Illinoisans may be able to file federal taxes for free; state announces Apple ID licenses

Pritzker announces state's participation in federal Direct File program

CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Many Illinois residents will be able to use the IRS Direct File service to electronically prepare and file their 2024 federal tax returns for free.

Almost 2 million eligible Illinois taxpayers will be able to use Direct File starting Jan. 27. Gov. J.B. Pritzker said this service will "put money typically spent on tax preparation services back into the pockets of hardworking families across Illinois."

After users file their federal taxes, Direct File will connect user to MyTax Illinois, Illinois' free state income tax filing system where they can file their Illinois state returns. The program is accessible on mobile phones, laptops, tablets or desktop computers and users will have access to help through a chatbot in both English and Spanish.

"We understand that a significant amount of time and money is spent every year to ensure personal income tax returns are filed accurately and on time," said Illinois Department of Revenue Director David Harris. "This integration will help relieve stress and financial burden for taxpayers."

The IRS created Direct File as a result of the Inflation Reduction Act, which was signed in 2022 by President Joe Biden. It began as a test program in 2024 and will become permanent in 25 states this year. The IRS estimates that over 30 million taxpayers will be eligible for Direct File in 2025.

To check eligibility and to use the service, visit <https://www.irs.gov/filing/irs-direct-file-for-free>. Individuals may not qualify if they:

- Have unreported cash income, such as tips or alimony.
- Have income from sources such as gig work that's reported on other tax forms.
- Have added or used money from a Medical Savings Account.
- Have taken distributions from employer-sponsored retirement plans, like a 401(k), pension, annuity, 403(b), or governmental 457(b).
- Have made contributions to or taken distributions from an IRA.
- Exceed $200,000 in wages (or $168,600 if they had more than one employer).

• File as Married Filing Jointly, and their spouse's wages exceed $200,000 (or $168,600 if the spouse had more than one employer).

• File as Married Filing Jointly, and have combined wages exceeding $250,000.

• File as Married Filing Separately, and wages exceed $125,000.

• Claim additional tax credits for college tuition or other higher education expenses, energy efficient home updates or adoption expenses.

• Take itemized deductions.

Mobile driver's licenses and state ID's

Illinois Secretary of State Alexi Giannoulias says he hopes to bring mobile driver's licenses and state IDs to iPhones by the end of the year.

Giannoulias has announced that his office has officially started working with Apple to allow users to access their driver's licenses and state IDs digitally on their iPhone or Apple Watch. He said in a news release he expects to expand these features to the future for additional digital wallets, such as Google Wallet for Android users.

Lawmakers passed House Bill 4592 last spring, allowing the secretary of state to issue mobile IDs and driver's licenses. When it rolls out, Illinois will be the 11th state to adopt mobile IDs.

But a mobile driver's license and ID would not replace physical cards.

The cards would be issued "in addition to, and not instead of" a physical ID, under the law. The law allows agencies and private entities to choose if they want to accept electronic IDs in place of physical ones, but "upon request by law enforcement, a credential holder must provide the credential holder's physical credential."

The secretary of state's office has a sign-up page for Illinois residents to receive updates about the program, including when mobile IDs become available for iPhone users.

The move toward digital IDs is part of Giannoulias' "commitment to modernizing the office," according to his office.

Nursing home protections

State lawmakers have approved a bill aimed at protecting nursing home residents from retaliation if they report violations at the facility.

House Bill 2474 aims to prohibit nursing home staff from taking "retaliatory actions" against residents who engage in protected activities, such as speaking out about rule or law violations in their facilities.

The bill specifically protects residents who: talk to a supervisor of the facility, the public, or to an outside authority about a rule or law being broken by the facility staff; give information or testimony during an investigation of a facility; or seek help to leave the facility. It gives residents a private right to sue if they believe the facility broke the law.

The bill would also require nursing home facilities to file any resident complaints that they've been improperly retaliated against with the Illinois Department of Public Health and to give a brief description of any complaints filed to the resident's next of kin once a year.

The measure passed 48-2 in the Senate and 89-16 in the House.

OPINION

In my opinion

Pharmacy benefit managers create crisis in patient care that demands immediate action

By Garth Reynolds

The pharmacy profession is under siege. Community pharmacies (independent and chain) are closing at an alarming rate, leaving countless communities without access to essential medications and care.

The culprits behind this crisis are pharmacy benefit managers (PBMs), whose opaque and predatory practices are decimating the very foundation of our health care system.

A recent Health Affairs study revealed that nearly 30 percent of U.S. pharmacies have closed since 2010, with closures disproportionately affecting rural, urban, and underserved communities. Illinois has seen this crisis firsthand (more than 80 pharmacy closures just in 2024), with closures leaving countless residents in "pharmacy deserts," where access to medications, vaccinations, and chronic disease management is severely limited; particularly in minority neighborhoods, exacerbating health care disparities and leaving vulnerable populations stranded without necessary pharmaceutical services.

The situation is dire. The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has intensified its investigation into PBM practices, acknowledging their anti-competitive behaviors that harm consumers and drive pharmacies out of business. The Illinois Auditor General's report provides a damning critique of PBM management of Medicaid dollars ($200 million in just 2 years), revealing waste, inefficiency, and inflated costs to taxpayers.

Garth Reynolds

Attorney General Kwame Raoul has taken decisive action, filing lawsuits against PBMs for deceptive practices and antitrust violations (more than $100 million in settlements). These steps, while commendable, are insufficient to stem the tide of pharmacy closures and the resulting health care crisis.

Medicaid programs are particularly susceptible to PBM exploitation. Through a lack of transparency, PBMs siphon funds intended to support patients and providers, forcing pharmacies to operate at a loss for Medicaid prescriptions.

This financial strain leads to closures, leaving patients in underserved areas with fewer care options. Commercial insurance is not immune; PBMs leverage their market dominance to eliminate competition, prioritize their own services, and restrict patient choice.

Slices of life

Favorite time of the day

I woke up much too early this morning and I had trouble getting back to sleep, which could be troublesome to some.

But my covers were cozy. My pillow felt cool and comfortable under my head. There was a kitty nestled in close to me. I nuzzled in, knowing I'd go back to sleep at some point and thought:

"This might be my favorite time of day - waking up and knowing I can still take another few moments to cuddle and fall back asleep."

After a couple hours of extra and wonderful sleep (which some might call an early morning nap), I woke again and it was still early. I thought about the things I wanted to accomplish during the upcoming day and was grateful for that purpose to my life and thought:

"This might be my favorite time of day - thinking about all the things I want to accomplish today."

I prepped the morning coffee and did a little clean-up effort to the kitchen as I waited for it to brew. Coffee scent filled the air and I thought:

"This might be my favorite time of day—waiting for the morning coffee, and smelling it as it brews."

I sat down to check morning emails and watch a bit of the news and thought:

"This quiet morning time might be my favorite time of the day. Time to check in with reality and contemplate the day at hand. Well, that and do the Wordle. Let's not forget the Wordle."

Next on the docket was a walk with a friend. This activity checked multiple boxes: exercise, conversation and solving all the problems of the world - all within the scope of about an hour.

As I chatted with my friend (let's call her, 'Nancy') I thought to myself, "This might must be my favorite time of the day, walking with a good friend."

Next came lunch. Okay, there are no surprises here, are there. I'm pretty sure lunch qualifies as just about everyone's favorite time of the day.

Well, except for nap time, which I wasn't able to fit into the day in question, but naps are wonderful and certainly contribute to a best time of day vibe. Any day that I get a nap is probably a pretty relaxed day and that makes it a good day.

By JILL PERTLER
Columnist

After non-nap time my daughter (or son) called—take your pick. I'm always grateful to hear their voice. When they ask me for advice that's only a bonus. When I get to talk to grand babies, it's a double bonus.

Today was a double (and FaceTime) bonus and as I smiled seeing their faces and hearing their voices, I realized, "This is probably my one of my favorite times of day."

After dinner (I'm skipping that because it's right up there with lunch for the favorite time of day) I met a friend for a glass of wine. As we sat, chatting and sharing deep, philosophical thoughts (wine will do that to you) I thought to myself, "This is probably my favorite time of day, because..." (Well, you know the drill.)

The sun set, the moon rose and stars filled the night sky. I arrived home and looked upward, and felt at peace with the world. I inhaled deeply and thought, "This is definitely my favorite time of day."

Night had descended. The day was done. It was late and time for bed. I laid my head on the cool and comfy pillow. My kitty found her spot beside me and quickly commenced purring. As I drifted off to sleep I was filled with happy memories of days gone by and thought, "This just might be my most favorite time of day."

And it was. They all were. They all are. And tomorrow they probably will be as well.

I hope the same, for you.

Blackhawks defeat Warren and East Dubuque home matchups

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Stockton Blackhawks won their fifteenth win of the 2024-2025 girls basketball season when they picked up victories over Warren and East Dubuque last week. Stockton came into the week with an overall record of 13-5. They were riding a four-game winning streak, including an intense 55-53 victory over Black Hawk. Outside of that nail-biter, Stockton was dominating the competition. In the first three games of their most recent winning streak, the Blackhawks outscored their opponents 135-46.

Their Jan. 10 battle against Black Hawk would prepare them for the next week of games. Stockton played host to a few tough opponents in the Warren Warriors, the East Dubuque Warriors, and the Pecatonica Indians last week.

Stockton made quick work of Warren on Jan. 14. The Blackhawks came out firing as they put up 23 points in the very first quarter. Warren got off to a slow start with just five points on their end.

The Warriors would close the gap in the second quarter. Warren, led by Mayci Mullen and Lizzy Hartzell, would cut Stockton's lead down to just ten points at the half. After holding an 18-point advantage at the end of the first, Stockton went into halftime leading 30-20.

Warren continued to hold the momentum in the second half. They set things up for an exciting finish when they outscored Stockton 11-5 in the third quarter. In a game that appeared to be out of reach, the Warriors found themselves trailing just 36-31 heading into the final quarter.

The fourth quarter is where good teams set themselves apart from the rest, and that is just what Stockton did. After watching their lead dwindle away, the Blackhawks stepped up when they had to. They outscored Warren 18-7 in the fourth, clinching a 52-39 victory.

Madie Mammoser led all scorers with 20 points. Dylann Broshous was next up for Stockton with 15. Emma Eisfeller added 11 as the Blackhawks had three players finish in double figures. Mullen led Warren with 15 points, while Hartzell added 10 in the loss.

Just two days later, the Blackhawks found themselves in another tough spot as they played host to East Dubuque in a playoff-like matchup. East Dubuque came to Stockton with an overall record of 11-6. They were fresh off heartbreaking 61-60 overtime loss to the River Ridge-Scales Mound Wildcats. They took Stockton down to the wire.

The first half didn't feature much offense. It was a defensive battle, but Stockton took a slim 14-11 lead into the halftime break. After the slow start, both offenses came out firing in the second half. It was East Dubuque who had the hot hand, however. The Warriors outscored Stockton 19-10 in a third quarter that saw the momentum shift.

Entering the final quarter, Stockton was trailing by a score of 30-24. Once again, they had another opportunity to make a fourth quarter statement. They did just that, by outscoring the Warriors 17-7 in an electrifying final quarter.

Mammoser is as consistent as they come, and she was key in the comeback victory as she led Stockton with 19 points. Ireland Mensendike and Kaydra Wright each finished with seven as Stockton came back to win by a score of 41-37.

Stockton closed the week by playing host to one of the top 1A teams in all of Illinois in the Pecatonica Indians. Stockton quickly fell behind as they eventually lost to Pecatonica 48-23. Mammoser had seven points in the loss. Stockton's record dropped to 15-6 on the year.

Stockton is set to return home on Friday, Jan. 24 to play host to River Ridge-Scales Mound. That game is set to tip off at 7:30 p.m.

Illinois stands at a pivotal moment. We must act decisively to halt this crisis:

Enforce transparency: Mandate full disclosure of PBM contracts, including pricing and rebate practices, to ensure accountability for taxpayer dollars and premiums.

Implement fair reimbursement: Ensure pharmacy reimbursement reflects the actual cost of medications, preventing PBM manipulation.

Expand state oversight: Empower the attorney general and the Departments of Healthcare and Family Services & Insurance to broaden investigations into PBM practices, and authorize the auditor general to audit PBM contracts for commercial plans (e.g. State Employees Plans).

Support federal action: Advocate for federal reforms to restrict PBM abuses nationwide, ensuring consistent standards across state lines.

Protect independent pharmacies: Provide immediate financial relief and long-term policy support to preserve their vital role in communities.

The collapse of community pharmacies is a health care emergency. Patients rely on their pharmacists for more than medications; they depend on us for guidance, education, and access to the health care system. Every pharmacy closure represents a loss for patients and communities.

As executive director of the Illinois Pharmacists Association, I urge state and federal leaders to address this crisis with the urgency it demands. PBMs must be held accountable, and pharmacies must be empowered to provide the care their patients need.

Our profession has stood strong through countless challenges, but the PBM crisis threatens to erode the foundation of pharmacist delivered patient-centered care. It is time to ensure that pharmacies are no longer treated as expendable casualties in a broken system but rather as vital partners in delivering healthcare to all.

Let's act now—before another pharmacy closure reminds us of what we have lost.

Wildcats defeat River Queens at Manny's Shootout

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The River Ridge-Scales Mound (RR-SM) Wildcats picked up their eighteenth victory of the 2024-2025 girls basketball season when they competed at this year's Manny's Shootout. There, the Wildcats took on the River Queens out of Clinton, Iowa. The River Queens had just four wins when they took on the Wildcats on Jan. 18.

RR-SM made sure the River Queens were going to leave Manny's Shootout with just four wins as well. The Wildcats got off to a very quick start, thanks to some early success from three-point land. Kenley Patterson hit a pair of first quarter threes to help get things going.

RR-SM also attacked the Clinton defense early and often. So much so, that the Wildcats took four separate trips to the free throw line in the first quarter alone. They made sure to take advantage of the opportunities, as they hit seven of their eight free throws in the quarter. Laiken Haas, Berkeley Mensendike, and Sarah Winter each went two-for-two at the line in the first. Halle Wiegel went one-for-two in her trip to the line.

Thanks to the plethora of free throws, the Wildcats started the second quarter with a 17-5 lead. Just when it looked like they were going to run away with another big victory, the offense hit a wall.

Patterson sunk her third three of the night, but RR-SM combined for just seven points in the second quarter. A pair of Haas baskets provided the other four points.

That allowed Clinton to cut into the RR-SM lead as the Wildcats went into the break up 24-14.

Things only got worse for the RR-SM offense in the second half. In the third quarter, the Wildcats had one of their worst offensive quarters of the season. They combined for just two points, which came from a Mensendike basket. Once again, Clinton managed to cut into the lead. At the end of the first quarter, the Wildcats held a massive 17-5 advantage.

After three quarters of play, that advantage had dwindled all the way down to a 26-23 lead for the Wildcats.

That early lead proved crucial in the final outcome. Despite scoring just nine combined points in the second and third quarters, the Wildcats still held onto a slim lead as they went into the fourth quarter.

Fortunately for RR-SM, their offense came back to life in the fourth. Winter hit a pair of baskets to help maintain their lead. Wiegel hit a big three-pointer. Haas converted an and-one opportunity as the Wildcats picked up a 36-34 victory over the River Queens.

Haas led RR-SM in scoring with 11 points. Patterson was next up with nine, all of which came from three-point territory. Mensendike and Winter each finished the game with six points. Winter led the way in rebounds with eight. Haas also had five steals in the victory. With the win, the Wildcats improved to 18-3 on the season. They will be back in action on Jan. 24 when they travel to take on the Stockton Blackhawks.

Lena-Winslow, Pearl City pick up victories over Orangeville

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Orangeville Broncos have battled their way through the 2024-2025 boys basketball season. They didn't pick up their first victory until Dec. 18, when they beat Ashton-Franklin Center 58-47. That improved their record to just 1-8 on the year.

Since then, Orangeville has suffered another seven-game losing streak. That includes a pair of losses against the Lena-Winslow Panthers and the Pearl City Wolves last week.

Lena-Winslow has continued their disciplined ways despite playing under new head coach, Mark Blakely. They came to Orangeville with an overall record of 11-4. Three of those losses came against Dakota, Galena, and Pecatonica; three of the top teams in Northwest Illinois.

Orangeville stood little chance when they played host to the Panthers on Jan. 15. Le-Win had already jumped out to a 22-point advantage before the halftime break. Things didn't get any better after that as Orangeville was held scoreless in the third quarter.

In the end, the Panthers won by a score of 59-25. Nine different Panthers tallied points on the evening. Miles Mahon led the way with 12 points, while Jaylen Rakowska finished with nine. Luke Madigan and Brady White each finished with seven. Aiden Wild, Michael Mowery, and Cohen Weegens all had six points in the victory.

Hayden Schofield led the Broncos with 10 points, but he was their only player to finish in double figures. Orangeville's next leading scorer was Joe Isenberger with six. Drew Kloeping added three in the loss.

Things didn't get much easier when the Broncos played host to a 10-win Pearl City team just two days later. One of Pearl City's 10 wins came against the Broncos back in mid-December. The Wolves won that game by a score of 66-28.

Their second meeting played out in similar fashion. Pearl City took a commanding advantage as they jumped out to a 13-3 lead to start the game. Pearl City would only expand their lead in the second quarter. The Wolves combined for 17 points, while Orangeville put up just eight. By the halftime break, Pearl City was already up by a score of 30-11.

Lane Kempel was consistent for the Wolves. He wound up leading the team in scoring with 16 points, including a pair of three-pointers. Tyler Clark added eight points for the Pearl City offense.

Orangeville's Jaxon Grilliot led the Broncos with 11 points, nine of which came from three-point territory. Their next leading scorer was Kloeping with six. Orangeville fell by a final score of 57-23. The loss dropped the Broncos' overall record to 1-15 on the season. They face the toughest test of their season when they play host to the Pecatonica Indians on Thursday, Jan. 23. Pecatonica got off to a 16-0 start to their season.

That same evening, Le-Win faces a tough test of their own. The Panthers will play host to a 12-win Forreton Cardinals squad. Pearl City also has a tough Jan. 23 game as they travel to take on an eight-win River Ridge squad.

Pearl City defeats Lena-Winslow in NUIC girls basketball matchup

By Trenten Scheidegger
CORRESPONDENT

The Pearl City Wolves played host to the Lena-Winslow Panthers back on Tuesday, Jan. 14. It was an even matchup on paper as the Wolves came in with a record of 6-14, while the Panthers were 7-12.

Although Le-Win had one more win on their record, they were coming off a disappointing loss to one of Illinois' top teams in the Pecatonica Indians. Pearl City was coming off a dominant 51-29 victory over Christian Life. Not only was Pearl City feeling good about the win, but they had the privilege of playing on their home court.

The Wolves got off to an electrifying start. Specifically, it was Fallyn Endress who helped Pearl City take an early advantage. Endress found plenty of success from inside to get the game started, but she capped off her first quarter run with a three-pointer. Endress had 12 points in the first as the Wolves took a 17-10 lead over Le-Win.

Kendra Kuhlemeier and Endress each hit three-pointers in the second quarter. The Wolves combined for four three-pointers in the first half alone. Le-Win managed to keep pace in the second quarter. Sophie Johnston hit two three-pointers of her own to help spark some momentum. Ava Vlasin added a three-pointer as the Panthers combined for five first half threes of their own. Still, Le-Win found themselves trailing at the half as Pearl City took a 32-24 lead into a break.

Le-Win would close the gap in the second half. The Panthers continued to rely on the three-point shot to bring them success. Lila Grindey, Johnston, and Vlasin each hit three-pointers in the third quarter. Racheal Setterstrom also went three-for-four at the free throw line as the Panthers outscored the Wolves 17-12 in the third.

Pearl City's offense slowed down in the second half, but their defensive play was just enough to hold on for the victory. After scoring 32 first half points, the Wolves combined for just 18 points in all of the second half.

Their defense stifled Le-Win's offense in the fourth quarter. After allowing the Panthers to cut into the lead, they shut things down in the final quarter. Le-Win's only fourth quarter points came by way of a Johnston three-pointer. It was her fourth of the night.

Pearl City's offense was held to just six points, but that was all they needed as they picked up a 50-44 victory over Le-Win. Endress led all scorers with 24 points. Tana Gravert was the only other Pearl City player in double figures with 10 points. Le-Win was led by Johnston, who finished with 12 points, all of which came from three-point territory. Grindey added 11 in the loss.

Pearl City would go on to beat Forreton 51-23 in their next game. It was their third consecutive victory. That winning streak was snapped when they fell 44-19 to Amboy on Jan. 18. With that loss, Pearl City's record fell to 8-15 on the year. The Wolves hit the road on Jan. 24 as they take on the Pecatonica Indians. That same evening, the Panthers will make the short trip to take on the Dakota Indians.

Budget constraints, caucus tensions face House Speaker Welch in his third term

Recent caucus erupted into shouting, drawing criticism from governor

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

When state Rep. Emanuel “Chris” Welch was sworn in for another term as speaker of the Illinois House this month, he called on his colleagues to “rise to the occasion” and confront the moment that faced them.

“We are all defined by the moments in our lives and by our responses to them,” Welch said in his inaugural address. “There are young people here today witnessing a very special moment. How we lead in that moment is so important. What we say in that moment is so important.”

In many ways, Welch’s political career has been defined by his handling of critical moments. That was especially true in January 2021, when then-Speaker Michael J. Madigan, struggling under the weight of a burgeoning corruption scandal, began losing the grip on the power he had held for most of the previous 40 years.

It was Welch, a Democrat from the western suburb of Hillside then in his fifth term, who rose from a crowded field of potential contenders to take over one of the most powerful positions in Illinois government.

In a recent statement from his office, Welch pointed to several legislative achievements that occurred during his first four years as speaker—a series of balanced budgets and increases in the state’s credit rating; increased funding for K-12 and higher education; promotion of renewable energy; and criminal justice reform measures, to name a few.

But now, as he enters his third term as speaker, Welch and the Democratic caucus he leads face several new challenges, including significant budget constraints and divisions within the caucus itself. Those divisions erupted in a closed-door caucus meeting during the recent lame duck session and spilled over into public view during contentious negotiations over a bill to regulate the hemp industry.

That caucus meeting reportedly included shouting, name-calling and accusations leveled against state agency staff members, leading to open criticisms from Gov. JB Pritzker over Welch’s handling of the situation.

During a recent interview with Capitol News Illinois, however, Welch downplayed the significance of those tensions and insisted his relationship with the governor’s office remains in good shape.

“Let me say that we had a caucus on a very divisive issue,” Welch said. “We’ve had three caucuses in three different years now on that particular issue, and it gets very emotional. And I have talked to members who, I think, crossed the line and asked them to apologize. And it’s my understanding, at least one member has reached out to a staffer and tried to apologize.”

As for the governor, Welch said, “our relationship is great.” “I love and respect the governor. In my four years as speaker, we’ve accomplished some great policy victories,” he said. “I’ve got two more years here as speaker again, thank God, and we’re going to land more big policy victories. You know, the governor has a job to do, but I have a job to do too.”

One of the most challenging tasks ahead for Welch could be holding the Democratic caucus together on budget and revenue issues during a time when the state faces significant fiscal pressures.

For most of Welch’s time in the speaker’s office, Illinois has enjoyed a period of sustained revenue growth. That has enabled lawmakers to fund such popular things as increased school spending, financial aid for college and university students, and expansion of health care coverage under Medicaid.

But revenue growth has been slowing in recent months. During the 2024 regular session, lawmakers struggled to pass a revenue package needed to close a roughly $1 billion budget gap. Even with Democrats’ supermajority in the House, it took three votes on the final night of the session in May to pass a bill that included tax hikes on sportsbooks and businesses.

This year could prove even more challenging as lawmakers face a projected $3.2 billion budget shortfall. But Welch said he is confident lawmakers will work through the budget challenge.

“I’ve been speaker four years now. We balanced the budget every year I’ve been speaker, and some of those years we had very grim forecasts and we still managed to produce budgets with surpluses, make additional payments to our pension obligations and receive credit upgrades,” Welch said.

“And I do believe that we’re going to continue to pass balanced budgets that are compassionate and responsible, like we’ve done the last four years that I’ve been speaker,” he added. “You know, I’m looking forward to the next credit upgrade we receive after we do it again.”

To help meet the challenge, Welch announced the formation of a new leadership team shortly after being reelected speaker, including the appointment of a new team of lead budget negotiators.

Orange Chicken

There are a lot of recipes for this Chinese dish, but one of the best ones is the one served at Panda Express. This recipe is very close to the one they serve.

Chicken:

1½ C. flour
½ C. cornstarch
½ T. salt
½ t. pepper
1 egg, room temperature
¼ C. sparkling water, chilled
1 T. sesame oil
1½ lbs. boneless skinless chicken thighs, cut into 1-inch pieces
Oil for deep fat frying

Sauce

1 T. canola oil
½ t. crushed red pepper flakes
1 T. minced garlic
1½ t. minced fresh ginger root
2 T. sugar
2 T. brown sugar
2 T. rice vinegar
2 T. orange juice
1 T. sodium soy sauce
1 t. grated orange zest
1 T. water
1 T. cornstarch
Rice

In a large bowl, combine flour, cornstarch, salt and pepper. Whisk in egg, sparkling water and sesame oil until smooth. Add chicken pieces; toss to evenly coat. Cover and transfer to the refrigerator. Let chicken marinate at least 30 minutes. Heat oil about ½ to 1 inch deep in a Dutch oven to 350. Working in batches, add a few pieces of the battered chicken to the preheated oil. Cook, turning occasionally until the chicken is deeply golden brown on all sides and cooked through, about 5 to 6 minutes. Transfer fried chicken pieces to a paper towel lined sheet pan to drain. Repeat with remaining chicken pieces.

Heat canola oil in a large skillet to medium-high heat. Add red pepper flakes, garlic and ginger; cook 30 to 60 seconds or until fragrant. Add sugar, brown sugar, rice vinegar, orange juice, soy sauce and orange zest; stir until sugars are dissolved and mixture begins to bubble. In a small bowl, whisk together water and cornstarch until dissolved. Add to sauce; stir until smooth. Cook sauce until it thickens, 1 to 2 minutes. Add fried chicken pieces to sauce; toss gently to coat. Serve with cooked rice.

Cleft lip and cleft palate

By DR. STEPHEN PETRAS
Illinois Licensed
General Dentist

Approximately one in every sixteen hundred babies born in the United States every year are born with both a cleft lip and cleft palate. In addition, one in every twenty-eight hundred will be born with a cleft lip and one in seventeen hundred will be born with a cleft palate.

Prenatal ultrasound, taken between the 18th and 22nd weeks of pregnancy, can diagnose most clefts of the lip because these clefts cause physical changes in the fetus's face. It is more challenging to detect a cleft palate on an ultrasound, therefore the majority of orofacial clefts are diagnosed during the initial newborn exam. This initial diagnosis will be followed up by an evaluation of the extent of your child's condition. The next step will be the development of a comprehensive, individualized treatment plan, with input from members of a multi-disciplinary team which will include some or all of the following: oral surgeon, otolaryngologist (ENT), dentist, speech and hearing therapist, geneticists, psychologists, lactation specialists and social services.

Whether you learned that your baby has a cleft during a prenatal ultrasound or after delivery, being the parent of a newborn with a cleft lip, cleft palate, or both can feel overwhelming. It can also raise many concerns that may be difficult to talk about. You may worry about how people will react when they see your baby. You might worry about the surgeries your baby will need, how they will recover or how their cleft(s) will impact their physical development and self-esteem throughout their childhood. Things that you took for granted, like feeding your baby, can feel overwhelmingly complicated. Know that your baby's care team is not only concerned about meeting their needs, but you and your family's needs as well. Do not hesitate to share all your questions and concerns so you can get the information and support you need.

Connecting with other families of children with cleft lip and palate can provide valuable emotional support and information sharing. It may be comforting to know that modern surgical techniques for repairing cleft lip and palate have significantly improved, leading to excellent cosmetic outcomes.

Understanding how these conditions occur may help you to understand the varied interventions that your child may require. As the body forms during pregnancy, cells from each side of the head grow toward the center where they join together to make the face. Therefore, we all start out with orofacial clefts. Normally, between weeks 4-7 of gestation the upper lip fuses. Between weeks 6-9 the palate fuses. Cleft lips and/or cleft palates occur when a baby's lips and/or palate do not form properly or fuse completely before birth. Cleft lips can range from a small slit to a large defect that extends into the nose. They can occur on one or both sides of the upper lip and, very rarely, in the middle. They can occur with or without a cleft palate. Cleft palates also vary from occurring in only part of the palate to involvement in both the hard and soft palate and may be accompanied by additional defects in the inner ear. Cleft palate can occur alone or in conjunction with a cleft lip. A submucous cleft palate, which is an opening underneath the tissues that cover the palate, is difficult to detect and may not be discovered unless it causes difficulty in feeding or speech.

Babies with an orofacial cleft may struggle to breastfeed or bottle feed effectively because they cannot create a proper seal with their mouth, often requiring specialized feeding techniques and bottles with special nipples. Due to the anatomical connection between the palate and the eustachian tubes, children with cleft palate are more prone to ear infections which can impact hearing if not treated promptly.

Children with cleft palates often present with defects of the alveolar ridge, the bony ridge that holds the sockets for teeth, helps shape the curvature and proportions of your smile and is involved in making the sounds of speech. Teeth may not develop properly in children with cleft palate, and they may require palate extension, bone grafts and other orthodontic care. A cleft palate may affect the proper formation of speech sounds, potentially leading to a nasal quality or unclear speech, which may require speech therapy or surgery.

While surgery to correct a cleft lip generally takes place around three months, surgery to repair a cleft palate is usually performed between 10-12 months. Since the child will be under anesthesia for the palate repair, this is often when the otolaryngologist will place ear tubes to prevent ear infections, improve hearing and promote the development of normal speech.

Some interventive procedures may be required prior to these surgeries to optimize results. Larger defects may also require bone grafting between seven and nine years of age. If your child needs surgery to improve their speech, it usually occurs around age five. Orthognathic surgery to realign the jaw and more extensive plastic surgeries on the nose will not take place until the child has finished growing.

Final Thoughts

In a previous week's column, I had a Chicken Ranch Bacon Skillet Dip that was made in the oven. One of my friends made it and put it in the crock pot. She said it was delicious and everyone at work liked it. In another previous column, I had the Pasta Fagioli Soup. Another friend made it and put her leftover frozen appetizer meatballs from New Year's Day in it. They were small and added just the right amount of meat to the dish. She also made the Red Velvet Cookies which were a hit at her family's dinner. I am always glad when I hear about your uses of the recipes. Hopefully we are done with the bitter cold that we experienced at the beginning of the

Brown Butter Chocolate Chip Cookies

This is a different take on the traditional chocolate chip cookie. It uses brown sugar and the nuttiness of browned butter to give a great flavor to an old favorite.

For the past four years, Rep. Jehan Gordon-Booth, D-Peoria, served as the House Democrats' lead negotiator—what lawmakers refer to as the "budgeteer." But starting this year, Welch will rely on a team of three "co-budgeteers," all Chicagoans: Reps. Kam Buckner, Eva-Dina Delgado, and Will Guzzardi.

Gordon-Booth will remain a part of the leadership team as an assistant majority leader. She previously held the title of speaker pro-tempore, a position that will now go to Buckner. Rep. Robyn Gabel, of Evanston, will continue to serve as majority leader.

State Board of Education seeks $11.4 billion for PreK-12 spending

Requested 4.6 percent increase comes in face of projected revenue shortfall

By Peter Hancock
CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

The Illinois State Board of Education voted Jan. 15 to approve a budget request for the upcoming fiscal year of nearly $11.4 billion, a 4.6 percent increase over this year's budget, despite projections that the state will face a substantial revenue shortfall next year.

The request includes a $350 million increase in "Evidence-Based Funding," the minimum annual increase called for under the 2017 law that focuses new education spending on the neediest districts.

It also includes a $142 million increase in what's called "mandatory categorical" aid for expenses such as transportation and special education, and $75 million in new funding for early childhood education.

"This year's budget recommendation recognizes the tight fiscal projections faced by the state of Illinois, while continuing to invest in things that we know that are critical for school districts and that have a direct impact on student learning," State Superintendent of Education Tony Sanders told the board.

Funding for PreK-12 education is one of the largest categories of spending in the entire state budget, accounting for about one-fifth of all General Revenue Fund spending. That money is used to help fund the budgets of more than 850 school districts, which serve an estimated 1.9 million students.

State funding, however, makes up only part of the total amount spent on public education. In 2021, the most recent year for which complete numbers are available, state funding made up only about 26 percent of total school spending while about 65 percent came from local sources such as property taxes and the rest came from federal sources.

Over the years, the state's heavy reliance on local property taxes to fund public schools produced vast inequities among districts. The Evidence-Based Funding formula was intended to address that over time by establishing a "hold-harmless" mechanism by which no district would ever see its funding reduced, then directing new funding to the districts most in need.

The law created a formula for estimating the cost of providing an adequate education in each district based on certain factors such as total student enrollment, the number of students from low-income families and the number of students from non-English speaking backgrounds. The goal of the law is to bring all districts up to at least 90 percent of their adequacy target.

Since the law went into effect, according to ISBE, nearly $2.2 billion has been distributed to districts through the Evidence-Based Funding system and overall funding for the neediest districts—known as Tier 1 districts—has grown from 59.2 percent of their adequacy target to 73.4 percent.

Still, however, seven out of 10 students in Illinois attend a school in a district that is funded at less than 90 percent of its adequacy target. According to ISBE, bringing all districts up to 90 percent of adequacy would cost an additional $2.6 billion.

In November, the Governor's Office of Management and Budget reported that the annual increases in education funding called for under the Evidence-Based Funding law, combined with other rising costs and overall flat growth in revenue, would lead to a projected $3.2 billion budget shortfall in the fiscal year ahead.

Gov. JB Pritzker will outline his plan for plugging that hole when he delivers his budget address to the General Assembly Feb. 19.

Sanders, however, said he remains confident Pritzker and lawmakers will find a way to balance the budget and still fund the agency's budget request.

"While most of state government's going to be looking at potential freezes, we are really pleased to see a governor and legislature that is committed to public education funding, even in tight fiscal times," he said.

USMCA's dispute decision a win for Illinois corn farmers

By Tammie Sloup
FARMWEEK

The United States' victory in its dispute over Mexico's decree to ban genetically modified corn imports is good news for Illinois corn growers.

United States Trade Representative Katherine Tai announced the U.S. prevailed in its dispute under the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA) challenging certain Mexican biotechnology measures concerning genetically engineered (GE) corn.

The USMCA panel agreed with the U.S. on all seven legal claims, finding that Mexico's measures are not based on science and undermine the market access that Mexico agreed to provide in the USMCA.

"The panel's ruling reaffirms the United States' longstanding concerns about Mexico's biotechnology policies and their detrimental impact on U.S. agricultural exports," Tai said. "It underscores the importance of science-based trade policies that allow American farmers and agricultural producers to compete fairly and leverage their innovation to address climate change and enhance productivity."

"We look forward to continuing our collaboration with the Mexican government to ensure a level playing field and provide access to safe, affordable and sustainable agricultural products on both sides of the border."

The dispute challenged two sets of measures reflected in Mexico's February 2023 presidential corn decree, including an immediate ban on the use of GE corn in dough and tortillas, and an instruction to Mexican government agencies to gradually eliminate the use of GE corn for other food uses and in animal feed.

The U.S. established the panel in August 2023.

Illinois Farm Bureau President Brian Duncan called the decision an "important victory."

"It was a strong ruling on behalf of U.S. corn growers and a vital export market that we need to remain open," Duncan told RFD Radio. "It's also a victory for rules-based trade."

IL Corn Growers Association (ICGA) President and Waterloo farmer Garrett Hawkins said the panel's decision is positive news for Illinois corn farmers and Mexican corn importers.

"As the largest corn export state in the union, Illinois corn farmers are proponents of free trade agreements and of making free trade agreements work," Hawkins said in a statement. "ICGA and the National Corn Growers Association had a significant role in fighting this unscientific Mexican government overreach and urging the U.S. Trade Representative to challenge the ban that would limit Mexican buyers' choices and reduce U.S. market access."

Highland library presents 'The Green Book: Navigating the Journey to Equality'

Highland Community College's Clarence Mitchell Library will present "The Green Book: Navigating the Journey to Equality," at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 11 in the Clarence Mitchell Library for Black History Month.

Guest speaker and exhibitor Tammy Gibson will explore the historical significance of The Green Book, the challenges of racial discrimination it sought to address, its cultural impact on the African American community, and how it became a symbol of resilience, hope, and the fight for civil rights — offering a glimpse into the everyday lives of Black travelers during a time of profound social injustice. Gibson's exhibit on The Green Book will be available in the library from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the day of her program.

Gibson is the founder of the Illinois Black History Museum, as well as an author, re-enactor and black history traveler. Her mission is to raise awareness and preserve pride in African American culture. She earned her B.A. in African American Studies from Chicago State University.

Gibson's increasing interest in African American history has led her to travel extensively, exploring Africa and several cities throughout the United States to gather information about the hidden treasures of African Americans that are erased from history. Journaling the path of her ancestors, Gibson has visited several national parks, historical landmarks, museums, markers, cemeteries, slave plantations and sites of the Underground Railroad. On her journeys she has slept in slave cabins to honor the enslaved and met leaders of the Civil Rights Movement.

Gibson's teaching of African American history through her travels, storytelling and collection of artifacts has inspired adults and youth to explore the importance of the events and people of the African diaspora. Her motto is: "Black history is more than 28 days."

This exhibit and event are free and suitable for all audiences. For more information on the program, contact Laura Watson at 815-599-3456 or laura.watson@highland.edu.

SUBMITTED PHOTO Rock Valley Publishing

A bountiful harvest resulted in this corn pile in Amboy (Lee County) last fall. Illinois exports more corn than any other U.S. state, so growers here recently welcomed a key decision concerning trade with Mexico.

"We are so happy to see the ruling issued in our favor and look forward to building our trade relationship with our top export customer for all types of corn."

From January through October 2024, the United States exported $4.8 billion of corn to Mexico—the United States' largest export market for the grain.

The panel issued its final report on Dec. 20. Under USMCA rules, Mexico has 45 days from the date of the final report to comply with the panel's findings.

The panel, in its report, wrote that while Mexico is seeking to address genuine concerns in good faith, such concerns should be "channeled into an appropriate risk assessment process, measures based on scientific principles and in dialogue among all USMCA parties to facilitate a constructive path forward."
