DAVE SWIFT

Dave Swift, age 69, of Freeport, IL, formerly of Lena, IL, passed away at home surrounded by his family on Wednesday, Nov. 13, 2024. He was born on July 22, 1955, in Freeport, IL to Bill and Verla (Broege) Swift. Dave met the love of his life, Jan Folgate, at the Lena Q in 1972. From that point on, they were inseparable and were married on June 26, 1976, in Lena, IL at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

Dave graduated from Warren High School in 1973. His love for music started early. To his mother's dismay, he chose to play the drums at age 13. He played in the marching band throughout high school and was in many local rock bands including Zoid, Rage, Damian, Mason Brother's Band, Neighborhood, Flashback and Rockitt. With his best show opening for REO Speedwagon.

He started working at 13 years old, riding his bike to the Warren Drive Inn where he was a cook and found his love for a good cheeseburger. He was a salesman from day one and started his professional career working at the Warren Gamble store at the age of 15. He then worked at Warren Auto, Hoy Ford, Leamon's Furniture and McNett Chevrolet until he branched out on his own with wife, Jan, and partner Jeff Opie to open Lena Auto Mart in 1981.

Throughout the years, Dave was very active and held leadership roles in several organizations in the Lena and Freeport communities. This includes but is not limited to the Lena Business and Professional Association, Lena Lions Club, Freeport Chamber of Commerce, the Stephenson County Convention and Visitors Bureau, and many other boards. After over 25 years in the car business and with the love and support of his wife, Jan, they established Swift Hospitality Group. Through his leadership of Swift Hospitality, and in partnership with his team and investors, he cultivated the development and acquisition of 32 properties over twenty years. The property he had the most pride in, which was also his last, was when his vision for a local senior living community became a reality in WinnPraire Assisted Living and Memory Care.

Dave was also a sponsor and developer of the Highland Community College Hospitality Program. His legacy will live on in those he mentored and provided opportunities for both in business and his personal life. Dave was proud of his accomplishments, but he was the proudest of the family he and Jan built. In his free time, he enjoyed his Corvettes, music, cheering on his grandchildren in their many activities, traveling, a good meal with fine wine.

Dave is survived by his wife of 48 years Jan, of Freeport, daughter; Amy (Shane) Johnson of Lodi, WI, son; Brice (Danielle) Swift of Lena, IL, three grandchildren; Alexandria (Brandon) Taylor, Zoe (fiancée Andre Minnaert) Johnson, and Jaxson Swift all 3 of Lena, brother; Jon Swift of Warren, brothers-in-law; Bob (Marcy) Folgate of Freeport, and Jeff (Veronica) Folgate of Albuquerque, NM, his recently found family; Helen, Jay, Julyn, Jason, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Lawmakers return to Springfield as projected budget deficit looms

Key Senate Dem says no tax increases being discussed; GOP calls for seat at table

By Ben Szalinski
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Illinois lawmakers returned to Springfield last week for the first time since May following news earlier this month that they're facing a projected $3.2 billion budget deficit for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

The news didn't surprise Republicans, who condemned "drunken spending" policies, but the Senate's top Democratic budget leader defended the state's spending priorities and cautioned next year's budget is still more than six months away from passage.

"This was not unexpected and certainly there's a long time between now and the end of the fiscal year and we'll be prepared," Sen. Elgie Sims, D-Chicago, said.

The Governor's Office of Management and Budget released a report on Nov. 1 projecting the state will face a $3.2 billion deficit for fiscal year 2026, which begins July 1. The annual report from the governor's budget office typically sets a benchmark for state lawmakers as they begin budget talks early in the year.

How this shortfall will be addressed, either through corresponding spending cuts or new revenue increases, will be the focus of lawmakers and Gov. JB Pritzker during the spring session that begins in January.

The General Assembly was scheduled to be in town last week and this week for its annual fall veto session, and Senate Republicans held a news conference about the projected deficit a top priority.

Republicans said Democrats should start by cutting out programs for noncitizens and migrants.

"These are tradeoffs. So when Gov. Pritzker supports spending over $1 billion on illegal immigrants, that means that schools aren't being properly funded in Illinois, that means developmentally disabled aren't being properly funded in Illinois," Senate Republicans' budget leader Sen. Chapin Rose, R-Mahomet, told Capitol News Illinois. "That's a choice the Democrats are making."

Preliminary estimates show the state is on pace to spend $568 million this year on a program that provides health care to undocumented immigrants, according to the Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services. State lawmakers appropriated $629 million in the spring for the programs, which are currently paused to new enrollment, plus $182 million to pay for services for migrants sent to Illinois from Texas. Rose argued there's not enough transparency about the programs to know the true amount of state spending.

Senate Republican Leader John Curran, R-Downers Grove, also demanded Democrats spend more time negotiating with Republicans on the budget this spring, alleging that Democrats closed out the minority party earlier this year.

Sims noted recent budgets have also significantly increased education funding.

"If they want to classify investments in education and making investments in health care as overspending, I'll let them make that case," Sims said. "We've tried very hard to work with our colleagues on the other side of the aisle and we'll continue to do so."

Pritzker declined to give many details when asked last week how he plans to propose closing the deficit when he presents his budget in February.

"It's kind of a flat projection forecast. It's been wrong every year, I guess you might say, or we've defeated it every year," Pritzker said, adding the budget he will present to lawmakers is going to be balanced.

The Illinois Constitution requires the General Assembly to pass a budget that is balanced on paper, meaning lawmakers won't pass a budget that contains a sizeable deficit according to their calculations.

But Pritzker also received some of his first legislative pushback to a budget in May when multiple Democrats in the House and Senate voted against parts of the spending plan.

This year's $53.1 billion budget is currently expected to meet spending and revenue expectations and run a $16 million surplus when accounting for contributions to the state's "rainy day" fund, according to the report. Lawmakers chose to raise about $1 billion of new revenue to support this year's spending, such as by raising taxes on sportsbooks and video gambling and capping a sales tax discount for retailers.

One thing lawmakers can't do is implement across-the-board spending cuts, according to GOMB. The report said about 40 percent of state spending is required by courts, state law and other obligations. Another 24 percent is for education and higher education, including the $350 million increase to education funding that is called for as part of the state's evidence-based funding formula for K-12 schools each year.

"We're looking at everything," Sims said. "That's the beauty of the budget process. Each budget has its own identity and this budget's no different."

Sims said there have been no discussions about tax increases to close the revenue gap. Curran said Democrats should pledge not to hike any taxes to balance the budget.

"What we're not interested in is making life worse for working families," Rose said. "The clear message from this election, whether you're in Illinois or Montana, is real people are tapped out. They don't have more money to give."

State lawmakers face a variety of spending pressures this year outside of what is already in the state budget. Chicago officials have asked Springfield to step up funding for Chicago Public Schools, sports teams want money from the state to build new stadiums and the Chicago area's transit agencies are facing a $730 million budget gap next year that many hope the state can help fill.

Sims acknowledged the "infinite needs, but finite resources" of the state budget, but said Democrats will continue to prioritize investments in education, health care and other areas.

If Republicans get a better seat at the table, they would be looking for ways to reduce spending, Curran said.

"We are going to have to constrain spending," Curran said. "We're going to have to go line by line. Everything needs to be on the table for that and that's a process that needs to start early."

River Ridge FFA wins Section Agronomy Career Development Event

Fifteen high school and three Jr. High members from the River Ridge FFA Chapter traveled to Lena to compete in this year's Section One Agronomy Career Development Event (CDE) on Wednesday, Nov. 13. There were 12 different schools at this event with a total of 18 teams competing.

Throughout the contest, students were tested in a variety of ways. They were challenged through weed identification, crop seed identification, harvesting/planting/research equipment identification, a test on soil knowledge and judging sets of both corn and soybeans. This is a very competitive event where just a few points can make the difference between placing in the top 10 as an individual or not.

This year River Ridge was able to take home the win, Eastland was second and Pecatnica was third. The top 10 individuals were led by the Wildcats with Sr. Kaitie Cobine earning the most points followed by fellow senior and River Ridge Chapter President, Graci Vanderheyden, sophomore and River Ridge Chapter Historian, Nick Cobine, and freshman Wyatt Lehman. These four individuals, along with the alternate Sawyer Fry, will be headed to Champaign to compete in the State Contest on Dec. 14.

Jo Daviess FFA donates 15,000 meals

Four FFA Chapters from Jo Daviess County worked together to pack 15,000 meals on Nov. 7 in conjunction with Meals from the Heartland. FFA members from Galena, River Ridge, Stockton and Warren worked together to pack the non-perishable meals which will be donated to food centers, schools and refugee camps where they are needed the most.

Meals From the Heartland began in 2007 as a way to help those who are food insecure meet their basic human needs. They packaged and donated over 21 million meals in 2023.

Jo Daviess FFA was proud to be a part of their efforts this year. Students had a great time assembling the rice-based meals and doing their part to help out those in need.

Wildcats hopeful to build through growing pains

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The River Ridge-Scales Mound (RR-SM) Wildcats have a ton of shoes to fill in the 2024-2025 girls basketball season. After going 25-8 and capturing a regional championship last season, the Wildcats graduated six key seniors.

Addison Albrecht, Gwen Miller, Emily Wiederholt, Abigail Frank, Ava Travis, and Anniston Werner all graduated as seniors. Amongst the six of them were four starters and the first two off the bench. The Wildcats lost a ton of valuable experience and minutes on the floor. Despite that, RR-SM and their head coach, David Wiegel, have high hopes for the upcoming season.

The Wildcats do return one crucial piece from last year's team in senior Laiken Haas. A guard standing five-foot, nine-inches tall, Haas was a unanimous All-Conference selection in 2022 and a First Team All-Conference pick in 2023. She averaged nine points-per-game and over three steals-per-game as a junior. "Laiken is an exceptional athlete and a very skilled basketball player," Wiegel shared, before adding that Haas is "a very hard worker and leads by example, both physically and vocally." As the lone returning starter, Haas has major leadership expectations this year. "Laiken is a great teammate and will do a tremendous job of setting the course this season," Wiegel said of Haas.

The Wildcats do return a handful of players that got a solid amount of varsity experience last year. Wiegel is hopeful that a combination of the returning players and some newcomers can lead to sustained success for the program. "While this lack of experience may initially affect us, we hope to grow and develop as the season progresses and become a competitive basketball team," Wiegel shared.

The Wildcats will need their trio of juniors to take a step forward leadership wise. Wiegel is more than confident in the bunch. Kaci Patterson, Sarah Winter, and Berkeley Mensendike all begin the year with big expectations. Wiegel said, "Patterson will take on a large roll on this team both with her athleticism and defensive length and skilled offensive play." Winter will be expected to handle some of the dirty work down low. "Winter will be asked to man the middle and control the boards," Wiegel said. Wiegel added that Mensendike is also going to play "a big role with her offensive skill and defensive rebounding."

Federal judge strikes down Illinois assault weapons ban, setting up likely appeal

Southern District court says law violates 2nd Amendment; other cases still pending

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

A federal judge in East St. Louis on Nov. 8 struck down Illinois' assault weapons ban on the grounds that it violates the Second and 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution and issued an order barring the state from enforcing it.

That order, however, was stayed for 30 days, giving the state time to file an appeal before it takes effect.

In a 168-page opinion, Judge Stephen McGlynn sided with plaintiffs in the case who argued the assault-style weapons banned under the law are commonly used for legal purposes such as self-defense.

"What is particularly disturbing is that the prohibition of weapons that are commonly owned and used by citizens are now banned, depriving citizens of a principal means to defend themselves and their property in situations where a handgun or shotgun alone would not be the citizen's preferred arm," McGlynn wrote.

In March, before the case went to trial, McGlynn issued a preliminary injunction blocking enforcement of the law, saying the plaintiffs challenging the law were likely to prevail on the merits of the case.

But the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals reversed that decision, and in July the U.S. Supreme declined to review it—along with several other cases challenging the law—and remanded all the cases back to district courts for full proceedings.

The case before McGlynn was the subject of a week-long trial in September. Two other cases, each with multiple sets of plaintiffs, are pending before district court judges in the Northern District of Illinois in Chicago.

Meanwhile, a three-judge panel of the 7th Circuit was scheduled to hear oral arguments last week in a case challenging Cook County's local assault weapons ban.

Illinois Attorney General Kwame Raoul did not immediately comment on McGlynn's ruling. Gov. JB Pritzker issued a statement saying he expects the attorney general will file "an immediate appeal" and for the law to be "upheld through this process."

"The Protect Illinois Communities Act was the result of hundreds of hours of deliberation between legal experts, legislators, and advocates, and it makes Illinois a safer place for everyone," Pritzker said in a statement. "Despite those who value weapons of war more than public safety, this law was enacted to and has protected Illinoisans from the constant fear of being gunned down in places where they ought to feel secure."

Gun rights groups like the Firearms Policy Coalition, meanwhile, issued statements celebrating the ruling.

"We are gratified that the Court properly found that these bans violate the constitutionally protected rights of Illinois residents and visitors. As we clearly showed at trial, PICA fails even under the Seventh Circuit's misguided test that conflicts with binding Supreme Court precedent," said FPC President Brandon Combs, noting the group was "hopeful" the U.S. Supreme Court would strike down similar bans.

OP-ED: Bipartisan solution needed to protect kids online

By Taunya Madden

There are a lot of moms like me who had kids at a young age and then after an extended gap had more kids later in life. Raising my two older kids in the early 2000s had its fair share of difficulties, but there is no question raising my two younger kids in the current digital age presents some unprecedented challenges.

As much as I would like to be able to monitor everything my kids see and do online, the truth is I can't be there 24 hours a day; seven days per week. It is impossible. I trust my kids, but I don't share that same trust of the online community. We need Congress to act to help parents take on the challenges of the digital age, but whatever action is taken must be done in a responsible manner.

One bill still under consideration in Congress is the Kids Online Safety Act (KOSA). While the push to add new protections for kids online is a movement that many, including me, proudly stand behind, several debilitating flaws in the bill's construction were overlooked.

One central concern with KOSA is its "duty of care" provision. The duty of care calls on social platforms to regulate content considered "harmful to minors." Yet rather than provide further details to explain its vague criteria, it leaves the authority to the platforms themselves and the FTC, which can take legal action against companies that refuse to take down content they consider "harmful." As platforms seek to avoid these legal battles, they are likely to take any content that could be deemed harmful by KOSA's enforcers, which essentially puts regulators in charge of what kinds of content my kids see.

Moreover, the FTC is not the only regulator that stands to gain tremendous authority to restrict content online through KOSA. In its current state, the legislation also empowers state attorneys general to wield it in coordination with state law to take action against platforms hosting content from individuals and organizations with whom they disagree.

The last thing we need in the effort to protect kids is to have political bias interjected in the rules governing kids' ability to access online content. Access to the Internet is part of everyday life for kids. Kids need access to the Internet to do even basic things like getting their school assignments.

Too often, well-intentioned laws end up doing more harm than good because our leaders in Congress want to do something even if that something might not actually solve the problem.

I hope that Congresswoman Nikki Budzinski and her colleagues will take the time to get KOSA right. Doing something for the sake of doing something is not a real solution. We must protect kids online and prioritize their safety, but we must also ensure KOSA cannot be used as a political weapon.

Taunya Madden is an emergency room nurse at Memorial Hospital in Springfield.

Apples and a father's legacy

By SCOTT CERNEK
Columnist

This fall season has been about as delightful as any that I can ever remember. The harvest came out of the fields in record time. The gardens yielded an abundant of produce as well and our apples have also been especially prolific this year. We have tried to use them all and have done everything from making several apple desserts to freezing quarts and quarts of applesauce to making gallons and gallons of apple cider. Still these red rubies continue to fall to the ground faster than I can pick them. I even mistakenly made some apple butter because I forgot that I had a big pot on the stove cooking on low heat for most of the day. I was busy outside and when I came back in the house and saw what I had done, I thought that I had probably ruined a nice big pot of applesauce. Instead, it turned out that by cooking all the water out of the sauce, I actually made a quart or two of apple butter by mistake. Before this happened, I had no idea how to make apple butter, but it seems I learned by accident, and it tastes mighty good to boot.

The other night my lovely wife and I took my mom to see the movie called, The Best Christmas Pageant Ever. My wife and my mom were both quite familiar with the book written by Barbara Robinson and requested that we go see it. We had a great time. It's the story of a family with five very poor misbehaving kids who decide to come to church because they were told they could get some great snacks if they came to Sunday School. Well it worked and in the process they heard about the Christmas pageant practice and wanted to be a part. The story goes that they knew nothing of the Christmas Story when they came to the church, but soon became major players in what turns out to be the best Christmas pageant ever. We enjoyed this good clean movie very much, and we highly recommend it for lovers of wholesome entertainment. Heck, you could even take your kids to this one with no reservations whatsoever.

When my dad went home to be with the Lord almost two years ago, he asked our family to our best to meet one important mandate, that we work together to manage the farm that he left behind and do it such a way that God would be pleased with our efforts. So far, his eight children have managed to work together very nicely to continue my parent's legacy of living for the Lord and for the family to work in harmony together. Recently we have begun getting some property ready for the construction of a ministry and family center on the farm. When our families get together, there are now over one hundred of us and currently there just isn't a good place for us all to meet. It's taken us a while, but we finally agreed on what our new building will look like and how big to build it.

So, the other day when the bulldozer was leveling the construction spot my mom was watching from her back porch and she texted out a couple great verses of scripture to the family thread that she thought were fitting for my dad's dreams and for the project at hand. The verses are from Psalm 37:25-26 and they read like this, Once I was young, and now I am old. Yet I have never seen the godly abandoned or their children begging for bread. The godly always give generous loans to others, and their children are a blessing. These verses pretty much sum up the goodness of God to those who believe in Him and stand upon His word. Until next week, God bless.

A trio of sophomores are also expected to take a step forward this year. A couple of them made big plays in last year's Regional run in Campbell Hereau and Kenley Patterson. Wiegel noted, "They both made big plays for us down the stretch and we hope to see more of that this year." Additionally, the team will have Halle Wiegel, who brings "defensive toughness" and "great energy" to the squad, according to the Wildcats head coach.

Wiegel and the Wildcats are plenty aware of what they are facing in the first half of this season. "Our focus in the early parts of the season is very simple. We are paying attention to detail, working on the fundamentals of defense, passing, catching, shooting, and dribbling. Our goal is to continue to work hard in practice, learn from each practice game, and be the best team we can be," Wiegel explained.

The Wildcats get a couple of fun tests early in the season. They tipped the campaign off on Nov. 19 in a matchup against Pearl City. The excitement picks up at this year's annual Turkey Tournament at Dakota High School. There, the Wildcats will begin tournament play with a matchup against the tournament hosts in the Dakota Indians.

The Wildcats and Indians are set to tip off at 5 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 25. The Wildcats have a bye on Tuesday before returning to face the Pearl City Wolves on Wednesday, Nov. 27 at 3 p.m. On Saturday, Nov. 30 the Wildcats round out the tournament with two games against North Boone and Byron. They will tip off against North Boone at 10 a.m. The Byron game is scheduled to start at 1p.m.

Stockton claims second place at Illinois 1A Volleyball State Championship

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The 2024 season will forever be imbedded in Stockton Blackhawks' volleyball history. The Blackhawks run which included a co-conference title, the program's first ever Sectional title, first trip to the state championship, and a 1A second-place finish, making 2024 one for the books in Stockton.

After finishing the regular season with an overall record of 31-2, the Blackhawks began their magical postseason run. Victories over Dakota, Pecatonica, and Durand helped the Blackhawks capture a regional championship. An epic battle with Newark was followed by a dominant victory over the Galena Pirates, who beat Stockton in the regular season.

That propelled the Blackhawks into the Super Sectional round, where they traveled to Aurora Christian High School to take on Harvest Christian Academy. The Blackhawks brought one of their best performances of the year as they beat HCA 25-16 and 25-21 to punch their ticket to their first ever State Championship Tournament.

The Blackhawks were in uncharted territory when they got to Normal, IL to compete at the CEFCU Arena, formerly known as the Redbird Arena. After getting an opportunity to practice on the Redbirds' court on Thursday, the Blackhawks had to await their State Semifinals matchup with the Hartsburg Stags on Friday, Nov. 15.

The Stags entered as a serious threat to the Blackhawks. Of course, in the State Semifinals, every team left has earned the opportunity to be there. Hartsburg was consistent from start to finish of the 2024 campaign.

There were more than 60 combined wins on the floor when Stockton and Hartsburg faced off in the Semifinals. Stockton had 38 wins on their record, while Hartsburg came in with 31. The Stags also had a conference championship of their own in the 2024 season.

The nerves were evident when the Blackhawks began play against the Stags. Early on, it looked like the Stags would easily run away with things as the Blackhawks struggled to get things going. It was arguably the worst start Stockton had in all of 2024, as they dropped the opening set by a score of 25-12.

It would have been really easy for the Blackhawks to roll over and accept defeat. The Stags clearly looked like the superior team after more than doubling up Stockton in the opening set. That's not who the Blackhawks were in 2024, however, and they proved that with one of the most epic comebacks in state history.

Stockton responded resoundingly in the second set. Madalyn Mammoser refused to go down without a fight as she began to let it fly. She had 34mkill attempts and every one of them was needed in this comeback. Mammoser wound up leading the team with 17 successful kills on the day.

Taylor Haas continued to be a dynamic partner with Mammoser. Haas found some holes in the Hartsburg defense as the duo helped the Blackhawks find their confidence. The sophomore finished with ten kills in three sets played.

Stockton took the second set by a score of 25-20. Not only did they even the series 1-1, but they knew they had what it took to beat the Stags. If anything, they fully shifted the momentum into their hands.

By the third set, Stockton was working like a well-oiled machine. They eventually captured a trip to the championship game with a 25-21 victory.

Haas led the team in total blocks with two. Mammoser led the team in digs with 11, but Kacy Wright was right behind her with 10. Kacy also led the team with 19 assists, while Kaydra Wright added 15 assists of her own.

Stockton went on to fall to Calhoun in the State Championship game. It might not have been a first-place miracle, but the 2024 season will go down in the Stockton record books. Especially under Stockton head coach, Maddie Pontius's, second season. The Blackhawks will lose six incredible seniors in Mammoser, Katelyn Winters, Emily Broshous, Kyla Arnold, Kacy Wright, and Ava Hess. That class set the standard moving forward, and the program appears to be in good hands with Pontius leading the way.

A big thank you!

Pearl City says thank you to the Boulevard Bash Committee for all their support and for providing every staff member and student with a Pearl City Pride t-shirt.

Pearl City school news

The entire Pearl City school population, including students and staff, recently got together to say thank you to the Boulevard Bash Committee. The "Bash Committee" raises money for multiple community needs which includes the Pearl City School District. The money and resources the Bash Committee has poured into this district is incredible. They have contributed to new playground equipment, t-shirts, the needy children's fund, library books, a book vending machine, and much more. The value, work, and contributions the Bash Committee brings is immeasurable. The school district extends a big thank you to the committee. Choir Director, Mrs. Tammy Ehlers, puts together a musical event for parents and community members every year. This event includes elementary, junior high, and high school concerts, however, this year looked a different. Rather than hosting a traditional holiday concert, Mrs. Ehlers decided to have a fall concert where the students could dress up in their Halloween costumes for the show. The concert featured traditional Halloween songs complete with dance moves and hand motions. The concert was a huge success and enjoyed by both students and attendees. Thank you to Mrs. Ehler's for once again putting on one of the best shows Pearl City schools could ever ask for!

Broncos, Panthers prepped for 2024-2025 girls basketball season

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The NUIC doesn't get any less exciting as winter sports roll around. The NUIC North sports plenty of competition when girls basketball tips off, and the same will be true in the 2024-2025 season.

Orangeville and Lena-Winslow are both hoping to be near the top of the conference, but they both have some big shoes to fill. The Broncos graduated the program's all-time leading scorer in Whitney Sullivan, who was a four-year starter. The same can be said for Lena-Winslow, who graduated their all-time leading scorer in Grace Groezinger. Both players are impossible to replace, leaving significant holes in the respective rosters.

Orangeville appears prepared to at least somewhat handle the blow. Despite losing a superstar talent in Sullivan, who now plays at Tulsa University, the Broncos returned their four other starters. Laney Cahoon and Nadalee Doyle lead the way as the duo that helped produce so much offense in year's past. They also return Kaylynn O'Haver and Addy Wheeler, who will be expected to take another step forward this season.

Le-Win is in a similar position, but they have a lot of size to replace. Groezinger's talent can't be replaced, but her size will also be missed down low. The Panthers also graduated Molly Amendt, who provided another sizeable defender in the paint. They do return a trio of experienced guards, headlined by seniors Alyssa Daughenbaugh, Rachael Setterstrom, and Ava Vlasin.

Orangeville and their head coach, Jay Doyle, are hoping to continue their run atop the NUIC despite the loss of Sullivan. Even when Sullivan missed games in the past, Doyle and Cahoon proved to be a lethal duo. Jay acknowledged that the experience remains the team's strongest asset. "Our strength will be bringing back the core group of players who have played the last three years together, along with a large senior group that will have played multiple big games together. Hopefully that experience will lead to another solid year," Jay explained.

The Panthers are looking to rely on their guard play. Le-Win head coach, Dennis Huttenlocher, thinks the team can create some mismatches with their ball handlers. Huttenlocher mentioned Quickness, ball handling, and shooting when asked what the team strengths were this season.

Huttenlocher, in his seventh year as the girls' coach, knows the team is going to need more from their bench if they want to find success this year. When asked about areas of concern, Huttenlocher mentioned that the team will have to develop their bench players throughout the season. The Le-Win head coach also mentioned that low numbers are an issue.

Jay is hoping to see the Broncos continue to develop confidence and strength. The Orangeville head coach mentioned that the team looked impressive in the offseason. "We need to continue to improve on toughness and handling the basketball. We have shown that we can be a pretty good team this summer and we will see if that work can translate to this winter," Jay explained.

Both Jay and Huttenlocher agreed that the NUIC North is Pecatonica's early on, but the competition is stiff from top to bottom. Huttenlocher said, "Pecatonica and Orangeville look to be the top teams in the conference with the rest of the teams chasing them. It should be a pretty balanced conference." Jay shared a similar message, stating, "As a conference, it is Pecatonica's to lose, but hopefully we can compete in games as we do, and see where that leads us."

Le-Win tipped off the season on Nov. 18, but they will be at home on Dec. 3 to play host to the Dakota Indians. Then, on Dec. 5, the Broncos and Panthers face off in their first meeting of the 2024-2025 regular season. The game is set to tip off at 7 p.m.

Lena-Winslow football advances to round four

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Lena-Winslow Panthers are playing for an opportunity to play in the Illinois 1A State Football Championship game for the seventh consecutive season. After beating Gibson City-Melvin-Sibley (GCMS) in round three, the Panthers are set to travel to LeRoy to face off against a different set of Panthers. In fact, it's a guarantee that at least one Panther mascot will be in the Illinois 1A State Championship game. Of the last four 1A teams competing, three of them are named the Panthers. The LeRoy Panthers and Lena-Winslow Panthers face off on Saturday, Nov. 23, at 2 p.m.

At the same time, the Camp Point Central Panthers will take on the Althoff Crusaders for their own opportunity to reach the state title game. Overall, the Panther name has been in the Illinois 1A title game for six consecutive seasons, and 2024 will make it seven. Le-Win has been a part of five of those six seasons. In 2018, the year where Le-Win didn't reach the title game, CPC punched their ticket to the game, keeping the Panther run alive. The last four 1A champs go by the Panthers and there is a good chance that number hits five in 2024.

Being called the Panthers might be a sign of good fortune if you are a 1A Ilinois Football team. It is Lena-Winslow who sets the standard for all, however. Le-Win is on the verge of yet another undefeated season. Even in round three, when the Panthers took on a 10-win GCMS squad, they still ran away with a comfortable victory.

It was another dominant rushing attack that led the way to round four for Le-Win. Once again, Alec Schlichting's big play ability sparked a quick start for the Panthers. Less than four minutes into the first quarter, Schlichting was off and running for a 70-yard rushing touchdown. Kash Lessman completed the two-point conversion, putting Le-Win up 8-0 early in the game.

The Panthers would take a two-score advantage before the end of the first. Aiden Wild busted through the GCMS defense for a 48-yard rushing score. Schlichting capped the drive off with a two-point conversion, and the Panthers took a 16-0 lead.

That was just Wild's first 40-plus-yard rushing score of the day. In the second quarter, Wild broke free for another 40-yard rushing touchdown, which gave the Panthers a three-score advantage. Before the end of the half, Schlichting tallied his second score of the day. He took it 23 yards to put Le-Win up 32-0 with four minutes left in the first half. Le-Win was comfortably in position to coast to victory after that. GCMS scored a late fourth quarter touchdown, but the Panthers walked away with a 40-7 victory.

Wild and Schlichting were a force to be reckoned with in round three. The duo combined for over 300 yards and five scores on the ground. Wild led the team with 153 yards and three touchdowns on just 14 touches. Schlichting finished with 149 yards and two scores on 12 carries. The Panthers punted just one time in the win.

FROM LENA'S KITCHEN

The not so skinny cook

Last week we received some much needed rain; it helped get more leaves to the ground. However, there are a lot more left on the trees. Maybe by Thanksgiving it will be a little more seasonable. This week's recipes are all about Thanksgiving. There are some unusual ones for people who aren't feeding a crowd and some tried and true ones that are shortcuts for your dinner. Enjoy cooking this week.

Party Cheese Ball

This cheese ball uses some shelf cheeses along with some fresh cheese to make a great spreading cheese ball. You can get the Kraft pimento cheese spread at most grocery stores, and the American cheese spread is really Cheeze Whiz. It makes enough for two cheese balls.

- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 2 C. shredded sharp cheddar
- 1 jar Kraft pimento cheese spread
- 1 jar American cheese spread
- 3 T. finely chopped onion
- 1 T. lemon juice
- 1 t. Worcestershire sauce
- Dash garlic powder
- ½ C. minced fresh parsley
- ½ C. chopped pecans, toasted
- Crackers and vegetables

In a large bowl, mix the cream cheese, shredded cheddar, jars of cheese spread, onion, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce and garlic powder until blended. Cover and refrigerate until easily handled, about 45 minutes. Shape into 2 balls; roll in parsley and pecans. Cover and refrigerate. Remove from the refrigerator 15 minutes before serving.

Molded Cranberry-Orange Salad

I know it is retro, but I still like a Jell-O salad for holidays. This pretty molded salad can be made in a ring mold, but if you don't have one, you can make it in a Bundt pan. The cranberry-orange combination is a traditional one, and the addition of the apples gives it just a little crunch.

- 1 t. unflavored gelatin
- 1 T. plus 1 C. cold water, divided
- 1 C. boiling water
- 1 pkg (3 oz.) raspberry Jell-O
- 3 C. fresh or thawed frozen cranberries, divided
- 2 medium apples, cut into wedges
- 1 medium navel orange, peeled
- 1 C. sugar

½ C. chopped nuts
 ½ C. finely chopped celery
 Sprinkle unflavored gelatin over 1 T. cold water; let stand 1 minute. Add boiling water and raspberry Jell-O; stir until gelatin is dissolved, about 2 minutes. Stir in remaining cold water. Refrigerate until thickened, about 45 minutes. Pulse 2 1/3 C. cranberries, apples and orange in a food processor until chopped. Transfer to a bowl, stir in sugar. Stir fruit mixture into thickened gelatin. Fold in nuts, celery and remaining whole cranberries. Coat a 10-inch fluted tube pan or an 8 cup ring mold with cooking spray; pour Jell-O mixture in molds. Cover and refrigerate overnight or until firm. Unmold onto a platter. Garnish with whipped cream.

Brussels Sprouts Gratin

If you are tired of the usual green bean casserole, this Brussels sprouts casserole with cheese and crunchy bread-crumbs is a great side.

- 2 T. unsalted butter, cut into pieces
- 1 lb. Brussels sprouts, outer leaves and stems removed
- Pinch of red pepper flakes
- 1 t. salt
- ¼ t. black pepper
- 2 C. heavy cream
- ½ C. grated cheddar cheese
- ½ C. breadcrumbs

Preheat oven to 400. butter a 2-quart baking dish. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Add the Brussels sprouts and cook until tender, 8 to 10 minutes. Drain the Brussels sprouts and coarsely chop. Transfer to the prepared baking dish and toss with red pepper flakes, salt and pepper to taste. Spread out the sprouts evenly. Pour the cream on top. Sprinkle with the cheese and breadcrumbs and dot with butter pieces. Bake until golden brown, about 15 minutes.

Deluxe Mashed Potatoes

So many mashed potato recipes that you make ahead are for a crowd. This one is for a small group. You can make it two days ahead of time. If you are feeding only a few, it is a great potato side dish.

- 4 to 5 large potatoes (about 2½ lbs.)
- 3 oz. cream cheese, softened
- ½ C. sour cream
- 1 T. chopped chives
- ¾ t. onion salt
- ¼ t. pepper
- 1 T. butter
- Paprika

Peel and cube the potatoes; place in a saucepan and cover with water. Cook over medium heat until tender; drain. Mash until smooth (do not add milk or butter). Stir in cream cheese and sour cream. Add chives, onion, salt and pepper and stir. Spoon into a greased 1½ qt. baking dish. Dot with butter; sprinkle with paprika. Cover and bake at 350 for 35 to 40 minutes or until heated through.

Stovetop Turkey Stuffing

If you are adventurous and want to try something really different, try this stove top stuffing that has lots of interesting additions.

- 3 C. chicken stock
- 1 C. walnuts
- 1 loaf day old French or Italian bread, cut into ¼ inch cubes (about 2 cups)
- 2 C. chopped onion
- 2 C. chopped celery
- 6 T. unsalted butter
- 1 green apple, peeled, cored and chopped
- ¾ C. raisins
- 5 large green olives, chopped
- ¼ C. chopped fresh parsley
- 1 t. poultry seasoning or ground sage to taste
- Salt and pepper to taste.

Toast the walnuts in a small saucepan with enough water to cover them by an inch and bring to a boil. Boil them for 3 minutes. This will remove some of the tannins from the skins. Let the walnuts dry, then toast them by heating them in a frying pan on medium high heat for 3 minutes, stirring until they are slightly browned. Let the nuts cool.

Toast the bread: Dry the cubed bread in the oven first. Spread the bread on a baking sheet and dry it in a 200 oven for 10 minutes. You can also dry the cubed bread ahead of time and skip this step.

In a large Dutch oven, sauté chopped onions and celery on medium-high heat with 3 T. butter until cooked through, 5 to 8 minutes. Add the bread, chopped walnuts, chopped apple, raisins, olives and parsley to the pot. Add one cup of stock at a time until bread is moist. Add the parsley and poultry seasoning, salt and pepper. Cover and turn the heat to low. Cook for an hour or until the apples are cooked through, checking every 15 minutes, adding stock to keep dressing moist and keep it from sticking to the bottom of the Dutch oven.

Herb-Roasted Turkey Breast

Some people aren't cooking for a crowd, so they opt for a turkey breast. This recipe is for a moist turkey breast that uses a paste to help brown the skin and keep the meat moist.

- 1 turkey breast, 6 to 7 ½ lbs.
- 2 T. minced garlic (3 cloves)
- 2 t. dry mustard
- 1 T. chopped rosemary
- 1 T. chopped sage leaves
- 1 T. chopped thyme leaves
- 2 t. salt
- 1 t. pepper
- 2 T. olive oil
- 2 T. fresh lemon juice
- 1 C. dry white wine or chicken stock

Preheat the oven to 325. Place the turkey breast skin side up on a rack in a roasting pan sprayed with cooking spray. In a small bowl, combine the garlic, mustard, herbs, salt, pepper, olive oil, and lemon juice to make a paste. Loosen the skin from the meat with your fingers and smear half of the paste directly on the meat. Spread the remaining paste evenly on the skin. Pour the liquid into the bottom of the roasting pan. Roast the turkey for 1¼ to 2 hours until the skin is golden brown and a meat thermometer registers 165 when inserted in the thickest part of the breast. If the skin is browning too much, cover the breast loosely with foil. When the turkey is done, cover the turkey loosely with foil and allow it to rest at room temperature for 15 minutes. Slice and serve. Use pan juices to pour over turkey or to make gravy.

Best Pumpkin Cookies

The pumpkin cookie recipes I have had in the past have all had cream cheese frosting. This brown sugar pumpkin recipe uses a cooked glaze on the top.

- 1 C. butter, softened
- ½ C. sugar
- ½ C. packed brown sugar
- 1 C. canned pumpkin
- 1 egg
- 1 t. vanilla
- 2 C. flour
- 1 t. baking soda
- 1 t. baking powder
- 1 t. cinnamon
- 1 t. ground nutmeg
- ¼ t. salt
- ¼ t. salt
- Glaze
- 6 T. butter
- ½ C. firmly packed brown sugar
- ¼ C. milk
- 2 C. powdered sugar

Preheat the oven to 350. In a large mixing bowl, cream butter and sugars together until light and fluffy. Blend in pumpkin, egg and vanilla. In a separate bowl, stir together flour, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg, and salt. Mix flour mixture into butter-sugar mixture until combined. Drop by Tablespoons 3 inches apart on ungreased baking sheets. Bake the cookies for 10 to 12 minutes until golden around the edges. Remove warm cookies and transfer to racks. Let cool completely for at least one-half hour then frost with glaze.

Glaze: In a medium saucepan, heat butter and brown sugar over medium heat until bubbly. Cook, stirring constantly, for one minute or until slightly thickened. Beat in the milk. Blend in the powdered sugar until the glaze is smooth and spreadable. Using a silicone basting brush or butter knife, spread the glaze on the cookies. Glaze will harden quickly so keep the saucepan over the stove on the lowest possible setting to prevent it from hardening.

Final Thoughts

Congratulations to the Stockton volleyball team who is playing in the Final Four. We have pretty good volleyball in our area because we have had good representation from Northwest Illinois. We also still have three teams playing football. I wrote this column before I know what happens; here is hoping we still have three left next week too. Basketball and wrestling have started, so I guess winter is knocking on our door.

Reminder that we have Small Business Saturday on Nov. 30. We have some new stores in Lena that you will want to check out. Have a great week and get ready for Turkey Day!

It is time to think about Christmas cookies and candies, so send some favorites our way. We also will be looking for some holiday recipes as well as some soup recipes. If you find some recipes to share, you can contact us by email at scoopshopper@rvpublishing.com or by mail at From Lena's Kitchens, The Shopper's Guide at Rock Valley Publishing, 1102 Ann St., Delavan, WI 53115. Have a great week.

The stress of an illness, injury or tight farm finances is daunting, but there are resources to help.

Who to call in a farm crisis?

Plenty of resources available

By Phyllis Coulter
FARMWEEK

The stress of an illness, injury or tight farm finances is daunting, but there are resources to help.

The resources for farmers in crisis webinar offered by the University of Illinois Agricultural Safety and Health Program and farmdoc on Oct. 15 highlighted a few such services.

Farm rescue

Based on the principle of farmers helping farmers, Bill Gross, a UPS pilot who grew up in rural North Dakota, created Farm Rescue, a nonprofit organization.

Today, 600 volunteers in 49 states come to help farmers with equipment or labor in nine Corn Belt states, including Illinois, when a crisis arises, said Terry Johnston, farm rescue development officer.

The injury, illness or death of a farmer, a sick child, a family member getting cancer treatment or a natural disaster are reasons to call for help, he said.

To nominate someone, to get help or to inquire about volunteering, visit the website farmrescue.org.

AgrAbility

AgrAbility helps enhance the quality of life for farmers and ranchers with injuries or disabilities, said Haley Jones, Illinois AgrAbility program coordinator with the Illinois Extension. The program helps farmers safely do their work and reduces barriers to continuing with their livelihood.

Farmers or seasonal workers suffering from circumstances as varied as arthritis, a spinal cord injury, a chronic condition, hearing loss, respiratory impairment or an amputation, can qualify for free services.

On request, AgrAbility staff conducts a free on-the-farm assessment and recommends equipment or assistive devices or provides education to help.

The National AgrAbility Toolbox, a public website, has information on 1,000 tools and devices at agrability.org/toolbox.

Helplines and hotlines

Josie Rudolphi, a University of Illinois occupational and environmental health professor, said resources are available to farmers in a crisis by email, texting or telephone.

The suicide and crisis lifeline at 988 is a hotline. "It is a huge relief that it is a three-digit number now," she said of the easier-to-remember number. People can text, call or chat 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Concern Line, a helpline started by Iowa University Extension during a farm crisis, offers legal, financial and disaster resources at 800-447-1985.

The Farm Aid Farmer Hotline has specific hours of 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. The caller is assigned a specific case worker to help them over time. The contact number is 800-327-6243.

The Illinois Mental Health Voucher Program for Ag Producers allows ag producers and their families to get free help from a certified mental health professional through the Illinois Extension program. Email Kacie Hulshof for information at khulshof@illinois.edu.

This story was distributed through a cooperative project between Illinois Farm Bureau and the Illinois Press Association. For more food and farming news, visit FarmWeekNow.com.

GCMS was held to just 55 yards on the ground. They threw for over 130 yards, completing seven of their 19 attempts. They were forced to punt the ball five times. Wild and Landon Grindey led the team with six total tackles each.

Le-Win now faces the one seed in their side of the bracket. LeRoy sports an undefeated 12-0 record of their own. They have also played two common opponents with Le-Win. LeRoy beat GCMS by a score of 34-14 in the regular season. In the postseason, they beat Galena 37-21. Le-Win beat GCMS 40-7 in the playoffs, and Galena 22-10 in the postseason.

A long-awaited matchup will take place when LeRoy plays host to Le-Win this weekend. With two undefeated teams and an opportunity to reach the title game, only one Panther squad moves on.
