the years ahead, we'll do more than just protect against the possible reversion to an agenda that threatens to take us backward," Pritzker said at a Nov. 7 post-election news conference. "We will continue to advance a positive, productive and inclusive agenda of our own, one that brings opportunity to Illinois and helps uplift the nation as a whole."

Recently, Pritzker and Colorado Gov. Jared Polis, also a Democrat, announced the formation of Governors Safeguarding Democracy, a coalition they say will focus on protecting against "the dangers of authoritarianism and the undermining" of state-level institutions.

That announcement came as lawmakers were convening at the Statehouse for the start of their scheduled two-week fall veto session.

Speaking with reporters, Pritzker said he does not yet have a list of specific measures he wants lawmakers to consider immediately, but that some sort of action could come as early as January, before Trump is sworn into office.

"I haven't heard anything that has to be addressed right now during this veto session," he said. "Having said that there is time to be able to do that before the Jan. 20 inauguration."

Likewise, House Speaker Emanuel "Chris" Welch, D-Hillside, said Tuesday, the opening day of the veto session, that it was still too early to know exactly what Trump plans to do in his first few days or how the state should respond. But he said Trump's record during his first term in office, as well as statements he made during the campaign, offer clues about some of the issues that will be important in Illinois.

"We have to be prepared to continue to defend our values as Illinoisans and do the things that we know how to do to protect workers, protect women, protect LGBTQ-plus communities, immigrant communities," Welch said.

Welch also pointed to some of the early moves Trump has made since winning the election as signals about the issues Illinois lawmakers will confront. Those include promises to launch mass deportations of immigrants, suggestions from advisors about eliminating federal employee labor unions, and the naming of former Republican Rep. Lee Zeldin to head the Environmental Protection Agency.

"He appointed a former congressman to be head of the EPA who has a 14% record on good environmental legislation," Welch said. "We have to be concerned about immigration. This country was made and built on immigration. ... We have to be concerned with workers' rights."

Legislative Republicans,

meanwhile, argued that Trump won the election because voters were more concerned about bread-and-butter issues like inflation and the economy.

Citing a recent report showing the state facing a potential $3.2 billion budget deficit in the upcoming fiscal year, GOP leaders said Illinois would be better served if Democrats who control the General Assembly focused more on the state's own financial condition and less on drawing battle lines with the Trump administration.

"Voters throughout this country have sent a clear message in the last election that they want elected officials to focus on making life more affordable for American families," Senate Republican Leader John Curran, of Downers Grove, said during a news conference.

He said the task will be more challenging in Illinois due to the impending deficit.

"This budget deficit really is a product of Gov. Pritzker and his allies', year over year, gluttonous appetite for more spending," Curran said.

While Democrats have said they are prepared to tackle the deficit, they didn't give specifics. Sen. Elgie Sims, D-Chicago, who spearheads the budget process in the Senate, told Capitol News Illinois this week there haven't been any discussions of raising taxes.

Welch acknowledged that Trump will come into office in January with more of a mandate than he had after the 2016 election, when he won a majority of electoral votes but lost the popular vote to Democrat Hillary Clinton.

"The American people did speak, and if you believe in democracy, you have to accept the results of the election," he said. "But we didn't elect a dictator. We elected a president of the United States who has to follow the Constitution of the United States. ... That Constitution respects people's fundamental freedoms. That Constitution protects individual rights. That Constitution protects everyone across this country, not just some people, and we have to make sure that he doesn't go too far."

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

We have finally received our fall weather. The temperature is very November, and the leaves are almost off the trees. This week we celebrate Thanksgiving. Our recipes will feature some you could use for the big day, or you could use them to cook the many leftovers that are part of the holiday. Enjoy cooking this week.

Cranberry Salsa

This tart and spicy salsa is different than a lot of salsas. If you have an extra bag of cranberries, try this recipe for an unusual appetizer. It will keep in the refrigerator for several weeks.

- 1 (12 oz.) bag cranberries
 - 3/4 C. sugar
 - 1 bunch cilantro, chopped
 - 1 bunch green onions, cut into 3-inch lengths
 - 1 medium jalapeno pepper, seeded and minced
 - 2 medium limes, juiced
 - 1 pinch of salt
- Combine the cranberries, sugar, cilantro, green onions, pepper, and lime juice in a food processor; process to medium consistency. Add a dash of salt. Serve over softened cream cheese.

Cranberry Jell-O Salad

This Jell-O salad uses the jellied cranberry sauce instead of whole cranberries. The combination of the cranberries and pineapple makes for a great salad side. It also looks pretty in the serving dish.

- 2 C. boiling water
 - 2 pkg. (3 oz.) cherry flavored Jell-O
 - 1 can (16 oz.) jellied cranberry sauce
 - 1 (20 oz.) can crushed pineapple, drained
 - 1/2 C. chopped pecans
- Combine boiling water and Jell-O in a bowl until Jell-O is dissolved. Stir in cranberry sauce and crushed pineapple. Transfer to a large glass serving dish. Sprinkle with pecans on top. Chill overnight.

Broccoli Cranberry Salad

You can use up any of the broccoli leftover from your veggie tray for Thanksgiving with this different broccoli salad. It has oil and vinegar dressing rather than the traditional mayo dressing for broccoli salad. The sunflower kernels give it a little crunch with the traditional bacon.

- 8 C. fresh broccoli florets
 - 1 bunch green onions, thinly sliced
 - 1/2 C. dried cranberries
 - 3 T. canola oil
 - 3 T. rice vinegar
 - 2 T. sugar
 - 1/4 C. sunflower kernels
 - 3 bacon strips cooked and crumbled
- In a large bowl, combine the broccoli, onions and cranberries. In a small bowl, whisk oil, vinegar and sugar until blended; drizzle over broccoli mixture and toss to coat. Refrigerate at least one hour. Sprinkle with sunflower kernels and bacon before serving.

Cauliflower and Broccoli Casserole

If you have any leftover cauliflower or broccoli from the big dinner, or you want a good casserole, try this easy cheesy casserole.

- 4 T. butter
- 1 t. salt
- 5 C. cauliflower florets
- 5 C. broccoli florets
- 2 C. crushed Ritz crackers
- 1/2 t. paprika
- 6 slices bacon
- 2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
- 3 T. flour
- 1 t. ground mustard
- 1 t. lemon zest
- 1/4 t. pepper
- 2 1/2 C. milk
- 4 oz. cream cheese, softened
- 2 C. mild shredded cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 375. Butter a 9x13 baking dish. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Add the cauliflower and cook 2 minutes; add broccoli and cook until both vegetables are crisp tender, about 3 minutes. Drain and let cool. Melt 2 T. butter in a skillet. Combine the crackers and paprika in a small bowl; add the melted butter and set aside.

Cook the bacon in a large

Dutch oven until crisp. Remove to paper towels to drain. Pour out bacon fat and reserve in a separate bowl. Wipe the pot clean. Return 1 T. bacon fat to pot and add remaining 2 T. butter. Add the garlic and cook for 30 seconds. Whisk in flour, 1 t. salt, ground mustard, lemon zest, and pepper. Add the milk, stirring constantly until thickened about 3 minutes. Remove from heat; whisk in cream cheese and cheddar until melted and smooth. Crumble the bacon; add the broccoli, cauliflower, and bacon to the cheese mixture. Transfer to the prepared baking dish. Sprinkle with cracker crumbs. Bake until golden, 20 to 25 minutes.

Creamy Turkey Noodle Soup

If you have some leftover turkey, this turkey soup is an easy way to make a tasty dinner. The cream and the noodles make it extra tasty.

- 1/3 C. butter, cubed
- 1 medium carrot, shredded
- 1 celery rib, finely chopped
- 1/3 C. flour
- 1 carton (32 oz.) chicken broth
- 1/2 C. half-and-half cream
- 1/2 C. 2% milk
- 1 C. uncooked egg noodles
- 2 C. cubed cooked turkey
- 1/2 C. shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/4 t. salt
- 1/4 t. pepper

In a large saucepan, heat butter over medium-high heat; sauté carrot and celery until tender, 3 to 5 minutes.

Stir in flour until blended; gradually add broth, cream, and milk, whisking continually. Bring to a boil, continue stirring constantly and cook and stir until thickened., 1 to 2 minutes. Stir in noodles. Reduce heat; simmer, uncovered until noodles are al dente, stirring occasionally. Add turkey, cheese, salt and pepper; cook and stir until turkey is heated through and cheese is melted.

Turkey Stuffing Casserole

Another use for leftovers is this interesting casserole. It uses all of the traditional leftovers from your turkey dinner in one casserole dish. Serve it with a side of cranberries or cranberry salad, and you have everything used again.

- 4 C. leftover stuffing
- 4 C. chopped skinless turkey
- 1 1/2 C. coarsely chopped leftover green beans
- 1 1/2 C. leftover gravy
- 3 C. leftover mashed potatoes
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 C. shredded Monterey Jack cheese

Position a rack in the lower third of the oven and preheat to 425. Butter the bottom and sides of a 9x13 baking dish. Crumble the stuffing into the baking dish and pat to make an even crust on the bottom. Scatter the turkey and green beans over the stuffing layer. Pour the gravy over. Combine the potatoes and egg yolk in a separate bowl and mix until smooth. Spread the mashed potato mixture over the turkey layer. Sprinkle with the grated cheese. Cover with foil and bake until heated through, about 20 minutes. Uncover and bake until the top is golden brown and crusty, 20 to 25 more minutes. Remove from oven and let cool about 10 minutes before serving. Serve with a dollop of cranberry sauce on the side.

Pumpkin Torte

Try this dessert instead of pumpkin pie. It uses pumpkin pie filling instead of canned pumpkin. In case you bought a can of the wrong pumpkin, this recipe will help you use it!

- 1 2/3 C. graham cracker crumbs
- 1/3 C. sugar
- 1/2 C. butter, melted
- Cream Cheese Filling:
 - 2 pkg. (8 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
 - 3/4 C. sugar
 - 2 eggs
- Pumpkin Filling:
 - 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
 - 1/2 C. cold water
 - 1 can (30 oz.) pumpkin pie filling

1 can (15 1/2 oz.) evaporated milk

2 eggs, lightly beaten

Topping:

- 1 carton Cool Whip, thawed

Preheat the oven to 350. In a small bowl, combine the crumbs, sugar and butter. Press onto the bottom of an ungreased 9x13 baking dish; set aside. In a large bowl,

Gratitude for those who serve

During the month of November we remember, honor, and show our gratitude for both those who serve and those who have served our country. As we go about our daily lives, we generally give little thought to the varied ways members of the armed forces work to protect us. Today I would like to share with you how the Air Force International Health Specialist Program (IHS) utilizes global healthcare engagement as a way to strengthen partnerships with our allies, while gaining knowledge that leads to better healthcare protocols for both our military and civilian health care professionals.

The IHS utilizes Air

Force Enlisted Medical Specialists, including, but not limited to, medical and oral physicians, mental health, optometry, physical therapy, radiology, pharmacy, surgical and emergency care healthcare providers, medical administration, aeromedical evacuation, and medical logistics experts and laboratory sciences providers, to work with our allies to share knowledge with their health experts and improve the health infrastructure in our partner nations.

Global Health Engagement (GHE) programs create trusted partnerships with both our allies' military and civilian population. These critical relationships strengthen the ability of our military personnel to connect, communicate, and operate in conjunction with our allies in a coordinated, and therefore, more efficient manner. International security cooperation is critical in developing nuclear, chemical, and biological defense programs and providing effective humanitarian assistance and disaster relief. It also fosters open communication and coordinated efforts in the fight against global terrorist networks.

IHS activities not only promote military medical and dental readiness through achieving and maintaining oral and overall health, but they study, evaluate and impact how the military trains their members to stay safe for prolong periods of time in resource-limited environments. This includes training to both evaluate available resources and medical assets and how to utilize them to their greatest effect, setting up rural medical care clinics or field hospitals, patient care education, including triage(assessing patients to determine the urgency and nature of treatment required), injury care, disease outbreak response, mass casualty and aeromedical evacuation exercises and training in forensic dentistry to identify victims of mass casualty events.

As we celebrate Thanksgiving this week, I am thankful for all that the IHS program members do to protect the security and health of our nation.

State-funded electric vehicle chargers open in Joliet, thousands more to come

Growth of chargers lags rate of EV adoption; overall EV registrations slow in 2024

By Andrew Adams
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

With nearly half a million dollars of state funding, a new electric vehicle charging station opened in Joliet on Monday. It is the first of hundreds of charging stations set to be installed over the next 18 months as part of a state-funded grant program.

That growth in chargers is important as Illinois aims to rapidly transition toward having more electric vehicle drivers. There are about 120,000 EVs on Illinois roads, while the state's goal is to have 1 million on the road by 2030.

So far, over $25 million in state infrastructure funding has been awarded to gas stations, hotels, governments and other organizations to fund new EV charging. Another funding round of up to $44 million is in the process of being awarded now, with more grants expected in the future.

This round of funding would add about 2,000 new ports—the electric equivalent of gas pumps. That would represent a roughly 47 percent increase in the number of charging ports around the state, according to data from the U.S. Department of Energy. Gov. JB Pritzker said that there will be a charging station “along every highway, every 50 miles.”

The Joliet chargers, built by Veterans Energy Team in partnership with the Joliet Park District, are the first chargers to open after being funded by as part of the state's Rebuild Illinois capital funding and authorized by the 2021 Climate and Equitable Jobs Act.

“Reducing air pollution from transportation is vital to a healthy future for our children and our planet,” Pritzker said in a news release. “Today, you see the product of that vision in the first deployment of a CEJA-funded electric vehicle charging port, thanks to support from our federal partners and utility companies.”

Veterans Energy Team received a $480,000 grant to install 12 charging ports across two locations in the city, with four more added using other funding.

Proponents of the EV charging grant program say it is not only a way to meet clean energy policy goals but also a route to create more jobs and opportunities.

“Illinois is full of what? Great union workers, great private sector workers who can install these things,” CEJA chief sponsor Rep. Marcus Evans, D-Chicago, said at a news conference announcing the charging station. “We’re going to install these chargers all over, in every community, so that when you’re driving your electric car, you ain’t gotta get it towed.”

CEJA codified the state’s goal of transitioning away from fossil fuels entirely by 2050 and to boost the growth of the electric vehicle market, leading to a need to rapidly expand charging infrastructure.

“To achieve those goals, we know we will need to accelerate the build out of a widespread network of public chargers,” Gil Quinones, CEO of electric utility Commonwealth Edison, said at the Monday news conference.

ComEd provides electric service for most of northern Illinois, a region that is home to about 90 percent of EVs in the state.

The company also provided funds for the Joliet project through its rebate program for EV chargers. That program is part of the company’s “beneficial electrification plan”—a CEJA-mandated outline of how the utility will support the state’s clean energy goals.

While ComEd did not say how large the Joliet project’s rebate was, EV charging projects are eligible for up to $500,000 in rebates. Earlier this year, ComEd announced $90 million in available rebates related to electric vehicles through its beneficial electrification programs, according to ComEd spokesperson Lauren Huffman.

In addition to CEJA funding, there are other sources of grant money for charging stations that the state distributes, such as money from a legal settlement with Volkswagen over emission standards and federal grant programs.

a higher 26 cars-per-port ratio, mostly due to home charging being more popular in the country, according to a 2024 report from the International Energy Agency.

In Illinois, a Capitol News Illinois analysis of federal and state data found that there are about 31 EVs per charging port, including both light duty and larger vehicles like buses. That’s higher than 2017, when there were 15 vehicles per port. This means that more vehicles are competing for charging spots, even as more stations have opened.

The number of charging stations has grown slightly slower than the number of ports as stations increasingly offer multiple ports, but both lag overall EV adoption.

While the state hurriedly works to keep up the pace of charging port installations, another trend has emerged in Illinois: The number of new EV registrations has slowed, mirroring a broader slowdown of the EV market across the country.

The net increase in EV registrations over the past 12 months fell about 9.1 percent. While that may seem small, prior to this year, the state was just barely on track to meet its million EV goal by 2030. If the current year-over-year pace continues, the state would fall short by almost 200,000 vehicle registrations.
